Truman Likely To Omit Plea For Tax Rise

President to Send Economic Report To Congress Today; Optimism Expected

By the United Press

President Truman is expected to urge Congress today to forget his request for four billion dollars in new income taxes and to approve instead mild measures to prevent a possible depression.

The recommendations will be included in his anxiously awaited midyear economic report which will tell business what the Administration thinks of the economic outlook and possibly provide ammunition for the 1950 congressional campaigns.

It also should have an important bearing on current union drives for fourth-round wage increases and pension and welfare plans.

No Major Threat Seen

The President is almost certain to say that current price reductions and employment cutbacks hold no threat of a major depression—if the Government acts swiftly and wisely to shore up weak spots as they develop in the economy.

He described himself to a news conference Thursday as being "bullish"—or optimistic — about the economic situation, however, and any medicine he prescribes for now probably would be mild and be administered in small doses.

Some sources believed it would be pitched to the idea that now is the time for Federal, State and local governments to work out detailed programs of public works which could be started immediately if times become worse.

Analysis Going to Capitol

The report will be based on the conclusions of Mr. Truman's Council of Economic Advisers, but the recommendations sent to Congress will be those of the President himself. The council's analysis—but not its conclusions—also will go to the Capitol.

A joint congressional economic subcommittee—which gets much of its information from the same Government sources as the council—said in a report Saturday that business is slumping and unemployment rising but that there is no cause for "crisis talk."

The Congressmen said the jobless rolls, while bigger than last year, are "not unreasonably high" and pointed out that more people are working now than at any time except 1948.

The President is expected to strike the same reassuring note.

White House sources, however, said only that his message will be "calm" and "optimistic." They said he will cite chapter and verse to prove the economy still is sound and healthy.

Congress has been ignoring the President's request for a tax increase ever since it was made last January. And while the President has been insisting that it is necessary, it has been noted that his recent statements on the subject have been less aggressive.

The economic report probably will provide a chance to give up something he stands almost no chance of obtaining anyway.

His recommendations will be weighed by Congress with two principal considerations in mind—the Senate drive to balance the budget and avoid deficit spending and the

To Balance Budget

Big 'Recision' Is Discussed At Capitol

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A single big "recision" in congressional appropriations in one last effort to balance the budget is being discussed quietly at the Capitol.

Marking a shift in Senate economy thinking, the idea is to agree on a specific cut that would approximately balance the budget and then tie it to the last big appropriation bill.

If the plan rolls up enough bipartisan support, it would be substituted for the still-pending McClellan resolution directing the President to make 5 to 10 per cent cuts.

The difference is that Congress wouldn't be leaving the precise amount of the cut to the President's discretion or risking presidential refusal to make the cut.

The recision by a specific figure would be voted by Congress itself. Only discretion left the President would be where he would apportion it.

Another difference is that the new plan would apply to appropriations themselves while the McClel-

Velde Joins In Criticism Of Hiss Judge

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Conduct of the Alger Hiss trial by Judge Samuel H. Kaufman showed bias for the defense that "bordered on judicial misconduct" and "gross impropriety," Representative Velde (R., Ill.) charged yesterday.

Velde declared an investigation of Kaufman's conduct "cannot be sidestepped," in a statement setting forth a six-point "bill of particulars." These six points, he said, were taken from the record but "the most biased acts of the judge" do not appear there.

"His sarcastic and scornful voice employed when addressing key Government witnesses," Velde said, "and his impatient gesturings, chair-whirls, and head movements indicating disbelief of their testimoney, do not of course show in the record, yet they are common knowledge and were the talk of New York during the trial.

"On the other hand, Judge Kaufman's gentle, even friendly regard for Alger Hiss and all witnesses who testified in his behalf was in shocking contrast to his treatment of prosecution witnesses."

Himself a former judge and former FBI agent, Velde was the second member of the House Un-American Activities Committee to demand investigation of Kaufman's conduct of the trial which resulted in a hung jury. Representative Nixon of California, also a Re-

Russian Freigther Is Under Watch At Philadelphia

Philadelphia, July 10 (U.P.).—The Coast Guard today maintained a close watch over the Russian freighter Dmitry Donskoy. There was no explanation from Federal officials.

The Donskoy anchored at midstream in the Delaware River off Pier 96 South last night. Immediately a Coast Guard patrol craft put out to the freighter and began to circle it. The patrol boat intercepted all approaching craft.

Riverfront sources believed the watch was to prevent persons from boarding or disembarking. The Coast Guard refused to discuss its orders.

One Federal official said only that "All we know is that too many people are out on bail whom we would not want to mingle with the crew."

The Donskoy is in Philadelphia to unload iron ore. Its next stop is Baltimore.

Snyder and Cripps Reach No Conclusion On Means to Solve Exchange Problem

By Ned Russell

London, July 10 (NYHT.)—The three-day Anglo-American-Canadian discussions of the dollar-crisis of Britain and the sterling area ended today without any positive plan for a permanent solution of the problem.

The talks were conducted by John W. Snyder, United States Secretary of the Treasury; Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer; Harold Wilson, president of the British Board of Trade, and Douglas C. Abbott, Canadian Finance Minister. Snyder was assisted by W. Averell Harriman, Ambassador for the Economic Cooperation Administration, and Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassador to Britain.

The conference concluded today at a luncheon at Chequers, country residence of Prime Minister Clement Attlee, where a lengthy but inconclusive communique finally was approved.

The communique described the conference as a "general exchange of views" on the dollar crisis and on both short and long term measures which might be taken to achieve a balance of payments between the dollar and sterling areas.

The communique said that devaluation of sterling was not suggested in the discussion of short term measures. Even various short term proposals were deferred for further consideration.

The communique made clear that the British recognize they cannot rely exclusively on any fresh financial assistance immediately from the United States or Canada. This was seen as a concession to the political situation in the United States and the reluctance of Canada to jeopardize her own dollar reserves by making additional credits to Britain. But there still was a hint that financial aid might be needed as a last resort.

"It was agreed," the communique said, "that the general approach to existing problems must be based upon full recognition of their profound and long-term character. The difficulties of the past few months were no more than an aggravation of deep-seated maladjustments. All agreed that remedies other than financial assistance such as that provided by the United States and Canada must be explored."

The communique indicated it

Chinese Reds Warn Aliens On Behavior

Police Treatment Of American Consul Is What Foreigners Can Expect, They Say

Shanghai, July 10 (AP).—Foreigners in Red China were told by the Communist Liberation Daily today that police treatment of United States Vice Consul William M. Olive was an example of what they could expect.

United States Consul General John Cabot said Olive was "utterly, brutally beaten" by the police and forced to sign "apologies and confessions" during three days he was held handcuffed and incommunicado in jail because of a minor traffic altercation.

Olive, 32, from Ironton, Mo., was released Saturday after consular protests to high Communist authorities.

(At Washington, State Department officials said today the Communists apparently are embarked on a deliberate policy of trying to make Westerners lose face in China. This was the underlying political significance seen in all the reports received by the Department on the Olive case.)

The Liberation Daily, in a lead editorial headed "Warning to American Imperialists," described the traffic incident as "imperialist provocative action." Olive, it said, was guilty of "imperialistic arrogance."

Olive was freed after strong United States protests to higher Communist authorities.

The Liberation Daily editorial declared today, "The people's government will not tolerate foreign nationals to treat our people with arrogance, roughness or slight."

In another place the paper published a special warning to Americans, saying, "You must abandon your provocative action at once or you will reap the consequences."

Chiang and Quirino Begin Conversations

Baguio, Philippines, July 10 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek began a series of conferences with President Elpidio Quirino today on mutual opposition to Communism.

It was not made evident how far the conversations might go towards starting a general anti-Red alliance of Pacific nations, such as President Quirino has publicly suggested.

A communique issued late tonight intimated, however, that this was a prime topic.

It said:

"As the Generalissimo is visiting the Philippines unofficially, conversations with President Quirino during their first meeting have been devoted largely to mutual information regarding the situation in China and in the Philippines.

"They discussed on an explora-

The Crusaders Brought Cards From the East And Millions Have Been Losing Ever Since

By Ernest E. Blanche

(This is the second of seven condensed installments on Blanche's recent book concerning facts and fallacies about gambling. The author is Chief Statistician for the Logistics Division of the Army General Staff. As a hobby, he has studied gambling for 20 years. He's convinced—you can't win!—Editor's Note.)

Cards came into existence in the Far East many thousands of years ago. It was through the Crusaders that they were introduced into Europe and became a means of diversion for the rich.

As card-playing spread, it was perhaps inevitable for it to become an accepted medium for gambling.

The improper manipulation of cards by "sharps" or sharpers" requires considerable skill and persistent practice. Many years ago professional card sharpers were known to have had the first joint of the second finger of their left hand amputated in order to be able to use the stump to push out bottom cards while dealing.

Nowadays, sharpers simply use an adhesive bandage on the finger tip.

If a card sharper hasn't the time or inclination to learn how to manipulate cards, he usually resorts to "marked" decks, known in the trade as "readers."

Most snarpers prefer to mark their own cards, but some buy "reader" decks, which often are falsely advertised as "magicians' cards." The prices of such cards range from a dollar a deck for crude sets to $20 for the more clevely marked decks.

One test for determining whether a deck has been marked—or is susceptible to marking—is to hold the cards in the left hand and run the thumb of the right hand over the top edges so the cards move like the pages of a book.

While the cards are being riffled in this manner, watch the upper left-hand corners or the tops of the backs. If the design seems to move or change, then you would be wise to remember you overlooked an important appointment.

Occasionally a sharper tries to mark cards in the course of a game, using a marking ring, which has a small pointed prong on the underside.

There are other methods. The edges of certain cards are often

Tito to Close His Frontier With Greece

Belgrade, July 10 (AP).—Marshal Tito tonight said Yugoslav plans "gradually to close" her frontier with Greece to protect the Yugoslavs from the fighting between the Greek government and the Communist rebels.

Tito addressed a crowd estimated at 40,000 at Pola, former Italian Adriatic port city.

(A report of Tito's speech, broadcast by Tanjug, official Yugoslav news agency, quoted the Premier as saying: "Our peoples are conscious of what they are aspiring to. They know that they are building socialism and a better and happier future.")

The address discussed all Yugoslavia's major problems—from her border troubles to the row with the Cominform countries; from her desire for financial aid to her determination not to grant political concessions or "sell our conscience."

Tito stressed these points:

1. "We shall not, we have not renounced our rights to Carinthia (in southern Austria) nor shall we ever renounce them."

2. Yugoslavia will never agree to the return of Trieste to Italy.

Biddle Helps 2 Women Ashore After Wife Saves Mrs. Prichard

Col. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, soldier, athlete and diplomat, was credited by eyewitnesses to yesterday's explosion of the yacht Halcyon with "great personal courage."

Biddle first rescued his attractive wife. Despite a gash over his right eye, he swam to the explosion scene—the water now covered with gasoline—and dove in search of the body of Maj. Gen. Vernon E. Prichard.

Biddle—who is 55 years old—recovered Prichard a few feet under the surface and carried his body to the dock.

The wartime ambassador to the governments in exile of Poland, Norway, Belgium, Czechoslovakia and Luxembourg, Biddle gave this account of the 1:30 p. m. explosion:

"We were just pulling away from the Corinthian Yacht Club dock en route down the Potomac for a picnic. We hadn't even had a chance to meet all the guests invited by our host, Mr. Dudley.

"I was standing near the bow of the boat with my wife and Mrs. Prichard. We were just away from the dock when we heard this huge explosion and saw the flame. I told my wife she'd better try for a jump for the dock. I made a sort of cradle with my arms, which she used, and she jumped and made it.

"Then I turned to Mrs. Prichard and she saw the General face down in the water. I jumped in to go to him. She stood and urged me to help him. Meanwhile, the boat was turning farther away from the dock, and the fire was spreading.

"After I swam to the General, Mrs. Biddle called to Mrs. Prichard to jump into the water immediately. Then Mrs. Biddle took a life preserver, with it dived into the water and got to Mrs. Prichard just as she went in. Finally, we all were able to make the pilings of the dock. Then I went back to the General. He had begun to sink. With someone else, I dived down and grabbed him a few feet be-

Barden Denies His Bill for Aid To Schools Is Discriminatory

Representative Barden (D., N. C.) yesterday answered critics of his Federal aid to education bill with a denial that the legislation discriminates against Negroes and Catholics.

Speaking over Ed Hart's "Is Congress Doing Its Job?" program over WWDC, Barden asserted that "those church dignitaries who start political controversies . . . need not expect immunity from political blows."

Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York branded the Barden bill "un-American, anti-Catholic legislation" which is "a menace to American democracy itself" on June 19.

The Cardinal asserted that Barden and backers of his bill were "shamefully fostering discrimination against parochial school children" and asserted that they were venting "venom upon children."

Without mentioning Cardinal Spellman by name, Barden declared that church leaders who start political controversies "may lose some of their effectiveness as spiritual leaders in such combat, and if they resort to falsehood and name-calling, they may run the risk of losing even their honor."

The North Carolina Congressman said the "falsification" of the measure "is not accidental. It comes from those sources who are demanding as their right—their right, mind you—to receive Federal money for the support of church schools."

"It comes from those sources who would whip their flock into a fanaticism that could destroy the first principle of American democracy—the separation of church and state."

Barden challenged those who

Two of Four Injured in Explosion Near Death

Boat Blows Up With 10 Aboard On Leaving Dock After Refueling

By Benjamin C. Bradlee
Post Reporter

The Army's top public relations officer and a retired Navy commodore were killed yesterday afternoon when a cabin cruiser exploded at the Corinthian Yacht Club.

Four others were injured. Two of them may die.

The dead were Maj. Gen. Vernon E. Prichard, 57, of Fort Myer, Va., and Commodore Wilfred Painter, USNR, a contractor who had arrived from Athens, Greece, only two days earlier.

Critically injured were Capt. Sergius N. Ferris Luboshez, USN, who returned from China duty last week, a guest on the 36-foot cabin cruiser Halcyon, and Johannes Johannesen, 40, steward of the Yacht Club assigned yesterday to the Halcyon.

Luboshez was in Bethesda Naval Hospital "in very serious condition, on the critical list," with multiple fractures of both legs, possible fracture of the spine, possible internal injuries and shock.

Johannesen is at Casualty Hospital, also "in very serious condition" with first and second-degree burns about the head and upper torso.

Among the passengers were Col. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, 55, wartime ambassador to the exile governments of five Allied countries, and his wife. Neither was injured seriously. Observers credited Biddle with saving the lives of his wife and Mrs. Prichard, also a passenger, and recovering the body of General Prichard in the river.

The host for what was planned as a journey down the Potomac for a picnic lunch, was Henry A. Dudley, jr., of the Westchester Apartments, a partner in the law firm of Paul V. McNutt. Dudley was taken with Luboshez to the dispensary at the Anacostia Naval Air Station, where seven stitches were taken in his leg and he was treated for burns.

Thomas L. Miller, 23, of 1712 Summit pl. nw., Johannessen's brother-in-law and hired as skipper of the Halcyon for the excursion, was in undetermined condition at Casualty Hospital with first, second and third-degree burns. He was treated at the scene before he was taken to the hospital, and authorities expected he would be released.

Suffering from shock were Mrs. Biddle and Mrs. Prichard, who with Biddle were alone in the bow of the boat as she pulled away from the dock and disintegrated in the explosion.

The tenth Halcyon passenger, also suffering from shock was Mrs. Leslie William, 29, of 1535 Mount Eagle pl., Alexandria, Va. The cruiser was owned by Bolling Powell, jr., Dudley's law partner of Vienna, Va. He was not aboard.

The disaster occurred seconds after the boat had been refueled and just as she was pulling out into the Potomac River from the club's gasoline dock.

Harbor police theorized that gas fumes in the bilges collected during refueling, and exploded when the engine was started.

All the passengers either jumped or were thrown into the water. General Prichard was thrown across the narrow dock. His body was recovered by Biddle, who had previously helped his wife and Mrs. Prichard to a dock piling.

Medical authorities said General

New Baby Buried By Unwed Mother 14 Hours Is Saved

Montgomery, Ala., July 10 (U.P.).—A new-born child, buried alive by its unwed mother, survived 14 hours in a shallow grave and was reported in "satisfactory condition" tonight.

Ida Roberts, 20, the mother, said she gave birth unattended, and buried the child late Friday.

Lizzie Hurn, Ida's landlady, found the baby early Saturday morning.

She saw the baby's foot wriggling in the mound of earth.

New Blockade Stops Trucks to Berlin

Berlin, (Monday) July 11 (U.P.).—The Russians slowed truck traffic to Berlin to a trickle today after stopping it completely for an hour in a new "little blockade."

Shortly after midnight the Russians stopped truck traffic to the city along the Helmstedt-Berlin superhighway.

Truck traffic along other highways had been closed previously so that the stoppage was complete.

At about 1 a. m., British officials at the Helmstedt border line reported the Russians started letting through "a very few" trucks.

The Russians yesterday limited movement along the Helmstedt-Berlin high speed road to four trucks an hour.

Normally about 450 vehicles pass through each day.

Russian authorities had started a new squeeze on Berlin-bound trucks Friday when they closed the Hamburg-Berlin highway.

Saturday they closed all other border crossing points except that at Helmstedt.

They ordered all this traffic diverted to the Helmstedt-Berlin road.

Neither American nor British authorities knew what the Russians were up to.

British authorities protested to Maj. Gen. P. A. Kvashnin, Soviet transport chief.

A member of Kvashnin's staff gave the usual answer that a reply to the protest would be given today.

American authorities said they would make their own protest later.

Train traffic to the city continued normally, and American and British planes of the airlift service continued to roar into Berlin airports in full scale operations, bringing food and coal in sufficient quantity to permit the city to withstand another full blockade.

Reds Heighten Smear Drive On America

By The Associated Press

The Cominform has newly intensified its campaign to smear Americanism.

It announced last month an avowed aim to defeat United States efforts to "poison" world working classes with American ideas.

The Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau) listed this as a "cardinal task" of Communist governments and parties.

Since then, State Department officials reported yesterday, the Soviet bloc propaganda campaign has gone into high gear against everything American.

They said its current theme is that the Marshall Plan for European aid has failed, and that the United States, along with other western nations, is sliding fast into economic chaos. There is no letup, meanwhile, on the older contention that only the rich benefit from capitalism.

Soviet listeners have been told by the Moscow radio that "14 million American workers lead a semi-starvation life." It added that "the American worker is free to choose—either the freedom to starve, or slavery with the exploiter."

Investigator Doubts Loss Of Uranium

By The Associated Press

A special investigator told Congress members yesterday there is a possibility "some small amount" of uranium 235 may have been stolen from the Argonne National Laboratory at Chicago, but he added it is "extremely unlikely."

And the investigator, Dr. Ernest W. Thiele, further informed the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee that "the best available data does not indicate the loss of any uranium, by theft or otherwise."

Special Investigation

He based his conclusions on indicated evidence of the amount which disappeared from the laboratory and the amount recovered.

Thiele, assistant director of research for the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, was hired by the joint committee to make an independent investigation of the disappearance involving approximately one ounce. The laboratory is operated by the University of Chicago for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), bitter critic of Atomic Energy Commission management, said Thiele's summary, which was made public, left the case "just as mysterious as ever."

"I am utterly unable to make head nor tail of the summary," he said. "It is still a case of first you see it, then you don't."

Hickenlooper said the importance of the amount of uranium involved was its research value.

The enriched uranium first was found to be missing last February 8. It had been kept in a glass jar, and most of the contents were dumped into a scrap can. While recovery efforts were under way the original glass container disappeared.

Later the commission reported the jar was recovered in a metal container, for "hot" waste materials at Argonne.

No Espionage Involved

It was reported at that time that about one-eighth of the material was still missing.

The FBI, called in last March 28, expressed the opinion that no espionage was involved. So did Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the Atomic Energy Committee. So did the Atomic Energy Commission, headed by David Lilienthal.

The committee is about to wind up at least the first phase of public hearings on the Hickenlooper accusation, vigorously denied by Lilienthal.

Talks to Seek Ouster of Scott Are Confirmed

By the United Press

Senate GOP Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Neb.) yesterday confirmed that some Republican leaders met secretly in Pittsburgh Saturday in a new move to oust Representative Hugh Scott, jr., as national chairman.

But Wherry said he did not know what took place at the meeting or whether the renewed anti-Scott campaign was likely to succeed.

"They wanted me to attend but I didn't go," he said.

Several prominent Republicans, including Wherry, said the chief difficulty confronting anti-Scott forces is the lack of an acceptable candidate to replace the Pennsylvanian who was handpicked by New York Governor Thomas E. Dewey for the top party post before the last election.

"My theory has always been that they haven't got anybody to beat him," Wherry said. "You can't do it by these super-de luxe guys wanting to be President and getting somebody to run their campaigns.

"You've got to et a man who can give it full time, who can unify the party, who is a good promoter and organizer and who is big enough to tell all the Tafts and Stassens where to get off when he needs to."

Wherry said he is not "a Scott man" but thought the Pennsylvania Republican could do a good job if there were not "so many factions out to get him as a Dewey man."

Senator Taft (Ohio), GOP policy leader, who has publiicly expressed his opposition to Scott's leadership, said he had heard nothing about the Pittsburgh meeting.

All participants were said to have agreed to keep it secret until some time next week. There was speculation here the delay was, in a sense, an ultimatum to Scott to resign or face a public contest.

In Philadelphia, Scott brushed off reports of the ouster movement.

He said simply that "as far as the Republicans are concerned, our job is to fight Democrats." He added he would return to Washington today and "go right about with my routine business."

Wreckage of Yacht After Explosion in Which Two Died

Prichard was killed instantly. Coroner Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald said there were no burns, no fractures and no visible cause of death. He will perform an autopsy this morning.

Dudley gave this eye-witness account of the 1:30 p. m. disaster:

"I was standing by the boat holding her stern line on the dock, so that I could shove it off. Johannesen and Miller were starting the engine.

"I saw a blinding sheet of flame and heard this terrific explosion. The next thing I knew everyone was in the water, and I dived after General Prichard. I swam after him, turned him over, and his face looked horrible.

"Biddle took Prichard from me. Then I heard Luboshez scream, and went after him. I pulled him out of the flames caused by the burning gasoline, and left him to go after some of the others. Luboshez screamed that both of his legs were broken and he was sinking, and I went back after him and carried him to a position where he could hold onto the piling of the dock. Mrs. Biddle and Mrs. Prichard were also hanging on there."

"A boat came over and held Luboshez. They finally pulled Luboshez and myself on to a crash boat and took us to the air station dispensary. I was treated for leg burns, and they sewed up a gash on my leg with seven stitches.

Joseph L. Foley, 4927 N. 15th st., Arlington, Va., said he heard "a terrible explosion," saw flames and debris shot high into the air, and ran down the dock to throw lines to the victims in the river.

Shep Wolf, 26, said he jumped from his boat moored to another dock and pulled two unidentified persons from the water. He was uninjured.

From Biddle and other eye-witnesses, authorities determined that the outing guests had hardly been introduced to each other before the explosion occurred. Only Dudley knew the complete list of passengers.

Painter suffered a compound fracture of the leg, the only outward signs of injuries according to Casualty Hospital officials. He was pronounced dead at 3:05 p. m., and his body was removed to the District Morgue, where an autopsy will be performed this morning.

The cabin cruiser was demolished by the blast and sank in shallow water beside the dock, less than 30 minutes after the explosion, in plain view of scores of yacht club guests. Only the boat's ensign was intact above water. Harbor police ripped off the remains of the charred cabin roof in search of bodies.

Rescue Squad No. 1, the fireboat, three harbor police boats, three ambulances, six motor patrol cruisers and several scout cars responded to the Yacht Club's call for help.

Harwood Martin, 40, in another boat nearby at the time of the explosion, was treated on the scene for arm burns suffered when he swam to the rescue of the blast victims.

Victor Nieves, 22, 1426 Minnesota ave. ne., in a boat directly astern of the Halcyon, was treated on the scene for burns and cuts from flying glass. He assisted in pulling General Prichard's body from the water.

Mrs. Biddle said that Mrs. Prichard is her child's godmother. The two families became acquainted in Frankfurt, Germany, during the last war.

All the victims were dressed in outing clothes, shorts, sunsuits, and short-sleeved shirts, and many burns were suffered as a result.

General Prichard's death was noted by two top Army figures. Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray said: "I am profoundly shocked to hear of the tragic and untimely death of General Prichard. The Army and the Nation which he served will mourn the loss of this distinguished soldier."

General of the Army Omar Bradley, chief of staff, said "I was deeply shocked to learn of the tragic death of my friend and former classmate General Prichard. The Military Establishment and the Nation have lost a great soldier."

A combat veteran of both wars, General Prichard graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1915. During the First World War he served at the front at Verdun and Chateau Thierry. He was an all-time Army football great.

From 1925 to 1929 he was professor of military science at Yale University. He later served as an aid to General Hugh A. Drum at Fort Shafter, Hawaii. He became Chief of Staff of the Fourth Armored Division at Pine Camp, N. Y., in 1941 and in 1944 was sent overseas as commander of the First Armored Division in Italy.

In September, 1945, General Prichard was assigned as deputy Foreign Liquidation Commissioner and later served as Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff at European command headquarters until January, 1949.

He held the Distinguished Service Medal, the Purple Heart, the Czechoslovakian War Cross, the British Order of Bath, the Italian Order of St. Maurice and St. Lazarus, the Brazilian War Medal, the Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre with Palm.

He leaves his wife, Charlotte, and one daughter, Carlotta.

Commodore Painter was born in Dryad, Wash., in 1908, and was graduated from the State university in 1929. Before he entered the Navy on January 1, 1941, he had served for many years, as a construction engineer in Shanghai, China.

Commodore Painter saw Pacific service in the Civil Engineer Corps during World War II. He was in charge of raising the USS California, sunk when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor, and later served on Bougainville Island, in the Solomon Islands.

At the end of the war he was serving as naval liaison officer in China. He was separated from the Navy in March, 1946, with four Legion of Merit medals for distinguished service.

The Navy Bureau of Personnel listed his last address, as of June, 1949, as 3rd September street, Athens, Greece, care of the contracting firm of Atkinson and Drake. His wife and two children are in Athens.

Planes in Canal Zone End Hunt for Survivors

Cristobal, Canal Zone, July 10 (U.P.).—The United States Navy today abandoned an intensive air-sea search for possible survivors from the flying boat which crashed Friday in the sea near here. Patrol boats were ordered to sweep the crash area periodically.

Nine Navy men were aboard. Only one body has been found.

Big 'Recision' Is Discussed

lan resolution would apply to expenditures.

The new proposal sprung from widespread doubt of whether Congress has the power to "order" the President to make cuts, which is in effect what the McClellan resolution does.

Also, the new plan eliminates the virtual certainty that Mr. Truman, if he agreed to accept the McClellan "directive," would stick to the lower 5 per cent alternative.

The McClellan move, still awaiting a Senate showdown, has 62 "signed-up" Senate supporters and the new plan may be contingent on convincing Senator McClellan (D., Ark.) himself and enough Senators to pass it.

Leading GOP proponent of the "fixed recision" plan is Senator Cordon (R., Ore.), who now is sounding out sentiment in both parties.

Top Democratic spokesman for the proposal is Senator Russell (D., Ga.), who thinks Congress should not only cut back appropriations by a specific over-all figure, but should narrow discretion further by applying the cut to definite classifications of appropriations.

So sharp has been the falling off in revenues that neither Russell nor Cordon are sure their plan, if adopted, would balance the budget. They say at least it would make a substantial stride in that direction.

The plan is known to have been discussed at a meeting of the Senate Republican Policy Committee last week when it was tentatively agreed to support an economy rider on one of the last appropriation bills. No decisions were reached on the form of the cut pending further two-party discussions.

McClellan has announced he will go ahead with his own plan if the Senate Democratic Policy Committee refuses to grant him clearance. Democratic leaders called off a policy meeting last week and the Democratic policy group showdown now is scheduled for Tuesday.

Proponents of the substitute plan argue that it answers the chief criticism aimed at McClellan's proposal by Senate Democratic Leader, Lucas (Ill.) namely that Congress would be "abdicating" its own appropriation authority and "passing the buck to the President."

Mr. Truman's own indicated willingness to cut armed services appropriations by nearly a billion dollars, chiefly by eliminating universal training estimates, meanwhile had the effect of prodding the lagging economy drive.

Budget slashers, who had been talking about a billion-dollar cut in defense spending, now are suggesting a 1.5-billion-dollar slash and still propose to undercut the House on ECA appropriations.

The long-postponed ECA showdown may come today. Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.), again has called his full Appropriations Committee together to "markup" the second-year Marshall Plan bill. The committee may not get around to a vote on military economies until next week, however.

Economy leaders still are in some doubt about whether to try to hang the big general recision to the ECA bill or the military measure.

Those who favor linking it to the latter argue that since it will be the last regular appropriation bill, Congress will be in a better position to judge 1950 appropriations and agree on a budget-balancing cut.

Other knife-wielders argued that the ECA measure would be a more appropriate medium, since it would show foreign beneficiaries the United States was making proportionate cuts in domestic spending.

Whether the McClellan plan or the Russell-Cordon idea of a specific over-all recision eventually goes to the floor, amendments will be offered to exempt agencies already cut seriously.

Thus, if ECA and military appropriations are cut in committee as apparently planned, they would not be affected by the proposed final recision.

Reuther Hints UAW May Strike Soon

Milwaukee, Wis., July 10 (AP).—President Walter Reuther today hinted strongly the CIO United Automobile Workers would strike soon unless the industry meets the union demands.

He opened the UAW's twelfth convention with confident claims the union will win the pension plans, welfare funds and wage boosts it is seeking.

Reuther told 2400 cheering delegates a "worsened economic situation" had "reemphasized the need for labor to fight for its goals."

Ford Deadline Not Set

He lashed out at what he called the "boom-and-bust freedom at the price of security economy of Wall Street monopolists" and the "security at the price of freedom offered by Communists and Fascists."

"It is the economic royalists in Wall Street—not the people in the labor movement—who are Joe Stalin's fifth column agents in this country,' he shouted.

The UAW president, obviously in full control of the convention from the start, still did not set a deadline for the Ford Motor Co. to settle with the union or face a strike.

But he indicated something might happen "in the next couple weeks" unless the union makes some progress with the company.

Ford, whose contract will be extended on a day-to-day basis after it expires Friday, has been picked by the UAW as the first auto industry "target" this year.

Negotiations were started almost simultaneously in Detroit with Chrysler Corp., but most labor and industry observers expect the Ford talks to lead the way.

'Work Holiday' Rejected

Reuther said Ohio delegates will be asked by the convention to go back and fight for the defeat of Republican Senator Robert A. Taft, cosponsor of the Taft-Hartley Act.

A proposed one-day "work holiday" to help pressure repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act was turned down.

Reuther received a telegram of greeting from President Truman before the convention opened.

It commended the UAW leader for attempting to bring about a "strong working alliance between the workers of one of our key urban industries and the workers on the land."

Communique

British Text On Economic Discussions

London, July 10 (AP).—Following is the text of a British treasury communique on the economic discussions with United States Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder and Canadian Finance Minister Douglas Abbott:

1. During their visit to London, Mr. John Snyder, Secretary of the United States Treasury, and Mr. Douglas Abbott, Canadian Minister of Finance, have had a general exchange of views with the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the President of the Board of Trade on the balance of payments difficulties between the dollar and sterling areas and on the measures which could be taken to right the existing disequilibrium between the two areas, both in the long and the short term.

2. It was reaffirmed that the objectives of the economic policy of all three governments remained those which are set out in the articles of agreement of the International Monetary Fund and the Havana charter for an international trade organization.

Particular stress was laid on the necessity of finding solutions which would maintain high levels of employment and enable world trade and international payments to develop on a multilateral basis.

3. It was agreed that the general approach to existing problems must be based upon full recognition of their profound and long-term character. The difficulties of the past few months were no more than an aggravation of deep-seated maladjustments. All agreed that remedies other than financial assistance such as that provided by the USA and Canada must be explored.

4. The aim must be the achievement of a pattern of world trade in which the dollar and nondollar countries can operate together within one single multilateral system. The parties concerned must be prepared to review their policies with this object in view.

5. As the next step, it is proposed that technical and fact-finding discussions should take place between the three governments in preparation for further ministerial discussions which it is hoped can be held in Washington early in September.

6. As regards immediate problems, there was a comprehensive examination of the influences which had brought about the recent acceleration in the drain on the reserves of the sterling areas. This led to a general discussion in which the United Kingdom representatives outlined the preliminary steps which they felt it necessary to take to meet the immediate situation.

A number of supplementary measures were suggested which could be taken by the governments either individually or in concert to strengthen the present position. It was agreed that they should be the subject of further consideration. In this connection no suggestion was made that sterling be devalued.

7. There was full recognition, in the discussions, of the vital part which assistance under the European Recovery Program is playing in maintaining the economic position in the United Kingdom and in the other countres participatng in the OEEC (Organization of European Economic Cooperation).

Job Market Contracting

A number of GI students and recent graduates may have to shift their job goals somewhat in the present period and look for work in related fields, according to a Bureau of Labor Statistics occupational outlook report.

The report, prepared for the Veterans Administration, cites as a basis for the advice the fact that job prospects in many fields are less favorable than in any year since the war began.

For example, the BLS tells engineering graduates that many of them may find their training helpful in obtaining administrative or technical sales jobs.

Some undergraduates will want to consider changing their courses of training to related fields offering better job opportunitfes, the report observes.

A "somewhat better outlook" is noted for professional and administrative occupations, with the number of administrative and executive jobs in an "upward trend," says the report.

"However," the BLS warns, "if college enrollments increase in line with past trends, competition for professional and executive jobs will continue to be keen unless students broaden their vocational horizons and seek employment in a wider range of occupations."

Those Indicted In Klan Case to Be Named Today

Birmingham, Ala., July 10 (U.P.) Peace officers and Ku Klux Klansmen may be named in the 44 indictments returned here by a grand jury investigating "mobism and hoodlumism."

The names of the 14 to 17 persons indicted will not be revealed until Monday when Circuit Judge Robert Wheeler signs arrest orders.

However, it was learned that one of the indictments was for neglect of duty and another for intimidating a witness.

Snyder Ends London Talks

had been carefully drafted to say a good word for the favorite ideas of the United States on expanding and freeing world trade yet without prohibiting Britain from taking emergency steps which would tend temporarily to contract and restrict commerce.

The communique announced that "technical and fact-finding discussions" would take place among the United States, Britain and Canada in preparation for another meeting of finance ministers at Washington before the annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development in mid-September. Sir Stafford will probably go to Washington late in August.

Snyder told reporters before he flew to Brussels late today that he still believes that the International Monetary Fund is the appropriate forum for discussion of revaluation of sterling or any other European currencies.

Snyder pointed out that no final decisions had been worked out in the discussions. Reporters who talked to him got the impression that he was not particularly satisfied with the results of the talks.

He was asked several times whether he regarded the conference as "successful." Each time, however, he insisted they had been "useful." He did not seem to want to say they had been "successful."

The communique did not mention one of the problems uppermost in the minds of the British—when and on what scale the United States will resume its purchase of rubber, wool, tin, cocoa, jute, industrial diamonds and similar raw materials.

Snyder told reporters he had not been in a position to commit the United States to any such specific steps. He reminded reporters that American inventories of some of the commodities are running low and he thought purchases would be resumed "in due course."

It was understood that some British measures to reduce the drain on gold and dollar reserves will be announced next Thursday or the following Monday when the House of Commons debates the crisis.

British Plan Drastic Steps To Meet Dock Emergency

London, July 10 (AP).—Dockworkers tonight stubbornly resisted government pressure to end a strike tying up 109 ships in the London port area. The British Cabinet prepared to declare a state of emergency, perhaps Monday.

About 1700 troops were unloading a few ships with food cargoes, but the government was determined normal commercial activities be resumed at once.

The cabinet will meet Monday morning to determine how many of the 10,200 strikers return to their jobs.

Under tentative regulations the government could take over complete control of the ports, might billet troops in the dock areas, make arrests without warrants and deal several with sabotage or interference.

An official statement yesterday said the government will insist all ships be unloaded, including the Canadian vessels, Argomont and Beaverbrae, the first to be involved in a jurisdictional dispute involving two Canadian unions.

The attitude of some of the labor unions involved remained obscure tonight.

Economic Report Due

approaching 1950 Congressional elections.

Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry raised the issue of politics yesterday when he criticized the "shabby record" of the Democratic-steered Eighty-first Congress and blamed the Administration for the "business slump."

He said business conditions would be even worse if the last Congress had not passed the Republican tax reduction bill over the President's veto. He also accused the President of not really being interested in economy.

"Promises of the Truman Democrats last fall for continuing prosperity have a hollow ring today in view of the falling national income and increasing unemployment," Wherry said.

The President's message will be watched closely to see if it reflects a split between council members themselves.

Chairman Edwin G. Nourse has insisted all along that the Nation is undergoing a "healthy disinflation" and that increased Government spending should be discouraged.

Congressional economy leaders have quoted him frequently.

The other two council members, Leon Keyserling and John D. Clark, reportedy are shifting to the theory that there is some danger of a depression in the present situation and that Government must take the lead in halting deflation and unemployment.

Wherry's broad indictment of the Administration's record was included in a statement comparing the first six months of the present Democratic Congress with the old GOP-steered Eightieth Congress.

He strongly criticized "second-hand reports" that the President is anxious to reduce Federal spending.

"They (the reports) will not erase the President's failure to appraise the economic situation correctly," he said. "They will not erase his consistent opposition to reduction in his budgeted appropriations."

'Alert Coast,' Bridges Told From Hawaii

By the United Press

Honolulu, July 10 (U.P.).—Striking Hawaiian longshoremen charged today that the mass arrest of 106 pickets yesterday indicated island employers were "desperate" and will try anything to break the strike prior to a Federal inquiry.

Robert McElrath, a spokesman for the striking CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, cabled Harry Bridges, the union's West Coast leader, to "alert the Coast" after yesterday's clash between pickets and police.

He did not amplify the "alert" request, but observers were quick to recall that a union spokesman recently spoke of a possible West Coast maritime tieup in connection with the 71-day-old Hawaiian strike.

Police made the 106 arrests for violation of a new territorial law which prohibits interference with persons going to work. The pickets were attempting to prevent the unloading of vitally-needed tinplate from a strike-bound freighter.

The union posted a total of $10,800 in cash bail.

Pearson Sees Truman Aiding Fight on Hague

New York, July 10 (U.P.).—Drew Pearson said in his radio broadcast tonight that liberal Democrats in New Jersey will attempt to read Boss Frank Hague out of the Democratic Party this week.

In his weekly broadcast over the ABC network, Pearson declared that a showdown battle with Hague had been indorsed by President Truman. He said former Governor Harry Moore, a friend of Hague's, called at the White House last week and was told by the President, "Why doesn't Hague jump into the blank, blank Delaware River?"

Ching to Start Vital Talks On Steel Pay Dispute Today

Federal Mediation Director Cyrus S. Ching was reported yesterday to have been instructed by the White House to avoid a strike at any cost when he opens talks here in the steel industry contract dispute.

Ching was said to be impressed with the fact the Administration hopes for a steel industry settlement that will set a national wage pattern, paving the way for similar settlements in other basic industries without work stoppages.

Ching, the Government's top conciliator, will be working against time when he meets with CIO President Philip Murray and representatives of United States Steel and six other big producers at 4 p. m. The parties broke off contract talks in Pittsburgh last week.

Murray has full authority to call out the 500,000 members of his United Steelworkers next Saturday at midnight.

[The Associated Press reported the union has mentioned 20 cents an hour as possible for a fourth-round wage increase.]

While facing one of the hardest chores in a career sprinkled with difficult jobs, Ching was optimistic. He declined to discuss his reasons.

His immediate strategy reportedly is to find some avenue of action by the Government that will sidetrack any immediate strike call when the steelworkers' wage policy committee and executive board meet at Pittsburgh Tuesday.

Should he fail, the only action open to the President apparently would be to appoint a fact-finding board and order the United States Attorney General to seek an 80-day antistrike injunction under the Taft-Hartley law.

That would be embarrassing to the President, who is trying to prod Congress into passing a new labor law without Taft-Hartley injunctions or plant seizure authority.

Ching's job will be complicated, CIO informants said, by the fact that Murray is angry, and determined to achieve at least a big part of his demands for a general wage increase, insurance and a pension plan. It was reported he will be far harder to deal with this year.

Builders, 5 Unions See Dispute Ending

With the local carpenters' and laborers' strike over, settlement of differences between builders and five other building trades unions over new work contracts appeared yesterday to be just a matter of a few days.

Optimism that agreements would be reached shortly by building contractors and subcontractors with the five unions was expressed yesterday by spokesmen for both sides and by neutral observers.

The five trades involved, whose negotiators have been marking time pending the outcome of the carpenters-laborers walkout, are the rodmen (reinforced steel workers), dump truck drivers, cement finishers, structural ironworkers and operating engineers. Work contracts of all five have expired.

Kelly Is Confident

"We'll go to work on them Monday or Tuesday," said Francis J. Kelly, attorney for the Master Builders Association, adding that he looked for agreements in the near future. Kelly has been the chief negotiator for the contractors in the 39-day construction tieup.

With the striking carpenters and laborers returning to work today, there is plenty of work for the other building trades immediately, Kelly said, except in the case of the rodmen. Their jobs lag about 10 days behind the carpenters.

Also optimistic are mediators who have followed the construction situation. Now that a basis of agreement with two trades has been set, they believe the other unions can get together with the builders within the next few days.

Request Not Acted On

The rodmen, numbering 217 and represented by Reinforcing Steel Workers Local Union 201 (AFL), whose contract expired April 30, asked their international union for strike permission early in June, but the international has not acted on the request.

"I'm pretty sure we'll come to an understanding with the builders within 10 days," said Raymond O. Boyd, business agent, who explained that it would be about 10 days after the carpenters resume work on struck jobs today before the rodmen's work would normally be resumed.

While they originally asked for a 25-cent raise on their $2.35 an hour scale, the rodmen have lowered this demand to 10 cents increase now and 5 cents more in December. The latest offer by the builders, made on Friday, was for 10 cents now without the later increase, Boyd said.

90 or 95 Working

Though the majority of the rodmen have been out of work during most of the construction strike, about 90 to 95 were working last week on apartment projects where the carpenters had obtained agreements with contractors, he estimated.

Two other unions whose contracts expired April 30 are Cement Finishers Local 891 and International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 77.

About two thirds of the 400 Local 891 members have been out of work because of the strike, and their jobs will resume probably within a day or two, according to Ralph W. Gray, business agent.

"I don't look for any strike; in fact, I believe things will be settled fairly shortly," said Gray. The cement finishers originally asked an increase of 50 cents an hour on their $2.25 base pay. The 600 operating engineers have asked an increase over present scales, now ranging up to $2.50 an hour, and a health and welfare fund.

The construction truck drivers, numbering some 300 in Truck Drivers Union Local 639, have received $1.18 to $1.43 an hour under their contract, which expired March 31. They asked for a 32-cent raise which was reportedly later scaled down to 25 cents.

Structural workers of Iron Workers Local No. 5, whose contract expired July 1, have asked for 25 cents more than their $2.75 an hour scale.

Political Action Of Jap Trade Unions Curtailed

Tokyo, July 10 (U.P.).—The Labor Ministry instructed provincial governors to wipe out political activities by trade unions today as part of the government campaign to smash the Communist-directed "summer labor offensive."

The move came as Premier Shigeru Yoshida increased his efforts to cast aside Allied reforms and regain personal domination of the police force to quell Communist-led strikes and disturbances.

Japanese Communists have openly vowed to bring about the fall of Yoshida's government and have called for an August "revolution."

Rent Control Lifted Daily on Average of 9300 Dwellings Over Nation

By the United Press

Rental dwellings have been coming off the control list at the rate of about 9300 a day since the new rent control law went into operation April 1, Federal officials revealed yesterday.

They said, however, that few of the decontrol actions taken under the machinery set up by the new law have affected any really large metropolitan areas, and that some 14 million units still remain under control.

As of June 30, they said, 551 defense rental areas were completely or partly covered by controls. They were located in 1047 counties, with a population of 95,353,444 persons—or about 70.9 per cent of the total population.

But if the current rate of decontrol continues the rest of this year, it will give critics of the law powerful backing for their argument that rent control has become a local problem, and should be turned back to the communities as quickly as possibly.

Many Representatives and Senators who voted for the law said they did not believe it would be needed beyond this year.

Officials said 189 rental areas, including 560,000 dwelling units, were decontrolled between April 1 and June 30. Since then, 22 other regions, including an undetermined number of units, have been freed.

In addition to actual decontrol action, Federal Rent Director Tighe E. Woods has issued several orders relaxing regulations, including the conditional removal of ceilings from "luxury" apartments. Landlords also now are finding it easier to get rent increases.

Actually, there are about as many dwellings under control now as when the rent law was passed. That is because the law brought back under control about 500,000 units previously exempted. The number of units decontrolled since April 1 has just about cancelled those out.

Construction Spending In '49 Reaches Record

Spending for new construction reached a record $8,500,000,000 in the first half of 1949 as a result of increased State and local government building, the Labor Department reported yesterday.

While the new construction outlay was 4 per cent above the similar period a year ago, employment lagged behind 1948. In mid-June, there were 2,081,000 men employed on construction projects, 92,000 fewer than in June, 1948. Biggest reason was the fact that more construction dollars were going into public works, which require fewer workers than private dwellings.

The department said public spending for new construction totaled about $2,200,000,000 the first half of this year, up 37 per cent from a year ago.

Belasco Theater

Senators Paul H. Douglas and Raymond E. Baldwin have introduced a bill which seems to provide the simplest and most expeditious way of bringing a legitimate theater in an appropriate physical structure to the District of Columbia. They propose to authorize and direct the Federal Works administrator to lease the property owned by the United States, located on Lafayette Square and commonly known as the Belasco Theater, to the American National Theater and Academy for the presentation of theatrical and musical performances open to all persons able to pay the price of admission regardless of race, creed, color, religion, or national origin. The purpose of the bill is to enable the Federal Works administrator to do what he has felt unable to do without specific congressional approval. It would entail no appropriation of Federal funds.

This proposal differs from one put forward some time ago by Representative Celler in that it specifies the lessee instead of offering the property on the basis of competitive bidding. This seems to us to be warranted in view of the fact that ANTA is an organization which was chartered by the Congress itself in 1935 and which is peculiarly qualified to operate a model theater in the National Capital. The sponsoring Senators say that "it is expected that the American National Theater and Academy will experience no difficulty in raising the funds necessary to accomplish the physical conversion of the old Belasco Theater into an intimate playhouse of beauty and distinction, as befits the Capital of the Nation." This, of course, is the crux of the matter. We hope heartily that the expectation is well founded. If so, Messrs. Douglas and Baldwin have hit upon the ideal remedy for what has become a desperate Washington need. Congress could confer a great boon upon the people of this community by authorizing this simple remedy before its summer recess.

DuPonts On The Spot

Attorney General Clark has explained that the suit brought against duPont, General Motors, and U. S. Rubber aims at the "breaking up of the largest single concentration of industrial power in the United States." The Government's complaint, however, accusing these companies and members of the duPont family of conspiring together to restrain interstate trade in violation of the Sherman and Clayton Acts does not emphasize the size of the combination so much as the alleged illegality of the methods used in achieving a position of dominance. The emphasis is rather on the alleged elimination or weakening of competition resulting from secret rebates granted one another by the defendant corporations, agreements not to poach on one another's manufacturing preserves, and arrangements for exchange of patents and information on a preferential basis injurious to competitors. These intercompany tie-ups, it is charged, have been made possible through an intricate system of interlocking directorates based on control of voting stock by the duPont family.

The complaint of the Department of Justice cites many instances of alleged unfair practices in support of its contention that the triumvirate has suppressed competition in its rise to power. Those charges, not the mere size of the accused corporations, apparently explain why the Government has brought suit to force the duPont company and members of the duPont family to sell their stockholdings of GM and U. S. Rubber and compel all three companies to cancel intercompany contracts relating to sales of goods, grants of licenses and exchange of information. The suit does not call for a breakup or dissolution of any one of the three companies. It is simply aimed at the abolition of practices that, in the opinion of the Government, have handicapped independent competitors of the big three. Consequently it is no answer to the complaint to protest that mere bigness is not necessarily illegal. The companies will be called upon, instead, to defend themselves against specific charges of unfair practices that suppress or restrain competition and tend to create a monopoly.

A curious feature of this suit is that the duPonts, who are said to be in a position to dominate the duPont company as well as GM and U. S. Rubber, are minority stockholders. For instance, the members of the duPont family together with the two personal holding companies of the family own only 36 per cent of the outstanding stock of the duPont company. The duPont company in turn owns only 23 per cent of GM's common stock, while control of U. S. Rubber by the duPont family is said to be based on their ownership of just 17 per cent of the outstanding common stock of that company. However, these holdings are concentrated and are voted in blocks. The many thousands of other stockholders, some with only a few shares, are in no position to challenge the authority of a group whose holdings are concentrated and voted as a unit. Hitherto the SEC has taken the position that stockholdings of much less than 17 per cent may under some circumstances insure control of a company. Consequently the Government aim is to break up a system of corporate stockholding that has given a single family group immense powers of control over a group of giant corporations—a control incidentally out of all relation to the size of their investments, large as they are.

Whether the suit, if successful, would result, as the Attorney General hopes it will, in freer competition is, of course, a moot question. GM might, for example, continue to buy duPont products rather than those of its competitors. It might obtain better bargains if free to choose; but, even so, there is no assurance that higher profits for GM and lower profits for duPont would mean better and lower prices for goods sold to consumers. However, the assumption is that, given time, a shake-up of the kind contemplated would, by removing impediments to competition, encourage a return to competitive practices.

Taft's Hesitation

There is a disingenuousness about the Connally approach to the Atlantic Pact which Senator Taft does well to challenge. Pact and arms program have been dissociated in the presentation of the pact to the Senate. By contrast an honest stand was taken by Secretary Acheson in his appearance before the Foreign Relations Committee. "If you ratify the pact," he said, "it cannot be said there is no obligation to help. There is an obligation to help, but the extent, the manner, and the timing are up to the honest judgment of the parties." To be sure, there is no express obligation, but the armament implications of the pact, in Articles 3 and 9, are as plain as the dome on the Capitol and as necessary as its walls.

One reason for the pact that might be pondered during the present disputation was well stated by Senator Dulles (whose appointment to the Senate, by the way, brings to that body a man learned in international affairs yet prudent in his ideas about American commitments) in his testimony before the Foreign Relations Committee. Senator Dulles mentioned a talk he had had with that shrewd Prime Minister of France, Henri Queuille. Queuille estimated that nearly half of the members of the Communist Party had joined the party merely to gain protection in the event of a Russian walk-in. Membership is now on the decline in all western Europe as well as France. This is demonstrated in all news reports, and, in the case of the Low Countries, by actual count at the ballot box. Members of the Senate should ask themselves why. The reason is the knowledge that under the Atlantic Pact the United States intends to act along with western Europe as an arsenal of the Atlantic Community. Do the Senators feel that the Foreign Ministers who came here to sign the pact would have risked being strung up on the nearest pole by a Cossack posse if they had not understood the pact as a pledge of armed security and not merely of ex post facto liberation?

However, we sympathize with those Senators who are chary over both the policy on arms and the extent of it. There has been too much flinging of American arms around—with disastrous consequences. Over 90 per cent of the arms sent to China have fallen into the hands of the Chinese Communists. Military bureaucrats wanted to do the same thing in Latin America, but have been deterred so far from pressing their hemisphere arms pact by the spectacle of Latin-American governments captured by military juntas bristling with American arms. These cases are warnings of what should not be done in western Europe. Waste and worse would be invited by merely sending arms to our Atlantic Allies. When the time comes to consider an arms program, "the extent, the manner, and the timing" should be determined by the Congress as well as by the parties to the pact—in the form of conditions laid down in advance which will insure the carrying out of a specific American policy.

That policy was stated when this country embarked upon the Marshall Plan, but, as is plain from the British crisis, is in process of frustration. It was that the Europeans should get together and produce a working continental economy, singular. Similarly what this country needs in Europe as a condition of an arms program is a continental defense establishment—again, singular.

It needs a common strategy, a common general staff, a clear division of labor in the armament industries: tanks in one country, small arms in another, planes in a third, and so on. In the light of the working out of the Marshall Plan, promises are not good enough, even when accompanied by a rabbit warren of committees. In the common security, American and European, deeds should take the place of words in this matter of a defense establishment. And when they are forthcoming, there should not be the slightest hesitation in providing such a continental defense system with the sinews, as well as with a dovetailing with the American system. In the meantime, the indivisibility of the pact and an arms program within this framework needs to be redeclared in the pact debate in answer to the present questionings.

East-West Trade

As Dr. Gunnar Myrdal told members of the Washington World Affairs Center Friday noon, both eastern and western Europe and the United States suffer from a sort of split personality in the matter of east-west trade. On the one hand there are parallel official statements to the effect that expansion of east-west trade is desirable and indeed necessary. The latest was made by Mr. John J. McCloy in his first press conference as high commissioner on arriving in Berlin. On the other hand there is mutual reluctance to implement the statements because of distrust either of the intentions or of the stability of the other party.

Recent expressions by spokesmen of the Soviet government seem to indicate strong interest in expansion of trade between eastern and western Europe and between Russia and the United States. American spokesmen have been decidedly skeptical in their reaction, blaming Moscow for the present low level of trade and asking for some concrete proof of good faith such as an end of Soviet opposition to the Marshall Plan, a large part of the success of which depends on increased trade across the iron curtain.

If the apportionment of blame were a proper step toward removing the present barriers, some of it could be placed in Washington, where excessively rigorous licensing controls on exports of goods to eastern Europe long ago cut the eastward flow to almost nothing. In these circumstances the Russian embargo on exports to the United States of manganese, a strategic war material, is perfectly natural, and the criticism leveled at it by Secretary Acheson was merely in the nature of a "you're another" utterance. Policy in this respect should be coolly appraised and constantly reviewed in terms of a balancing of advantages and disadvantages for the Western World of trading across the iron curtain.

This approach, for instance, is necessary in looking at the short-run swap of nonwar machinery for wheat that the British have just concluded with Moscow. Though details are lacking, the deal in present circumstances seems advantageous.

German Press

Abolition of the Property Control Division of United States Military Government in Germany on June 30 brings to the fore a new, though apparently less formidable, danger to the postwar independent press in Germany. We commented last fall on the conflict in occupation policies that threatened to put the new democratic papers into the hands of the old Nazi owners of the printing plants. The new situation arises out of the fact that in many cases the present publishers concluded their lease contracts with property custodians appointed by Military Government. With the disappearance of the Property Control Division, one party to these contracts disappears. The independent publishers fear that their contracts will be contested by the old plant owners, who will get sympathetic hearing in German courts. If this should happen, it would be the end of the struggling free press in Germany and a blow to our efforts to reorient the Germans toward an appreciation of the values of an independent and democratic press.

The danger goes far beyond the interests of newspaper publishers. If German courts were permitted to question and invalidate contracts and commitments made under Military Government, the entire fabric of occupation authority would collapse. The State Department, somewhat tardily, now has the question under active study among its legal experts and hopes soon to come up with an opinion. We hope there will be no further delay in deciding that German courts cannot question the actions of Military Government.

Senator Do-Nothing

The Senate Judiciary Committee, meeting Monday morning, will not have on its agenda a bill to revise and liberalize the Displaced Persons Act. It has not had such a bill on its agenda at any previous meeting. The committee's chairman, Senator McCarran, has been a little slow, one might say, about bringing up the matter.

The Senator is also chairman of a subcommittee that is handling the DP issue for the full committee. This subcommittee has not been quite so inactive on the question. During the past seven months, while bills to amend the DP Act have been before it, it has held a grand total of one single session. Senator McCarran has just not been able to get the members of the subcommittee together for one reason or another—mostly for the one reason that he does not want any liberalization of the DP Act.

Senator McCarran happens to be in a position where he can block DP legislation all by himself until hell freezes over the DP camps in Europe. Or until his colleagues take the matter out of his hands and make good on this country's moral obligation to give asylum to its fair share of the homeless, tempest-tossed refugees from the devastation of war and the toils of dictatorship.

GHOST-BIRD

Oh, he's not here; and he's not there,
By barn and brook and mill;
But dawn and noon and dusk as fair
His voice rebukes me still;

And still as fair as feathered bird
That sings on summer bough,
He pipes a tune I overheard
A ghostly measure now,

When long ago, another day
Beside a singing wood,
I tossed a stone too straight his way,
And stopped his song for good.

Chemurgy For Britain

On September 27 last year, you were good enough to publish a communication in which I suggested that American chemurgic knowledge should be applied to the development of the British Empire, in order to open up new sources of wealth. I found that leading American chemurgists agreed with me.

I made this proposal because "coal, minerals, Scotch whisky, tweeds and baby automobiles may not be enough to pull us out of the red in a reasonable time." In the light of current events, alas, this statement does not seem over-pessimistic, as some thought at the time.

In the present crisis, perhaps it is worth repeating that chemurgists realize that the British Empire has enormous potential wealth, which can be made actual by modern knowledge. Recent chemurgic developments, too, offer statesmen and economists the means largely to avoid surplus and tariff problems which occur in other fields.

Part of the solution, then, of current difficulties is to give more emphasis and urgency to the development of chemurgic raw materials within the sterling areas. In this, the United States alone can give a lead. For nowhere else are the techniques so developed or the possibilities so well understood.

In this way, American know-how can act as a catalyst of British energy, initiative and capital, to promote a most valuable reaction.

Admit The Voice

Now that the Senate and House chambers are being done over, wouldn't this be a propitious moment to make arrangements to include our national Voice of America in its press galleries? The illogic which excludes our own news-outlet from access to the deliberations of our own Congress—which appropriates the money by which the Voice of America operates to counter anti-American propaganda—is rendered the more absurd by the admittance of Tass and other Russian news groups to the press galleries as well as representatives of the British government-owned BBC. It is carrying "free enterprise" for our press a little far when we exclude the Voice for being Government-operated but let in the equally government-managed Tass and BBC.

Gold As The Villain

In the box head "Shortage of Dollars Forces British Emergency Action" in your July 7 issue are these two short sentences: "Officially a pound sterling cost $4.02. Actually a $4.02 pound bought only about $2.80 worth of British goods." No explanation was offered for this apparent paradox.

The answer is in the little word "officially." This means that the first pound (costing $4.02), cost that much because the official value of gold, in which the balance of payments between Britain and the United States have to be settled, is fixed at $35 per ounce.

The reason this $4.02 pound bought only $2.80 worth of British goods is because these goods are bought on a pound that has been altered by what is called "purchasing power parity." This is the actual value of a currency in terms of another currency as determined, not by any artificial cost of gold in which balance of payments are settled, but by what a British automobile, valued in pound sterling, would actually trade for if imported into the United States and with duty paid were sold for dollars.

Say the British car is worth £1000 at the official rate of $4.02 per pound sterling. It should sell for $4020 less duty and freight in the United States. Actually it sells for $2800, because the Britisher who sent the car here to sell cannot find anyone who will pay $4020 for it.

The British have had to buy all the raw cotton in the tires, all the vanadium in some of the steel, most of the aluminum (or bauxite), and a thousand other items that go to make up the car in foreign markets for dollars valued at $4.02. Their labor is comparatively more expensive than ours, and labor makes up 90 per cent of the cost of any manufactured product. This makes the purchasing power parity of the pound sterling $2.80.

Devaluation of the pound in terms of dollars is no real solution, because the "purchasing power parity" will fall proportionately lower. If Britain wants to sell in this market in order to get dollars, the real, lasting solution is to lower the price of the gold she has to buy with pounds, in order to settle her balances with the United States.

Segregation Clamor

All thoughtful Americans who yearn for good will among men must agree with your correspondent of July 2 on "Segregation Solution," when he says, speaking of responsibilities as Americans: "Harsh words, bitter feelings, ill-mannered actions only subtract from our common bond as rational men."

Is it not possible that we are getting hysterical over words, words, words? Imagine a concentrated clamor from radio, press, television and town crier over the moral lapses of blue-eyed Americans. "A blueye shoots his mother-in-law." "A blueye holds up a railway express." "A blueye mutilates a pretty girl, murders an innocent babe."

They may not do their work better in the Tar Heel State whence I draw my inspirations; but without the segregation fever a fine auditorium was built in one city a while ago, available for both colored and white entertainments. There is a spacious gallery and the unwritten law prevails that when the show is white, the colored patrons occupy the gallery and vice versa.

A colored show that I recall was well attended by white people and one woman from the gallery found a vacant seat next to mine. Nothing happened. That is, nothing happened to the seats. The interest of both of us centered on what was happening on stage. Two people from different surroundings had put elbows on the same piece of polished wood for one hour. And what of it? Why the hullabaloo?

Knowledge Of Russia

In his letter of July 3, Mr. U. Grant-Smith says that "as a people, we are surprisingly ignorant of the various phases of life in the U. S. S. R. and seem to show little curiosity." He is absolutely correct and his letter, with the exception of one paragraph, is a fine, though scanty, contribution to our knowledge of Russia.

His reference to "the constrast between the uniformity of American fashions and the distinctive costumes current in Russia" provides food for thought. The uniformity of American dress goes with a rich variety of ideas and with a political tradition which allows the widest play for personal independence and creativity, with due regard to the necessity of a stable social system, capable of incorporating change in an orderly and fruitful way. The distinctive costumes current in Russia, on the other hand, cover up a monolithic conception of life which stultifies those precious values of the creative individual which are the crowning glory of Western civilization.

In the Soviet Union, and outside of it, there is a system of thought which plays no small part in the ability of the despotic minority to rule over, not only the bodies, but also the minds of its subjects. This the Russians, in their Oriental fashion, call Marxism-Leninism-Stalinism.

We have only to read the novels of Dostoyevsky (especially The Possessed) to realize that the Russian mentality has its peculiar formations which cannot be explained entirely by the imported Marxist ideology. Nevertheless, this ideology, albeit with exaggerations and distortions, does represent catechism to millions of fanatics who have their high priest, as well as political leader, in Joseph Stalin. This must be why Mr. Max Beloff of Oxford University, author of the two-volume work The Foreign Policy of Soviet Russia, stated that "to deal successfully with the Russians we must learn to think like Stalin."

The second Mount Holyoke College Institute on the United Nations was told by a former first secretary of the British Embassy in Moscow, Dr. Isaiah Berlin, who last came out of Russia in 1945, that it is most important "not only to the Russians but also to the people who are against them" to examine the Communists' fanatical belief in Marxism, which has made a "deep impact even on people who are not Marxists." Mr. Grant-Smith's characterization of this study as "fuzzy cerebrations" is utterly incomprehensible to me.

On the contrary, in the crucial period facing us we had better get just as curious about the Soviet way of thinking as Mr. Grant-Smith already is about the more picturesque aspects of Russian history. It is not enough to "read and reread the story of Genghis Khan and that of the Golden Horde and subsequent Russian history" (though this is desirable) in order to understand with what type of human being we find ourselves obliged to deal. We must also familiarize ourselves with the unholy hash of Marxist-Leninist-Stalinist doctrine, which does in fact dominate Russian thinking.

At least twice we seriously miscalculated Soviet behavior because of our inadequate familiarity with Communist ways of thinking. The Nazi-Soviet Pact of August, 1939, which was the signal for war, came as a shock to those ignorant of the origins of the Communist and Fascist movements, who imagined that these two could not mix. Soviet behavior after the war again caught many unawares because they naively deluded themselves into believing that our material aid in the war against Hitler would impel the Soviet government to make peace with Western "bourgeois" society. These were avoidable errors of which those with knowledge of the philosophy which guides the Communists were not guilty.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Power Drive for Asia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya.—As the traveller moves on from region to region in Southeast Asia, what has happened in China more and more appears as only a major element in a much larger pattern. The pattern has two strands—the Kremlin's drive to capture all of Asia, and the drive of the Asiatic peoples to gain their own independence.

Sometimes, as in Indonesia, the Kremlin has failed to infiltrate its specially trained Communists into the Asiatic nationalist movements. More often, it has succeeded, as in Indo-China, Malaya constitutes a special case, because the 2½ million Malays in this steaming, tropical, immensely rich British colony live in daily fear of the two million Chinese who have settled here.

Since the Communist triumph in China, the Chinese in Malaya have been the instruments of the Kremlin's power drive. But for precisely this reason, the Malays have been the active, invaluable allies of the British in their long, costly struggle to frustrate the Kremlin's local plans.

WHAT IS GOING ON here is vital, not only for Asia, but also for Britain. The tin and rubber produced in this jungle peninsula mak eMalaya the richest dollar-earning area in the British Empire. Indo-China and Indonesia have represented huge net losses to the French and Dutch ever since 1945. By contrast, although the British have been struggling to put down the Communist rebellion here ever since the Japanese departed, Malayan tin and rubber have nonetheless earned enough dollars to constitute an absolutely essential prop of Britain's imperiled pound.

Three men are responsible for the conduct of the small but vital Malayan war. The first of these is the High Commissioner, Sir Henry Gurney, a tough, soft-spoken Greek scholar, part of whose job is to appear on appropriate occasions in a gold-bedecked white suit and a tropical hat lavishly decorated with pink and white ostrich plumes. He wears these peculiar symbols of British authority with admirable aplomb. And the fact that he does so has a certain meaning—for it must be remembered this is still a British colony, and because of the Malayan fear of the Chinese, will remain a colony.

The number two man is a tall, cautious policeman, W. N. Gray. He is chiefly responsible, under Gurney's direction, for the campaign against the bandits, as the British are careful to call the Chinese Communist guerillas. For this purpose, Gray has organized a special police force of 70,000 men, mostly Malays.

Finally, the third man in charge is a confident cocksparrow of a soldier, Maj. Gen. C. H. Boucher, who is immensely enjoying his little war. Boucher commands a mixed bag of no less than 14 infantry battalions, ranging from Grenadier Guards to Gurkhas, who help Gray's police.

THE ENEMY that has called out these considerable forces is a mere handful of bedraggled and rather incompetent Chinese Communist Malayans, probably numbering no more than 4000. They are killing British soldiers and civilians with Britis' arms parachuted into Malaya during the Japanese occupation. They are, however, killing fewer and fewer. For only here, in all Asia, are the guerillas on the run.

When the Communist guerillas took to the jungle last summer, their mission was two-fold: first, to sabotage British recovery by preventing rubber and tin production; and second, to drive the British out of Malaya in the end. They failed on both scores. Their new mission is simply to survive as a thorn in the British imperial side.

Thus the bulk of the guerilla forces is now ordered to hide out in the jungle in three main concentrations, while a thousand guerillas are organizing themselves into "killer groups" of 8 or 10 men each. The broad objective is to keep an armed Communist core in existence in Malaya until help arives from the north—from China. According to the intercepted orders to the local guerillas, the Communist victory in China insures that this help from the north will come soon.

So much for the Communist strategy. The British counterstartegy is to destroy the guerrillas as rapidly as possible, by means that will be described later. Meanwhile, whether or not these guerrillas in Malaya manage to survive, two things stick out of this situation like sore thumbs. The Kremlin is carrying on an Asiatic offensive as active as its offensive in Europe, and much better planned. And by using guerrilas as the main instrument of this offensive, the Kremlin has created a situation calling for very great western efforts to avoid catastrophic defeat in Asia, despite the infinitesimal smallness of the Kremlin's Asiatic investment.

Thanks To Mt. Alto

This is a letter to thank you from a grateful former G.I. to the taxpayers and the supporters of the Veterans Administration. In these days of strict criticism, we very seldom hear of the good that an organization might do. That is the reason why I would like the general public to know of the fine care and treatment that I received while at the Mount Alto Veterans Administration Hospital in Washington.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Now It Must Be Told

THANKS to the decision which the Atlantic Pact registers, the Western World is able to do this year what it could not have done last year—to face up to the crisis of the European recovery program without the fear that it might be a temptation to military aggression. That is the outstanding accomplishment of the past 12 months: to have won enough military security to permit us to discuss objectively and to treat without panic the deep and stubborn issues of economic recovery.

LIPPMANN

But it must also be said that the Administration has as yet no policy, Congress and the American public have not as yet been helped to prepare themselves, for the choices and the decisions which this historic crisis is presenting to us. The action of Sir Stafford Cripps in declaring a standstill until September is a reprieve. It means that during the remainder of the summer measures which would split the free world and produce incalculable political results in Britain, in Europe, and in the Commonwealth and Empire, will be held in abeyance. The time is short, and we cannot afford to waste it in recrimination or in complacency—either in nominating scapegoats instead of searching for solutions, or in shrugging off the reality and the gravity of the crisis.

EVER SINCE the first meeting at Paris two summers ago, we have been on notice that while the Marshall Plan was another indispensable installment of interim aid, it was not the plan, which it was said to be, for the restoration of European solvency at a rising standard of life. It has been evident from the beginning to those who knew the facts that the figures were doctored for reasons of political expediency. They underestimated the European dollar deficit. They exaggerated with the most wishful kind of thinking the prospects of the European export industries and of the markets where exports could be sold. Two years ago, even before the Marshall Plan was first submitted to Congress, it was a mathematical certainty that the crisis which has now arrived must come at the very latest when Marshall aid stopped in 1952.

The chances of postponing the crisis even that long depended not only on prodigious efforts and sacrifices and austerity in Europe, not only on miracles of mutual aid and enlightened national unselfishness, but most of all on an uninterrupted continuation of the American postwar inflationary boom.

THE SECOND report of the Marshall countries, made in Paris last December, showed that there had indeed been a remarkable effort to produce. But no miracles of mutual aid and international collaboration were happening, or were going to happen within the near future. Therefore it was certain that the crisis of the Marshall Plan would come sooner than 1952.

It would come, in fact, when the American inflationary boom was halted and deflation set in. Or it would come when the revival of production made Britain, Belgium, France, and western Germany competitors in a buyers market. By April of this year both of these conditions had developed together. They were indicated unmistakably in the figures for British exports and for American imports, in the figures for Belgian and German unemployment, and in the informed guesses made by merchants and speculators throughout the world about the dollar reserves of the sterling area. Since April it has been manifest that the crisis of the European Recovery Program was unavoidable this summer.

WITHIN the Administration the departments chiefly concerned reacted differently. Broadly speaking, the Treasury has acted with an excess of zeal, the State Department and ECA with a strong tendency not to face up to the facts, and to keep hoping that hard decisions could be avoided.

The Treasury has been keenly aware of the situation that was developing. But because it began to talk about one isolated aspect of the problem—namely devaluation—before it had a policy for dealing with the consequences, it has aggravated and accelerated the crisis. No doubt the crisis was coming anyway. But the Treasury sought to deal with devaluation by external and public pressure—that is the right name for it—instead of by confidential negotiation with the British government to work out an agreed plan. Thus devaluation was promoted without measures to cushion the shock and without proposals to make sterling reasonably stable and at least partially convertible when it is devalued. This was tantamount to inviting buyers of British goods to wait for lower prices, and to promote a speculation throughout the world against the British dollar reserves.

THERE IS no use crying over the milk that has been spilled. But a lot more will be spilled if the Administration cannot nerve itself to do what should have been done earlier, what should have been done quietly and carefully rather than improvise in the glare of world-wide publicity and propaganda.

It should propose a joint inquiry with the British authorities into the terms on which at some agreed rate of exchange for the dollar and for sterling, the two monies can be supported and made convertible for the current accounts of trade. For unless this can be done, the two great trading communities of the free world—the British and the American—will become very nearly closed to one another. Within these closed, and therefore depressed, systems there will be increasing restrictions and contraction rather than expansion and a growing freedom.

IF WE show ourselves willing to discuss and determined to work out such an arrangement, this in itself should go some considerable way toward reducing the danger of panic. It should also mitigate the defensive restrictions which will strangle world trade that the British must otherwise impose. It should do much to rebut the Communist propaganda which is, of course, exploiting the crisis as a demonstration that the Western World is caught in its own "contradictions" and irresolution.

THE TERMS and conditions of such an arrangement, if it can be worked out at all, cannot be popular on either side of the Atlantic. The two wars of this century have changed the economic relationship of all nations far more radically than the official theory or the popular belief have as yet recognized. It will require a costly, a painful, and a prolonged readjustment to work out a solvent relationship between postwar America and postwar Europe.

The real difficulties, which have been hidden temporarily and are now disclosing themselves, cannot be overcome by any politically agreeable device. Yet a failure by British and American statesmen to grasp the nettle, to deal with the problem of the crisis bravely and with perseverance, will surely entail consequences later that will be infinitely more disagreeable and more unpopular.

FROM THE SLEEVE—The card "holdout," a gambling device which shoots hidden cards into the hand when chest muscles are expanded, is demonstrated by Sergt. Audley Walsh, Ridgefield Park, N. J., policeman, who is nationally known for his study of gambling rackets. On the table are phony dice, marked cards and other crooked gambling paraphernalia trimmed minutely with fine instruments so they may be separated or selected by touch. Sometimes the face cards are tapered so that they are narrower at one end than at the other.

While the sharpers of yesteryear had to rely on their schemes and wits to deceive and swindle card players, today their shenanigans are facilitated by companies engaged in the manufacture of devices designed to hoodwink the foolish and unwary.

For a price, you may buy a "gimmick" for inserting in the sleeve or inside the coat or for fastening under the card table. This "gimmick" is simply a holdout device for storing certain cards until such time as they are needed to win a big stake.

The coat "gimmick" has two compartments and may be loaded with eight cards in each compartment. Other types are suitable for retaining up to five cards; the table model has four holders, each of which is suitable for storage of one or two cards.

It's Done With Mirrors

For $100 you can buy an ingenious contraption which will push one or several cards right into the hand from the confines of the sleeve. This devise may also be used to remove cards from the playing hand without the slightest fear of detection.

It consists of a number of jointed rods fitted inside the clothing so that a movement of the arm or foot will slide the card-holder in and out of the sleeve right into the palm of the hand holding the cards.

Another unusual accessory for sharpers is a specially constructed booklet of matches, fitted with a small mirror in an inclined position. This device, when placed just in front of a sharper, enables him to see the cards as he deals them. Sometimes the mirror is fitted into other small objects like cigarette lighters, rings and ashtrays.

For many Americans, from Presidents to newsboys, poker is a perfectly proper pastime. Most of us are rather pleased with the poker-playing propensities of President Truman, Cordell Hull, Thomas E. Dewey and other notables.

Hull Not Modest

There's something about poker playing that makes it as characteristically American as baseball and apple pie.

Cordell Hull expressed his attitude toward poker in no uncertain terms when his official biographer Col. Harold Hinton, asked the former Secretary of State for verification of an anecdote on the subject.

The story concerns Hull's ability as a poker player. It seems that during the Spanish-American War, Hull's poker was so good that he kept his company continually out of funds. When the story of this came back to Hinton, he found that Hull had crossed out the word "company" and had substituted the word "regiment."

Dewey, however, is a little sensitive on this point. A newspaperman found this out when he submitted to the New York Governor a complimentary article which pointed out that Dewey enjoyed the relaxation of a quiet poker game with friends of a Saturday night.

Judge Remains Unconvinced

Dewey praised one story, but suggested, "Now about those Saturday nights — couldn't you change it from poker to bridge?"

Several of Britain's leading card experts recently tried to prove that poker is a game of skill, not of chance, at a trial. Maurice Ellinger, one-time bridge champion of England, made the statement that bridge unquestionably demanded less skill than poker.

Edmund Furze, another card expert, testified that skill made it possible for him to play 500 sessions of poker a year without losing money." However, the judge was unconvinced.

It is difficult to understand how anyone can conclude that poker is a game of skill rather than of chance.

Poker hands are random distributions of cards in a game in which the highest set of cards, called the winning hand, is primarily determined by pure chance.

Odds Are Steep

Let's analyze an "honest" poker game. First, let's determine the chance of obtaining certain types of "hands" when five cards are dealt to each individual. (Later we can analyze draw poker.)

There are 2,598,960 different poker hands possible in the random selection of five cards from a deck of 52. Of these hands, there are 1,302,540 different ones with no pair or higher (called busts). Other hands contain one pair, two pair, etc.

So the odds are about even that you'll draw a bust. The odds against getting one pair are 4 to 3; against two pairs, 20 to 1; against three of a kind, 46 to 1; against a straight, 254 to 1; against a flush, 508 to 1; against a full house, 693 to 1; against four of a kind, 4164 to 1; against a straight flush, 72,192 to 1, and against a royal flush, 649,739 to 1.

In draw poker, the player is necessarily interested in knowing what chance he has of improving his hand. Suppose he holds a pair and draws three cards. The odds against bettering the hand at all are 7 to 3. The odds against his making two pairs are 4.9 to 1, against three of a kind 7.8 to 1, against a full house, 89 to 1, and against four of a kind, 359 to 1.

Odds Against "Kickers"

If a player holds a "kicker," or high third card, with one pair, the probabilities of getting three of a kind, a full house or four of a kind decrease while the chance of two pairs increases only slightly. So it is not advisable to hold a "kicker" to a pair.

The question of whether to discard the lower pair of two pairs in an attempt to improve the hand has caused considerable controversy. Actually, the circumstances of the moment and the actions of other players have much to do with the decision.

If you discard one pair, you have one chance in eight of getting a hand higher than two pairs, as against one chance in 12 of bettering the two pairs when you draw a single card.

If you were convinced it would take more than two pairs to win the game, you would be justified in discarding the lower pair. If you were convinced two pairs would win the game, you would not consider breaking up the original two pairs.

The chances of drawing one card to four of a single suit to make a flush are one in five. If you are drawing one card to an "outside" straight, you have one chance in six, but if it is an "inside" straight, you have only one chance in 12.

Drawing cards is only a part of poker. Some players are natural bluffers; others are very conservative. The size of the wager and the manner in which it is made often provide a clew to the player's hand. But invariably the highest hand is the winning hand, for few players allow themselves to be "bluffed out."

As for bridge, so many arguments about the probability of getting a perfect hand—13 spades—have arisen—that it is important to clear up the point. In dealing a hand of 13 cards from 52, the chance of getting 13 spades is 1 in 635,013,559,600.

publican, had previously made such a demand.

However, Committee Chairman Wood (D., Ga.) has made it known he opposed taking action on Kaufman or reopening the Hiss case before the commmittee.

One Democratic member of the committee, Represenative Moulder of Missouri, has joined Nixon and Velde at least to the extent of suggesting the Hiss investigattion, begun by the committee last year, be reopened.

Velde's statement brought quick retorts from former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, now president of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and Representative Celler (D., N. Y.), chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

Patterson said he could not believe that "responsible members of Congress are serious in suggesting or proposing that whenever they do not agree with the ruling of a judge at a trial, he could be haled before a congressional committee and investigated."

"That course," he added, "would be the end of the independence of the judiciary in this country."

In Velde's statement, the Illinois Representative replied to a previous criticism of Congressional reaction to Kaufman's rulings. He said:

"I am confident if Mr. Patterson will reread the Constitution of the United States, which specifically imposes on members of Congress—and no one else—the burden of surveillance on the conduct of Federal jurists, he will want to withdraw his untimely comment."

Celler said yesterday he could not conceive that "a congressional committee should poke its nose into the conduct of a trial by a Federal Court judge." Only impeachment proceedings would not be "unseemly," he declared, and that would be up to his Judiciary Committee. And as for that:

"I cannot conceive, from what I read in the press thus far, that any successful impeachment could be brought against Judge Kaufman."

Velde said he was not asking for impeachment proceedings "at this time" and added:

"The Judiciary Committee is headed by Congressman Celler, a former law partner of Kaufman, so there would not be much chance of that anyway."

In his formal statement, Velde charged "a marked bias for the defense that . . . bordered on judicial misconduct" in this "bill of particulars" from the trial record:

1. Hiss claimed he had known Whittaker Chambers only as "George Crosley" but Chambers testified Hiss knew him as "Carl." Kaufman during Mrs. Chambers' testimony "injected himself into her examination" to say that Chambers had testified he used the name "Crosley." Kaufman allowed "his unwarranted perversion of the testimony" to stand, "damaging to the prosecution and helpful to Hiss though it was."

2. Kaufman permitted parts of the grand jury record, containing Hiss' testimony, to be turned over to the defense, despite prosecution protests that such records were secret.

3. Kaufman permitted a defense psychiatrist to sit prominently in the courtroom and take notes, "supposedly on the mental condition" of Chambers, in full view of the jury. Although he ruled in chambers that the psychiatrist would not be allowed to testify, Kaufman let him take the stand while defense counsel read a 45-minute hypothetical question which "actually amounted to an illegal mid-trial summation . . . against the credibility of Whittaker Chambers." The judge ordered this question stricken from the record, but "the damage had already been done."

4. Although Kaufman permitted defense counsel to question Chambers about a suicide in his immediate family, he declined to permit Hiss to be questioned about two suicides in his immediate family.

5. Chambers testified he met Hiss through Harold Ware and J. Peters, but Kaufman would not permit the witness to identify them as "known Communist operators of Washington spy rings."

6. On the third day of the 26-day trial, the FBI was informed that the jury foreman had told his wife he would vote to acquit and would endeavor to sway other jurors. Three days later the same information was repeated. The prosecution endeavored to have the foreman replaced by an alternate juror but, when the defense objected, Kaufman declined to act. The foreman was one of the four holding out for acquittal.

Velde cited as one example of "gross impropriety" the action of Kaufman in leaning from the bench to shake hands "approvingly" with Supreme Court Justices Frankfurter and Reed when they appeared as character witnesses for Hiss. This, said Velde, "could only be prejudicial to the prosecution and helpful to Hiss."

Judge Kaufman Silent On Velde's Criticism

New York, July 10 (U.P.).—Federal Judge Samuel H. Kaufman, presiding judge at the Alger Hiss perjury trial, refused today to comment on a "bill of particulars" by Representative Velde (R., Ill.), accusing him of misconduct in the trial.

"I have not seen the 'bill of particulars,'" he said. "But I have no comment other than that the record speaks for itself."

want Federal support for private and parochial schools to "be honest and have a bill prepared which would grant such aid."

"Then we would know who among us would sanction the violation of the First Amendment to our Constitution," Barden said.

Critics have also charged that the bill would discriminate against Negro children. Barden declared that the bill "specifically protects against discrimination by providing that before any part of the Federal funds can be spent to better more fortunate schools, all of the public schools, both Negro and White, must be brought up to the minimum standard of a $60 per year outlay per pupil."

Beran Is Declared Under Lock and Key

Prague, July 10 (AP).—Communist government police have Roman Catholic Archbishop Joseph Beran literally under lock and key in his Prague palace, a high church leader said today.

"It's like a cell," the churchman said after visiting the anti-Communist primate.

"A plainsclothesman unlocks the door to let you in and locks it upon the archbishop when you leave."

Archbishop Beran, highest-ranking Catholic in Czechoslovakia and leader in the church's struggle against government control, has not emerged from his police-guarded palace since June 19. On that day he was hooted off his throne in St. Vitus Cathedral by Communist hecklers.

Despite government statements that he is free to leave his palace, Archbishop Beran in his last pastoral letter described himself as a semicaptive.

The high church source said the archbishop intends to sit tight in his palace as a "gesture of protest against the government actions against the church."

"If he left he undoubtedly would be locked out and this symbol of protest would be lost," the churchman added.

He described the stocky, 60-year-old primate as in good health and unbroken spirit.

The primate and his bishops were accused by the official Communist Party organ of "having evoked a conflict and declared war upon the people's democratic government."

The charge in the party newspaper Rude Pravo was coupled with a denial that religious freedom in Czechoslovakia is restricted.

Japanese Hail Plan to Give Formosa Back

Tokyo, July 10 (U.P.).—The Japanese have openly welcomed a suggestion made in a Washington Post editorial that Formosa be returned to Japan pending the signing of peace treaties. There was also reason to believe the idea might be well received in Allied headquarters.

While the editorial suggested Formosa be returned to Japan to prevent Chiang Kai-shek and the Chinese Nationalists from using it as a base in China's civil war, the idea would be welcomed here for other reasons.

The Japanese want Formosa back because the Japanese and Formosan economies formerly were closely linked and Nippon could make good use of those old ties today.

Allied officials here might want Formosa back to prevent the Nationalists from losing the island which is known to be looked upon by some high officials here as a base that the United States should control.

American officials obviously have been ordered not to discuss Formosa for no question will cause generals to turn mute quicker—a clear indication they are interested in the question.

(Editor's note: The suggestion that Formosa be returned to Japan was first made in The Washington Post last January and has been repeated a number of times since, the most recent last Saturday in an editorial entitled "Chiang in Formosa.")

"The similarity of problems confronting each other—how to provide the peoples of China and the Philippines with the greatest measure of prosperity and contentment as the basic requirement of a life of peace—has made the President and the Generalissimo apparently fast and warm friends.

"They will continue their conversations tomorrow."

Asked what the Philippine's reaction would be to possible establishment of a Chinese government-in-exile in this country, Quirino said:

"We cannot refuse him if he has such a plan, but I do not think the Generalissimo has such a plan."

Stalin's Son Boasts Russians Have World's Best Air Force

Moscow, July 10 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen. Vassily Stalin, son of Premier Josef Stalin, said today that Russian airplane builders lead the world and that "our fliers fly farther, faster and higher than anybody."

He said Russia pioneered in all forms of aviation and invented the first airplane, the first helicopter and the first jet-propelled aircraft.

The Generalissimo's son was interviewed by Tass news agency in connection with the approaching celebration of Russia's aviation day.

He disclosed that a great air show on Air Force Day will include a sham battle by jet-propelled planes. Columns of bombers and jet-propelled planes will fly over Tushino airport.

Vassily Stalin recently was promoted from major general to lieutenant general. He was a combat pilot during the war, commanding air regiments in the battles of Smolensk, Kaunas and Koenigsberg.

"All development of Soviet aviation and all success in creating the world's best machines are inseparably connected with the name of Comrade (Josef) Stalin," his son declared.

Owing to Premier Stalin's extraordinary contribution in building up the world's best air force, the son continued, "the Soviet people in gratitude . . . termed our air force the Stalinite air force, and its fliers Stalinite falcons."

IS ALL YOUR bathing DONE IN A BATHTUB?

BECAUSE OF—PSORIASIS
ENEMY OF BEAUTY

If bathing suits and other revealing attire are denied you because of psoriasis lesions—try SIROIL. It may open a new joyous, fun filled world to you as it has to so many others. SIROIL tends to remove the crusts and scales of psoriasis which are external in character and located on the outer layer of the skin. If or when your psoriasis lesions recur, light applications of SIROIL will help keep them under control. Applied externally, SIROIL does not stain clothing or bed linens, nor does it interfere in any way with your daily routine. Try it. Certainly it's worth a trial, particularly since it's offered to you on a two-weeks'-satisfaction-or-money refunded basis.

"It's not our hat!"

The Southern Railway doesn't pass the hat for your tax doll.

Other forms of commercial transportation use highways, airports and waterways that are built and maintained with your tax dollars—and ours.

But railroads are strictly on their own. Every penny they spend to build and maintain their own steel "highways" comes right out of the railroads' pockets—not yours.

We're glad we are not in the "hat-passing" class. We prefer to stand on our own financial feet in the old-fashioned American way. And we believe that if there were no hat-passers in the transportation business it would be better for you and for all America

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

NEW YORK, July 10.—Larry MacPhail, who put much of his baseball profits into his Maryland horse-breeding farm, shortly will name a colt in honor of Joe DiMaggio . . . Appropriately enough, it will be sired by MacPhail's stallion Grand Slam . . . So unlike Bob Feller who withdrew from the 1947-48 All-Star games, DiMaggio wrote American League Manager Lou Boudreau a note thanking him for selecting him on the 1949 team . . . The major leagues' five colored ball players are batting .800 in the All-Star league, with four of them, Jackie Robinson, Larry Doby, Don Newcombe and Roy Campanella being honored with places. Only Satchel Paige failed to make it . . . The increase in fan-participation in big league games, meaning the screwballs who run on the field to talk to players and get autographs, is being blamed on television. They want to get into the act in front of the cameras . . . Chuck Stobbs, the expensive Boston rookie pitcher who beat the Nats the other night, was licked in his last school game two years ago by Alexandria (Va.) High. His dad and brother were chased off the bench for protesting too many decisions.

POVICH

THE BELIEVABLE report is that when Joe Louis resigned his world heavyweight title, he forced the International Boxing Club to give him 10 per cent of the receipts of all future heavyweight bouts for 10 years . . . It was the kind of an agreement that Jimmy Braddock had with Mike Jacobs before he finally consented to risk his title against Louis in 1936 . . . The Redskins' trade of Bob Nussbaumer to the Chicago Cardinals recalls that he was their best backfield threat in 1947, before he was mysteriously shifted to defense last season . . . Clark Griffith is weakening in the Mickey Haefner case and may reinstate him with the Nats during the two-week cooling off period necessitated by the fact that Haefner's name can't go on the waiver list before July 20 . . . The late American League records indicate that Gerry Priddy, hitting .311 and out-batting Cass Michaels of the White Sox, got a bum deal when he wasn't named as the American League's All-Star second baseman . . . American League President Will Harridge declares he'd rather see his league win the All-Star game than the World Series . . . Manager Billy Southworth has orders from National League President Ford Frick to forget about substituting freely, and use his best ball club all Tuesday afternoon.

MAJOR LEAGUE CLUB owners are under orders not to discuss the topics of the court suits baseball is now facing . . . that subject occupied the owners more than any other in their league meetings here today; and will be taken up at the joint meeting tomorrow. They are worried . . . the players' committee which tomorrow will ask the club owners to intercede with the Internal Revenue Department, will get short shrift . . . the players, seeking to deduct expenses from income because they have to maintain homes in two places during the baseball season, will be told to plead their own case with the Government . . . Palestinian, winner of yesterday's $38,000 Empire City Handicap which lifted his earnings to $146,000, could have been claimed for $7500 last summer . . . Baseball's pension fund, which guarantees $100 a month for life starting at the age of 50, players who have been in the majors for 10 years is running so low the magnates are alarmed . . . They are counting on new revenue from the sales of television rights to the All-Star game under an arrangement by which the pictures will be piped into theaters . . . The top United States pros can't afford to play in the British Open because they have to pass up too much prize-money in American tournaments.

MEL OTT, in television quiz the other day, declared he would revise his all-time major league outfield, pulling Tris Speaker from center field and replacing him with Joe DiMaggio playing between Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth . . . Speaker fans are screaming, and justifiably. DiMag isn't that good . . . The Dodgers are using a copy of the Boudreau shift against Ted Williams to stop Johnny Mize, the Giants' dead right-field hitter . . . If Ray Robinson loses his world welterweight title to Kid Gavilan tomorrow night in Philadelphia, he has his choice of retiring either to his restaurant business or his barber shop . . . The Nats, who are running 60,000 ahead of their home attendance last year, are far off on road games crowds . . . A break-down of the expenses of operating a club like the Yankees shows that 28 per cent of its revenue is spent on player-salaries, 24 per cent goes for taxes . . . Hank Thompson, the colored second baseman signed by the Giants, is the same lad who had a tryout with the Browns in 1946 and flopped . . . American League pitchers have cooled off Johnny Groth, the Tigers' early-season hitting sensation, by giving him "the swerve" or curve balls. His hitting has dropped to .258.

Errors Help Tribe Whip Browns, 7-4

St. Louis, July 10 (AP).—Two errors by Ned Garver on Lou Boudreau's sacrifice in the fifth helped the Cleveland Indians to a two-run lead and the Indians went on to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 4, today. The game was called off at the end of the sixth frame because of rain and a scheduled second contest was postponed.

Jack Graham put the Brownies in front in the first with a blow into the stands with two mates on base, but the Indians got to Garver in the second.

Joe Gordon walked, Lou Boudreau doubled him home and Jim Hegan hit a single, scoring Boudreau.

In the third, a single by Larry Doby, a wild pitch by Garver putting Doby on second and a hit by Gordon tied the contest as Doby scored.

Doby opened the fifth for Cleveland with a single. Gordon also singled putting Doby on second. Then Boudreau bunted to Garver. Garver tried to catch Doby at third but threw wild and two runs scored. Boudreau was credited with a sacrifice on the play.

Boudreau singled home Mickey Vernon in the top of the sixth and Jack Graham hit his fifteenth homer of the season—this time with the bases empty—to complete the scoring.

Rain came in the last half of the seventh. The rain ended later but the field was considered too wet to continue, so the came officially reverted back to the end of the sixth.

Detroit Wins, 1-0 Drops Opener, 4-2

Chicago, July 10 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers split a double-header with the Chicago White Sox by winning the second game, 1-0, after losing the opener, 4-2, before 24,702 persons today.

Bill Wight pitched the White Sox to a victory in the first game. The White Sox pounded Hal Newhouser, who suffered his seventh loss, for two run spurts in the first and fourth innings.

Art Houlteman won the second in a duel with Randy Gumpert.

A first inning double by Vic Wertz—one of two hits Randy Gumpert surrendered in pitching his twelfth complete game—followed a base on balls to Pat Mullin to account for the only run of the second game.

Wertz drove his double to the foot of the right field fence after Mullin walked with two out. Art Houtteman checked the White Sox on four singles along with giving up four base on balls.

Williams, Dom DiMag Hit Homers

Boston, July 10 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox wrapped up a doubleheader by 8-5 and 11-10 margins over the Philadelphia Atheltics at Fenway Park today before a rained-on but over-patient 32,108 crowd. The Sox now have won seven in a row.

The opening game, delayed at the outset for 38 minutes by rain and interrupted, for the same reason, for 68 minutes, midway, was clinched in the fourth inning when Dom DiMaggio belted a two-on homer as the Bosox uncorked a five-run rally.

DiMaggio also collected a double and a single and in the nightcap he got one for five to extend his consecutive game hitting streak to 14 games, thereby equalling a 1949 club record set earlier by Johnny Pesky.

During the second game, Ted Williams bashed his 20th homer into the right field stands, to share the major leagues' top honors in that department.

All of the first-game Philadelphia runs resulted from two homers by Sam Chapman, his 12th and 13th, and one by Hank Majeski.

The second game was called at the end of seven and a half innings by plate umpire Cal Hubbard because of darkness. At the time there appeared to be just as much daylight left as there had been at any time during the cloudy and overlong afternoon.

After being informed of Hubbard's ruling, which came just as the Athletics appeared rolling, after wiping out a 7-0 lead, the venerable Connie Mack notified Hubbard he was protesting his ruling.

Yanks' Games Rained Out

Everything's 'Jake' Behind Bat for Nats As Early Provides New Tonic for Club

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

NEW YORK, July 10.—There can be no great pride-taking in the Nats' over-all accomplishments this season, but at least right now everything is Jake behind the bat—Jake Early, that is.

It may be more than a coincidence that since Early was summoned from Chattanooga the other day, Joe Kuhel's club has done moderately well, and with more fervor. They carried the Yankees to 12 innings on Friday, and then licked 'em with five runs in the ninth on Saturday.

Early didn't drive in any winning runs but his presence has been a tonic. He doesn't know how to play anything but enthusiastic baseball, and it has been slightly contagious, to Kuhel's gratification.

Jake's come-back to the Nats was something of a surprise, to start with. He did have a sore arm in spring training, and that was given as the excuse for his outright release the day before the season opened, but the fact is he was in Kuhel's doghouse otherwise.

The Nats didn't keep any strings on Early. He wound up with their Chattanooga farm team because nobody else offered him a job. Thus it was the Nats regained property rights to him.

They called him in last week when Kuhel consented to give him another try at the majors—a sort of probationary thing. In his favor, too, was the fact that he wowed 'em at Chattanooga with his hitting and throwing.

Middlecoff Beats Snead By One Stroke

Reading, Pa., July 10 (AP).—Cary Middlecoff sank an all-important putt today and Sammy Snead didn't. The result was that the Memphis dentist who holds the National Open golf championship took $2600 first money in the Reading Open by one stroke.

In as tense a finish as you could concoct for any golf tournament, the Open champion and Snead, the PGA champion, reached the final green on exactly even terms. The championship and the $700 difference between first and second money hung on two short putts.

Middlecoff made his six footer for a four-under-par 66 on the final round and a 72-hole total of 266. Snead's putt was slightly shorter—about 4 feet—and, with the pressure on Sammy succumbed to his old habit of missing the short ones. The ball rimmed the cup but wouldn't drop. He finished with a round of 67 and a 267 total.

Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., playing with Snead, matched Middlecoff's finishing 66 and took third money with 274. Herman Keiser of St. Andrews, Ill., came in one stroke behind him and Henry Ransom, also of St. Andrews, and Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., tied with 276's.

The victory also put Middlecoff back on top of the year's "official" money winning list with a total of $18,749.57 to Snead's $18,360.83.

Scores of the leaders, with money prizes:
Cary Middlecoff, jr., Memphis, Tenn., 67, 65, 65, 66—263: $2600.
Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, 63, 71, 66, 67—267: $1900.
Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C., 67, 73, 68, 66—274: $1400.
Herman Keiser, St. Andrews, Ill., 69, 73, 68, 65—275: $1150.
Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., 69, 65, 70, 72—276: $950.
Henry Ransom, St. Andrews, Ill., 68, 70, 70, 68—276: $950.
Fred Haas, jr., New Orleans, La., 69, 67, 73, 68—277: $750.

Comiskey Park Gets Game in '50

New York, July 10.—Chicago's Comiskey Park, will be the scene of the 1950 major league All-Star game it was learned today.

Club owners will not meet tomorrow to announce the site but it was learned that Chicago is the choice. Washington had applied for the game but was voted down. Comiskey Park is the site of the original All-Star game in 1933.

Dodgers Win One, Cards Two

Bums Defeat Giants, 7 to 3

Brooklyn, July 10 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers protected their National League lead over the St. Louis Cardinals today, beating the New York Giants, 7-3, in the rain and mud at Ebbets Field.

The Bröks scored twice in the seventh on Duke Snider's triple, Jackie Robinson's single, a sacrifice and Carl Furillo's single to break a 3-3 tie and wrap it up.

The game that started in a drizzle, was played through pouring rain on a drenched field before 17,896 fans.

Preacher Roe, going after his eighth straight, worked the first six innings and went out with the score tied at 3-all. Erv Palica finished and was credited with the victory, his fourth. He pitched three shutout innings.

Top Reds, 4-2, 7-4; Trail Half Game

Cincinnati, July 10 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals edged within a half-game of National League leading Brooklyn today by trimming the Cincinnati Reds in both games of a doubleheader, 4-2 and 7-4. Harry Brecheen went the route for the Cards in the opener and Alpha Brazle won the nightcap, although he had to have relief in the ninth when the Reds opened with a home run by Homer Howell and a single by Harry Walker, Jerry Staley stopped the threat.

The twin victory today gave St. Louis a clean sweep of the four-game series here.

Ken Raffensberger, who usually is a tough customer for the Cards to handle, was the pitching victim in the opener.

For five innings it looked as if he might be on his way to another triumph over St. Louis. In the sixth, however, the Cards clubbed him for four hits and were aided by a passed ball to pick up two runs and tie the score. Stan Musial scored one of the tallies on a double by Eddie Kazak and Kazak raced home on Marty Marion's single.

Roller Skating Championships Open Tonight

Contestants from every State in the Union plus a few from Canada have filed entry for the American Amateur Roller Skating Championships opening tonight at 9:30 at Uline Arena.

The Canadian contingent led by John Grundy, will be competing in their first American championships.

Three representatives of Congress, all former college athletes, will get things off to an official start. The Congressmen are Peter W. Rodino, jr., Hugh Addonizio, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr.

Big Train's Son Slugger

The late Walter Johnson's son, Bob, did credit to his father's memory yesterday by slapping a grand slam home run in the first inning and following it up with another in the fourth with two aboard to drive in seven runs and pace Rockville to a 15-0 shutout over Silver Spring in the Montgomery County League yesterday at Rockville.

Indian Uprising Gives Pirates Some Business

Pittsburgh, July 10 (AP).—A modern Indian uprising started in Akron, Ohio, and ended in Pittsburgh today.

"Big Chief" Leo Santilli, a baseball fan who doubles as a jeweler at Akron, led some 150 Ohioans into the Steel City via a special train. Banners said it was the "Disgruntled Fans' Special."

Santilli, it seems, is miffed at the Cleveland Indians' management and President Bill Veeck in particular. He said he sent in $8100 in checks to buy 1949 season tickets from the Indians and the Indians' management returned the checks.

"The hell with Bob Hope—Hurrah for Bing Crosby," read banners carried by the Ohioans as they got off the train.

Decorators Win, Tie at Lancaster

Lancaster, Pa., July 10.—The Takoma Decorators, girl softballers, defeated the Lancaster Eagles, leaders of the Tri-County Girls Softball League, here today, 6 to 3.

In the second game of a scheduled twin bill, the Washington team battled the Eagles in a scoreless tie, the contest being called at the end of the sixth

Vico Fined $100, Suspended 10 Days For Debate With Ump

Chicago, July 10 (AP).—Will Harridge, American League president, has suspended George Vico, Detroit first baseman, for 10 days and fined him $100 for throwing his bat into a box seat during an argument with an umpire.

Red Rolfe, Tiger manager, received notification of the suspension just before today's double-header with the Chicago White Sox. The incident occurred in Comiskey Park during the third inning of Friday night's game.

Negotiates Through Del Webb

Wealthy Coloradan Cattleman Reported Dickering to Buy Cleveland Indians

Denver, July 10 (AP).—Dan Thornton, wealthy Colorado cattleman, is dickering for the world champion Cleveland Indian baseball holdings, the Rocky Mountain News said today in a copyright story.

Thornton was quoted by the News as saying he had been negotiating through Del Webb, coowner of the New York Yankees, and long time friend of Thornton's.

The story reported that Thornton said:

"Del Webb has been talking with Bill Veeck and Hank Greenberg and called Saturday morning and said we are getting closer together." (Veeck is president of the Indians' organization and Greenberg is a major stockholder.)

"The deal is to be in excess of two million dollars, although we aren't yet together on the price. Veeck still has his price pretty high."

The News said Thornton, 39-year-old one-time movie actor, became interested in buying the Cleveland club and minor league affiliates while visiting with Webb during the national Governors' conference two weeks ago in Colorado Springs. Both were vacationing there.

Thornton explained, the news said:

"Del and I have been friends many years, and I respect his judgment. He thinks Cleveland's a good buy and I think so, too."

The newspaper said Thornton reported Webb will see Veeck later this week and that the Colorado ranchman will probably head east immediately thereafter.

The News added that Thornton said "Del talked to Greenberg last Thursday and apparently he is agreeable to the idea."

Thornton, the News said, will probably have two associates in the deal but did not reveal their names. He added: "I expect to have controlling interest."

Thornton is a Texas-born-and-bred cattleman. He moved from Lubbock, Tex., to Gunnison, Colo., about six years ago. He has been a scientific breeder of Hereford cattle. He was an agriculture student at Texas A. & M., Texas Tech and University of California at Los Angeles.

He auctioned 380 purebreds for $875,940 at a sale at his 4000-acre ranch in September, 1947. He is not talkative about his brief career as a movie player.

Cubs Whip Pittsburgh, 8-6 and 9-6

Pittsburgh, July 10 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs put a decisive halt to the Pirate eight-game win streak today, sweeping both ends of a double-header, 8 to 6 and 9 to 6. The nightcap was an abbreviated six-inning affair, cut short by Pennsylvania's Sunday curfew law.

Pittsburgh's Ralph Kiner smashed out two home runs in the opener to bring his season total to 23.

Robinson Is Sure He'll Make Weight

Philadelphia, July 10 (AP).—Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson, still struggling to make weight after three weeks of training, risks his crown tomorrow night against hustling, young Kid Gavilan of Cuba in a 15-rounder in Mammoth Municipal Stadium.

It will be a double battle for the silky smooth titleholder from Harlem. The 28-year-old welter boss hasn't had to make 147 pounds since he last defended his title against Bernie Docusen in Chicago last June. It was an ordeal for him then and it's apparently not any easier now despite the optimistic declarations by his brain trust.

At 11 a. m. (EST) tomorrow, Sugar Ray will try to make the 147-pound division limit at the official weigh-in ceremony at the Arena. At 9 p. m. (EST) he will step into the ring against one of the most improved fighters in the business.

The 23-year-old Gavilan is rated by competent observers as at least 25 per cent better than he was last September when Robinson beat him in a nontitle ten in New York's Yankee Stadium.

But the New York Negro scaled 150½ for that fracas and he's been working on his lean, 5 feet 11 inches frame for the last three weeks to get down to the limit. The champ tipped the beam at 147½ pounds after a workout at Pompton Lakes, N. J., last night and today he made an unusual move so close to a fight by boxing four rounds.

If necessary, he will work out in a gym here in the morning to insure making the weight.

Robinson will leave Pompton Lakes, N. J., tonight. Gavilan, a natural welter, already is below the weight limit. He arrived in Philadelphia last night and went into seclusion.

The champion still is a solid choice to retain the title he won in December, 1946, but a large surge of betting support for the 23-year-old contender has shortened the price from 1 to 2 to 5 to 8. It's been years since the slick Sugarman has gone into the ring at anything less than 1 to 3.

One of the greatest fighters of his generation, Robinson has only lost once in 98 bouts. He was defeated by Jake Lamotta once but beat the present middleweight boss four times.

Facts, Figures In Robinson Bout

Facts and figures on the Sugar Ray Robinson-Kid Gavilan welterweight title fight in Philadelphia tonight:

Wilson, Gardner Win Alexandria Golf Title

Garlem, Robison Beaten 2 and 1

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Col. Jim Wilson, Army-Navy County Club, and Jim Gardner, Washington Golf and Country Club, annexed the Alexandria Invitational fourball championship at Belle Haven yesterday defeating Ernie Garlem and Hank Robison, two publinx golfers, 2 and 1 for the title.

Wilson and Gardner combined their talents for a best ball of 66 while the best Garlem and Robison could muster was an even 70.

The match was tied up going to the thirteenth hole with both teams having won one hole and halved the rest. On the thirteenth hole Garlem and Robison both took bogeys while Wilson and Gardner were both down in the regulation four. On the fourteenth Wilson drove the green and sank an 11-foot putt for a birdie deuce which Garlem and Robison couldn't match. Wilson and Gardner held this advantage until the seventeenth and won there, 2 and 1.

The Chevy Chase team of Bobby Brownell and Ralph Bogart trounced Tommy Murfee and Bill Rendleman, 6 and 5, to take the championship consolation. Doug Jackson and Willie Dean, Indian Spring, outlasted Frank Battista and Julian Williams in the finals of the second flight to win 1 up after 25 holes. Both of these teams had to play extra holes in the morning round and were all in at the end of the afternoon.

The Belle Haven team of Frank Woolley and Joe Daniels came through to win the second flight consolation bracket defeating Roy Smith and J. Forrest, 3 and 2.

SEMIFINALS
CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT — Wilson and Gardner defeated Emmons and Kallio, 2 and 1; Garlem and Robison defeated Snook and Harrington, 4 and 2.

SECOND CONSOLATION — Smith and Forrest defeated Martin and Spaulding, 3 and 2; Woolley and Daniels defeated Webb and Blouin, 1 up.

FINALS
CHAMPIONSHIP—Wilson and Gardner defeated Garlem and Robison, 2 and 1.

CHAMPIONSHIP CONSOLATION — Bogart and Brownell defeated Rendleman and Murfee, 6 and 5.

SECOND FLIGHT—Dean and Jackson defeated Williams and Battista, 1 up, in 25 holes.

SECOND CONSOLATION—Woolley and Daniels defeated Smith and Forrest, 3 and 2.

Brylawski Wins, 2 and 1, For Title

Buddie Brylawski shot a 70 yesterday to defeat Howard Nordlinger, 2 and 1, for the Woodmont Country Club championship. Nordlinger carded a 73.

Dr. Maxwell Hurston defeated Larry Jacobs, 2 and 1, to win in Class B, while the Class C title went to Ellis Block, who finished 1 up over Alex Forman. Class D was won by Ben Ourisman who defeated Bill Kaplowitz, 1 up.

Jack Friedlander and Sam Block combined to win the two-ball championship with a 79—19—60. It was a selective drive alternate shot event.

MANOR—Two foursomes tied for the aggregate prize. J. R. Daily, William Kesson, V. T. Curtis, and Ed Kekenas shot 360-87—273 to match George Jones, A. M. Pickett, F. E. Lambert and N. H. Glidwell, 338-65—273.

INDIAN SPRING—Dick Schattman and Mrs. Jules Friedenson shot a 37-38—77 to go with their handicap of 14 for a 63 net to win the mixed scotch foursome event. Mr. and Mrs. Murray Sagman had 45-44—89-24—65 to take second.

A three-way tie for low gross will be played off next Sunday among Mildred Jorg and Elliott Spencer; Mrs. K. S. Giles and William McFerren; and Mrs. John Long and N. H. O'Malley, all of whom had 77s.

WASHINGTON—Play starts tomorrow in the Miller Cup for players with handicaps from 6 to 11. Thirty-two will participate, with one match to be played every week.

ARGYLE—A. W. Reynolds and Vance Lund defeated Len Burrage, and Dick Bedell, 1 up, and Fred Murray and O. M. Clark downed H. B. Foy and W. J. Nolan in the semifinals of the two-man team championships.

FAIRFAX—K. M. Skaggs, 3510 A st. se. tied the course record with a 66. He had 5 birdies, 1 eagle and 2 bogeys in the round. The eagle came on the No. 5 hole, an uphill 510 yarder. The record was set last year by Bob Morris.

FORT DUPONT—P. B. Butler, jr., won the blind bogey tournament with a 90. Max Marr's 102-18—91 was second and Stephen Smith shot a 91 from scratch to tie for second.

CONGRESSIONAL — H. K. Beck and E. S. Draper defeated W. E. Gallagher, 3 and 2, in the second round of the two-man team championships. In other second round matches, G. L. Cornell and Clyde Hagerty beat Dr. W. D. Willey and W. H. Wentzel, 1 up; H. R. Helsing and J. D. Kendall, jr, defeated J. S. Geddes and C. G. Brown, 1 up; Tom Wheeler and Bill Shea downed the defending champions Charlie Given and Billy Evans, 1 up.

In the second flight L. A. Jennings and J. M. Young defeated J. Cosgrove and J. W. Flatley, 4 and 2; W. N. Schoenfelder and Dr. W. P. Wilcox defeated J. Winston and H. E. Radcliffe, 2 and 1; A. E. Allen and Dwight Longley defeated E. V. Brumfiel and Elmer Jenkins, 1 up; W. G. Myers and V. A. Johnson defeated F. B. Helan and C. H. Maher, 3 and 2.

The tournament semifinals and finals will be conducted next weekend.

At Columbia

Welsh, Lynch Win D. C. Doubles Title

By Jules Loh

Experience triumphed yesterday as Barney Welsh and Hugh Lynch won the District of Columbia Men's Doubles Championship by downing Gil Bogley and Dick Squires, 2—6, 6—3, 6—3, 2—6, 6—3, at Columbia Country Club.

Although the winners were seeded second and the losers fourth, the match was in a sense an upset by virtue of the Bogley-Squires win over the top ranked Don Leavens-Jim Thackara duet in the semifinals Saturday.

For Welsh it was a clean sweep of D. C. titles. He won the singles crown Saturday in five sets with Thackara.

Yesterday the younger team made the first service break when Bogley angled one of his many volleys on a smooth poach to go into a 2—1 lead in the first set. Squires put away an overhead on set point to win it 6—2.

Lynch came to life at the net in the second set and won the first game on four volleys. Then in the ninth game he volleyed a clean winner for another 6—3 win and a 2—1 edge in sets.

A controversy over disputed baseline calls and foot faults seemed to rattle the younger crew as the match went into the rubber set.

Welsh broke Bogley's serve in the fourth game and then won his own and took a 3-2 lead. Bogley's service twist was too much for Welsh to handle and he evened the set at three games apiece.

Lynch and Welsh commenced a lobbying policy and capitalized on their opponents' errors to take the next two games. Barney knocked match point over the baseline to make the score in the ninth game 40-30. Then he smashed an unretrievable overhead for the winner.

It was the first tournament the Welsh-Lynch combination has won in two years of being among the three top seeded teams.

AT CHARLES TOWN

Dear Folks:

Horses are named for many things, including nothing. For instance, owners have been known to take baby's building blocks, toss them against the wall and put the first 14 letters together. Thus some horse is listed as Tryxzeriostguy. Inasmuch as tickets are now bought by tote numbers it isn't so bad. However, some horses are named after long study and generally have classical ring. Once in a while somebody comes up with a really apt monicker. For instance, a 3-year-old went to the post for the first time last Saturday. He is designated as Cotton Foot, and he comes by the name naturally, having four white feet. The Monday program offers the final racing for the spring-summer season here. See you on the rail.

Woman Photographer Gets Player To Pose and Ball Slips by Him

Frankfurt, Germany, July 10 (U.P.).—A blonde woman photographer knocked a big-league soccer team out of the first division, it was learned today.

"Look at the birdie, please," she said to Goalie Schepper, defending the Offenbach Kickers' net against the onslaught of V. F. R. Mannheim in a crucial semifinal game at Gelsenkirchen. He did. He also gave her a great big grin.

The shutter clicked. So did the ball—right into the net. Schepper soon quit smiling. It was the winning goal for Mannheim.

Early's Play Tonic to Nats

He batted only .275, but his hits were wonderfully timed.

There's no doubt, now, that Jake is the Nats' best catcher. For that matter, he always was. Two days out of the minors, and he was installed in the No. 1 catching job by Kuhel, over the heads of Al Evans and Ralph Weigel. It is significant that it was Early who was behind the bat in both Yankee games.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees, with catching troubles of his own, must have envied the Nats in that department during the two games here. He watched the Nats steal three bases against Yogi Berra in three attempts, and had to be impressed when Early's bull-whip threw out the only two Yanks who tried to steal, by wide margins.

The Nats took no beating today, except a financial one. A day-long rain washed out the scheduled double header with the Yanks, and a prospective 50,000 crowd.

IN SHORT . . . most of the Nats entrained for Washington today, reveling in a four-day vacation occasioned by the All-Star game interlude . . .

Crash Marks Races At Colonial Beach

By Happy Walker

Colonial Beach, Va., July 10.—A near serious accident marked the program here today as the Colonial Beach Yacht Club held its second annual regatta.

It occurred in the waning hours of a long racing schedule when John Wege, Washington, took the wake of the leading boat at the first turn in the B runabout event.

As Wege was whirled around, heading into the oncoming boats, he was struck head-on by A. D. Edelbrute, Norfolk, Va., driving the Miss Ebe II. The crash completely demolished the starboard of the Wege boat.

However, neither Wege or his mechanic, Carter Parrish, were seriously hurt, but both were considerably shaken up.

In the same event Howard Durm, Annapolis, Md., in his Crybaby, took both heats for a total of 800 points. C. B. Buchanan, Norfolk, Va., took second with 600 points while Jack Vail, also of Norfolk, captured the third spot and 395 points.

In the 48-cubic inch hydro and runabout class which drew a star studded field of a dozen entries, Lawrence Byedel, Baltimore, Md., took first place with 700 points in the hydro class while J. M. van-Deman Wanamassa, New York, took 800 points in the runabout class. Earl Hildebrand, of Washington, captured second place and 300 points in the first heat only to miss out in the second by motor trouble.

Jerry Powell, Richmond grocery executive, annexed the highest points for the day with a perfect record of 1600, taking two firsts in his 135 hydroplane Skedoodle and 800 points in his 225 hydroplane Skedaddle. In the C and D racing runabouts, Harvey Link, Baltimore, Md., took top honors in both heats for 800 points. In the F service runabouts, R. A. Dowdy, Grafty, N. C., mustered two wins and 800 points. Aubrey Thacker, Washington, driving Jezebel VI, took third place in the C and D runabouts first heat only to be outdistanced in the second heat turning back to aid the ill-fated Wege entry.

The day's events were concluded with trophy presentation at the yacht club. Martin Lunsford, general chairman, presided.

D. C. Skippers Win Honors At Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 10.—Potomac River skippers today won a major share of silverware in Annapolis Yacht Club's annual sail regatta which ended in a rush of wind and capsizings.

Final races were sailed in Severn River after rough seas out in the Chesapeake forced the larger classes to join the smaller windjammers on inside courses. The Weather Bureau ordered small craft warnings posted in the face of a fresh southerly wind.

Washington area sailors earning top honors were:

Bobbie Orme, Corinthian Yacht Club, Chesapeake 20's class;

Len Penso, Columbia Y. C. Penguins;

Harvey Lekson, Columbia, Y. C. Comets;

Dr. Walter Lawson, Columbia, Thistles, and Arthur Carnduff, Capital Y. C. Lightnings.

Pete Gaillard, with his brother Dave as crew, of Washington, missed out for first in the fast star class when their flapper was disqualified as a result of a protest by another star skipper in yesterday's opening race.

Other series winners who earned prizes presented by Vice Commodore Howard Benson were Chauncey Willis, Norfolk, Hampton one-designs; Ben Colonna, Norfolk, moths; Ed Le Brun, Baltimore, Snipes, and Hugh Wallis, West River, Chesapeake 16's.

Sculpturing tools are simple—a pen knife or paring knife, an orangewood fingernail stick, a nail file and perhaps a bobbypin are all that are needed.

Get a box or tray over which to hold the cake of soap while working. Now outline your drawing with the pointed stick on the bar of soap. Next, cut away the soap with a knife, roughing out the animal or figure you are designing. Keep turning the model and when you are pleased with the form, work out the details.

If you do not feel able to make your own drawing, simply trace a figure on the soap.

Maryland Penal Releases Studied

Baltimore, July 10 (AP).—The Board of Correction said yesterday it may ask the Maryland General Assembly for help in solving the problem of release and readjustment of prisoners from Maryland penal institutions.

It announced plans for a series of conferences with other State agencies to see what can be done about bridging "the gap between the release of a prisoner and his return to a law-abiding life."

Association Critical

The announcement followed a special board meeting. Last Friday the Prisoners Aid Association criticized the manner in which releases are now handled.

Officers of the association charged that in some instances prisoners are set free at midnight, without adequate clothing or enough money to get home.

If "the studies and conferences which are planned" show a need for revamping the State's penal laws for "implementation of financial resources," the General Assembly will be asked to help, the board said.

Among those it mentioned as possible parties in the proposed survey are the wardens and superintendents of penal institutions, Attorney General Hall Hammond, parole officials, and officers of the Prisoners Aid Association.

"The board believes that some results can be achieved by the cooperation of all of the agencies involved," the statement read.

"If, however, the studies and conferences which are planned show the need of additional legislation and implementation of financial resources of any of the agencies, the board hopes that an integrated program will be presented by agreement of all the interested groups in ample time for consideration before the next meeting of the General Assembly," it added.

WFTU to Meet in China

Milan, Italy, July 10 (U.P.).—The Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions will meet in Red-occupied Peiping, China, in November, it was announced tonight at the conclusion of a 10-day WFTU congress.

Wheel Lock May Solve Sailor's Death

Finding a triangular lock, of the kind used to block automobile wheels on hills, Montgomery County detectives yesterday thought they might have the weapon used in the July 2 slaying of John J. Little, 18, a sailor.

Encrusted with dirt, the lock was to be turned over to the FBI for laboratory examination and tests.

The lock was found near a road a short distance beyond Eli Aper Tavern, 1½ miles north of Rockville. The body of Little, who was from the Naval Air Station at Oceana, Va., was found near the tavern.

The detectives planned also to check with the owner of a blood-stained automobile found over the Potomac River seawall to see if he had such a lock in the car. The car had been stolen in Rockville before the murder was discovered.

Housebreaking Suspect Shot By Veteran

A Navy veteran yesterday chased a suspected housebreaker for several blocks before felling him with a shotgun blast at 15th and Girard st. nw.

The suspect, John E. Wilson, 26, of 3815 Jay st. ne., was removed to Gallinger Hospital where his condition was undermined.

The veteran, George W. Nolan, 28, a salesman employed by Sears Roebuck & Co., told police he and his wife, Dorothy, were awakened in their basement apartment at 1470 Clifton st. nw., at about 3:30 a. m. yesterday by the noise of someone trying a window.

Nolan seized a shotgun, and focused a flashlight outside. He saw a man crouched below the window. Frightened by the light, the man fled.

Nolan gave chase. Several blocks away he fired one shot, hitting Wilson in the back. Nolan was released in $1000 bond for Municipal Court appearance today on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

100 in Boys Club Group Off to Camp

A party of 100 boys from 8 to 17 years of age will leave by bus at noon today for Camp Reeder, summer establishment of the Boys Club of Washington, Inc. The boys will spend two weeks at the camp which is on the Wicomico River, West Hatton Farms, Charles County, Md.

The camp, under direction of Arthur Fyfe, opened June 27, and will continue through August 27. This is the twenty-fifth anniversary year of the camp. The Boys Club headquarters are at 261 17th st. se.

Reserves Win Take Lead

The Marine Reserves took over first place in the Arena League yesterday by trouncing Southeast Stores, 8 to 3, on Anacostia No. 1 diamond.

In the other game scheduled, Friendship House Rebels and Forest Heights battled to a 6-6 seven-inning tie. They had been tied for first place before the contest.

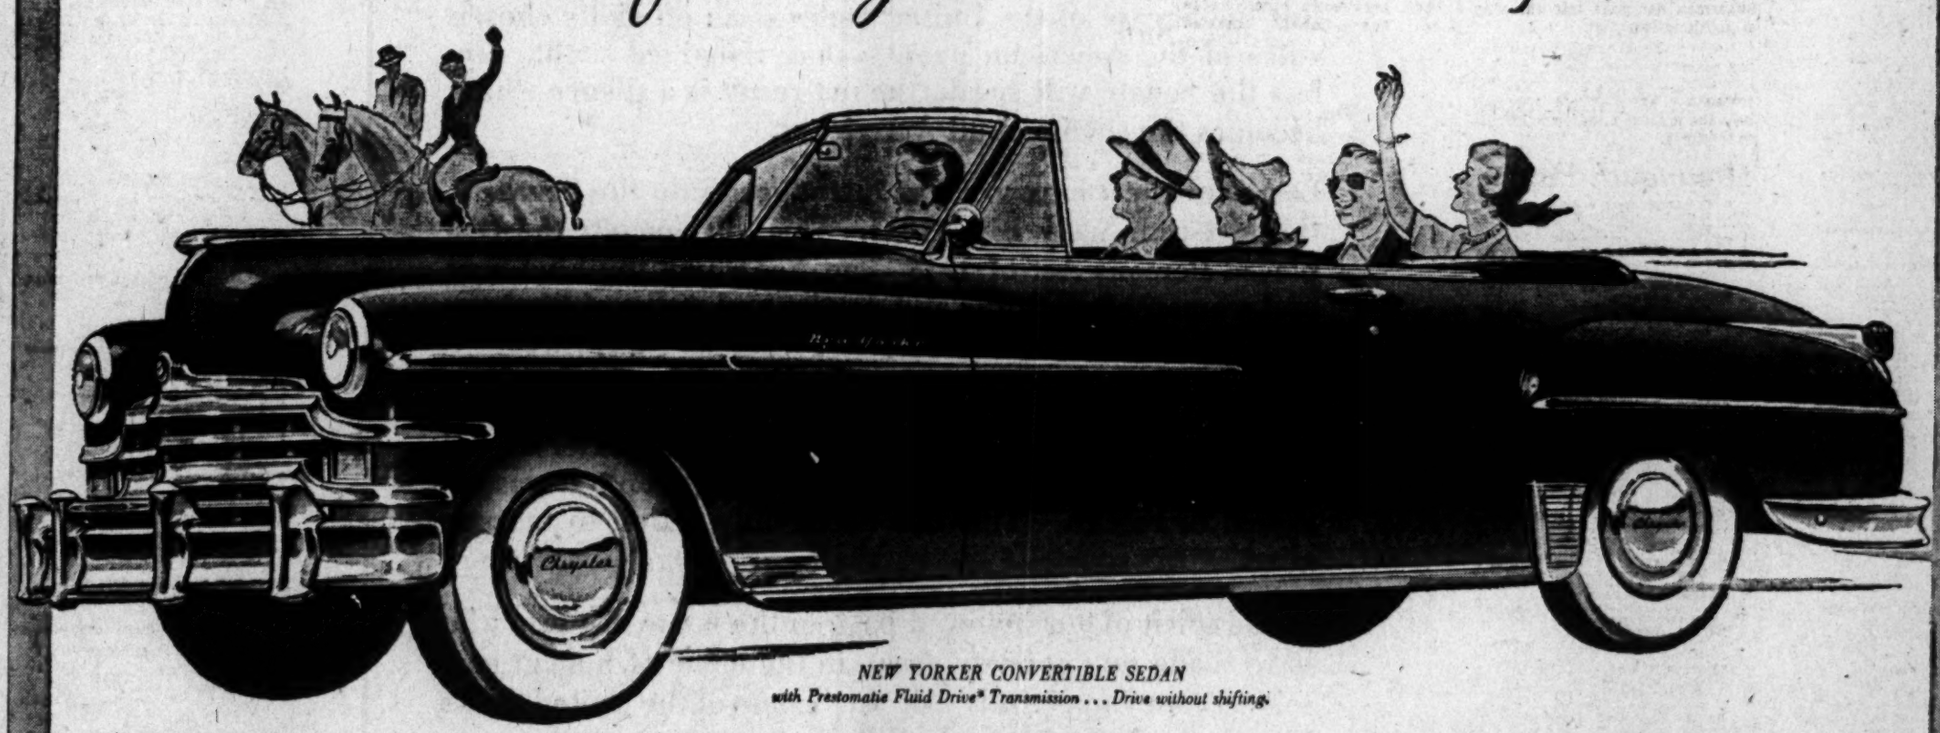
Beauty by Chrysler

The Beautiful Chrysler | Silver Anniversary Model



NEW YORKER CONVERTIBLE SEDAN
with Prestomatic Fluid Drive* Transmission . . . Drive without shifting.

Beauty in Appearance! Every clean, lovely line of the Silver Anniversary Chrysler has purpose and meaning. Beauty that is useful is the Chrysler idea. A striking line of chrome along the fenders may please your eye, but it's there on a Chrysler to act as a rub rail wherever you need special protection against fender damage. The graceful fenders themselves are detachable for inexpensive repair, easy installation. Behind each detail of Chrysler design there's a story of common sense and imagination in engineering.

Beauty in Comfort! A chair in your home can be beautiful because fine design gives it the ideal combination of grace and comfort. Chrysler chair-height seats have this kind of beauty, too. Perfectly proportioned for greater comfort, they are engineered to seat you at the proper height to see the road ahead and behind . . . to enjoy your ride or your drive. Spacious interiors also give you comfort you enjoy. There's more legroom, more shoulder room. Even the smart instrument cluster directly in your line of vision on the steering wheel eases the strain of driving and adds beauty to the relaxing pleasure of riding in a Chrysler.

Beauty in Performance! You begin to thrill to this kind of beauty the moment you feel the smooth, eager response of Chrysler's great Spitfire High Compression engine. With Prestomatic Fluid Drive Transmission, driving becomes wonderfully easy. You start in third gear, and a slight lift of your toe takes you into cruising range. You rarely touch the gear shift lever with this cool-running, economical, smoother way of automatic driving. We could tell you about new Center Control Steering and many other exclusive Chrysler firsts that make performance a thing of beauty . . . but a few minutes in this car will give you pleasure it would take a book to describe. Phone for a demonstration today.

North Pacific Locale For Heavy Quake

By The Associated Press

American seismologists Sunday reported a severe earthquake, apparently in the North Pacific area.

The Franklin Institute in Philadelphia called it a "whopper of an earthquake," presumably in the Aleutian Islands. It was recorded at 11:08.11 p. m. (EST) Saturday night.

In New York, the Fordham University seismograph recorded two shocks at 11:07 p. m. (EST) and 11:10.44 p. m. Saturday night about 6300 miles from New York in the area of Japan.

The observatory of Imola, Italy, reported a quake about 3500 miles to the northwest. This presumably was not the same quake.

A short quake shook Inglewood, Calif., and several other communities in the Los Angeles area about the same time seismographs on the East Coast recorded the temblors.

A San Diego, Calif., seismologist, Fred Robinson, reported that a quake started "somewhere, probably in the Pacific Ocean" at 8:12.42 p. m. (PST) and continued strong until 9:04 p. m.

There were no reports of any disturbance from Alaska.

Anti-Aircraft Unit From D.C. Safe in Camp

Camp Pendleton, Va., July 10 (AP). The 260th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Group, District of Columbia National Guard, arrived here late this afternoon for two weeks of intensive training.

Training will commence at 8 a. m. Monday, with some 1100 officers and men participating. It will consist of instruction and practice in firing at towed targets over Fort Story and Camp Pendleton.

The 182 trucks of various types belonging to the group left Washington between 4 a. m. and 8 a. m. today and arrived here between 5 p. m. and 7 p. m. with no injuries to men or combat equipment during the 236-mile "motor march."

The group is under the command of Col. Leroy S. Mann. Battalions are commanded by Lieut. Col. Given Cleek, Lieut. Col. George W. Selwyn and Maj. Richard H. Stephens.

An Appeal to the U. S. Senate . . .

TO RESPOND TO THE CONSCIENCE OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

(The following is an excerpt from an appeal to the Senate signed by the persons whose names appear on this page)

Today silent people wait on both sides of the Atlantic. Today is the time for them to speak and yet no voice is heard.

In Europe the silent people are the displaced persons—hundreds of thousands of dispossessed people. They are the ones who were uprooted and carried off as slave labor by the Nazis. They are the ones who fled before bloody pogroms. They are the ones who escaped the fury of Communism.

Four years after the end of the war their hands still remain lacerated against the barbed wire of their existence, their hearts still torn by an eternity of waiting. They have no voice; their silence is poignant and accusing.

In America the voice of the people has called out to help the displaced persons.

But the Senate of the United States — an officially chosen voice of the American people—has remained silent. Unless the Senate will speak, the net result is a silence which becomes the shame of all Americans.

Last January a measure was introduced into the Senate — the McGrath-Neely Bill, S.311. This bill amends the Displaced Persons Act of 1948 — an Act which thinking men and women of all faiths and parties and walks of life have condemned as unworkable, ungenerous and unjust.

Though many months have passed, the McGrath-Neely Bill still stands in the Senate, waiting behind a barrier of red tape and cold indifference, as do the very people it was designed to rescue. This bill needs only action to become alive.

In the spirit of our honored past, in the name of those who have made our country great, in the name of human conscience, we respectfully ask the Senate of the United States to pass the McGrath-Neely Bill now.

We appeal to the Senate to speak with justice and dispatch, so that our Nation may continue to walk with dignity and honor in the eyes of God and man.

Man Killed, 3 Escape As Car Spins 31 Feet in Air

Automobile Misses Bridge, Smashes Into an Abutment And Lands in Creek

One man was killed and three escaped serious injury miraculously yesterday in a freak automobile accident.

The car in which they rode missed a bridge in Montgomery County and hurtled 31 feet through the air to crash into a concrete abutment across a stream. Then it dropped 10 feet into 3 feet of water.

Montgomery County Police arrested the three survivors and charged them with manslaughter and also with implication in unauthorized use of the car.

As police reconstructed the story, William Cox, employe of the Olney Inn, Olney, Md., bought a used car Saturday, gave the four a ride in it that night, then parked it at the inn and went to bed.

Asleep in Back Seat

Later, the four also inn employes, decided to ride some more, police said, and took the car. They were Newvell E. Gaines, 34, who died; William Howard Taft Hill, 17, who police identified as the driver; Joseph T. Carter, 17, and James Kyle, 17.

Police said the crash was at Muncaster's Mill on the Norbeck-Redland road, where the road crosses the north branch of Rock Creek.

Jerry Klutz, who writes the Federal Diary, is on vacation. Publication of his column will be resumed on his return.

The three survivors were in the front seat of the car, police said, and were only cut and bruised. Gaines, they said, was in back, asleep, and his head was forced out of a righthand window as the car spun in the air and landed on its right side in the water.

An autopsy showed Gaines died of drowning, according to Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County Medical Examiner.

Arrested At Hospital

The three youths, police said, made their way back to Olney, but later went to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring for treatment. They were arrested there.

Cox did not learn of the accident until he awoke Sunday and reported his car stolen, police said.

In another accident yesterday, five Washingtonians were injured when two cars collided on Route 1, 4 miles south of Woodridge, Va. Virginia State Police charged H. J. Philpott, 1471 Irving st. nw., with reckless driving.

Officers said Philpott had stopped his automobile and had begun to back it up when it collided with one driven by James P. Donovan, 47, of 2737 Devonshire pl. nw.

Donovan and his wife were admitted to Alexandria Hospital, he with chest injuries and she with a possible broken nose and bruises.

Philpott, his wife, and Mrs. Helen Schlegel, 1451 Monroe st. nw., a passenger in his car, also were treated at Alexandria Hospital for cuts and bruises.

A 30-year-old mother and her 11-year-old son were struck by an auto in front of their home at 3333 Nichols ave. se. last night as they were returning from a neighborhood store.

Admitted to Casualty Hospital in undetermined condition were Mrs. Dolly Cuddy, with a possible fracture of her right thigh, and her son, John Gentry, with contusions about the head and possible internal injuries.

Police identified the driver of the auto as Lieut. (j. g.) Horace Lowers of 73 Forrester st. sw.

A man and two women were held yesterday by police on assault and battery charges arising out of what police said was a traffic argument in rural Montgomery County.

Richard Burdette, 33, of Blackrock, Md., was taken to Suburban Hospital and treated for an 8-inch cut on his head police said was inflicted with a pop bottle in the argument.

Arrested by police were Charles A. Blaneson, 28, Germantown, Md.; Nettie Jackson, 20, Middlebrook, Md.; and Wilma Blyther, 952 26th st. nw., Washington.

Admiral Makes Success of His Farm in Maryland

SALTY FARMER—Retired Admiral Robert C. Giffen shakes hands with a capon on his Anne Arundel County farm. Besides diversified crops of grain, fruit and livestock, Admiral Giffen experiments with poultry. He has flocks of Muscovy and other ducks, capons, laying hens and big-breasted broilers

Giffen Is Appointed Conservation Week Publicity Chairman

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Forty-six years ago this summer Robert Carlisle Giffen left a Nebraska farm to enter the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

He was fed up with Nebraska farming. The hot winds from the south swept the Great Plains bare about every other year. Farming methods and equipment were not what they are today. Often a good field of grain would blow away overnight. Farming, he thought, wasn't in his blood.

He was wrong. In three short years since he was retired by the Navy, Admiral Giffen has become one of southern Maryland's best known and most enthusiastic agriculturalists. So much so that he is publicity chairman for the Southern Maryland Conservation Week to be held July 19-23.

After four years as midshipman, Giffen spent 39 years in the Navy, nine of them in China. His record shows distinguished combat service in two world wars.

Commanded Neutrality Patrol

When the Japanese struck at Pearl Harbor, Giffen, then a rear admiral, was operating between Iceland and Murmansk in command of the North Atlantic Neutrality Patrol. He had command of the naval forces covering the landing of American troops at Casablanca in November, 1942, and later, on the other side of the world, in actions against the Japanese base at Truk, against Makin and Saipan, Tinian and Guam. He was retired as vice admiral in 1946.

Looking forward to the day when he would be relieved from active duty, Admiral and Mrs. Giffen, in 1937, bought a farm in Anne Arundel County, so run down it was virtually abandoned. He then was in charge of athletics at the academy. The farm had been cultivated for 250 years, most of its harvests being tobacco. Even the richest soil can't stand that.

On the place was a house, built in the early 1700s. It had lacked care, but was still sturdy.

While Giffen was overseas between 1940 and 1946, Mrs. Giffen built up the place. The house was restored and added to. The fields were cleared, gardens planted, buildings repaired. When the old seadog came home, it was ready.

During the last 28 years of his service Giffen had two constant associates—Filipino boys. After the war one returned to his native islands and is now a member of the Legislature. The other, an Igorot, chose to stay with the Giffen family. He had spent a lifetime with them, had helped raise the two Giffen children. Where Giffen went, there went Julian Tait.

It was a strange pair, these two old sailors, who took up farming in the spring of 1946. First, they had to name the new vessel they were shipping on. Old China hands both, they named the farm "Mas Que." Liberally translated, Giffen says, it means: "What the hell!"

In salty English Giffen tells of his new experience as a farmer and what made him a conservationist.

First, he says, he realized the old soil must be built up after its centuries of misuse. So he went to a dealer for advice.

"He sold me $285 worth of fertilizer—with 10 per cent off for cash," he explains. "Lordy, Lordy, what a gyp!"

"The next day we spread the fertilizer. That night there came a Chesapeake flood which is like nothing else in the world. I watched that $285 worth of pretty white fertilizer flow down the rows, along with a lot of good top soil, into Crab Creek.

"I said to myself, there must be some answer to this."

A neighbor sent him to County Agent Stanley Day, who sent him to Grover Kinzy, district conservationist for southern Maryland.

Today the Giffen farm is a showplace of good farm practices. It is diversified farming with a vengeance. On the 154 acres are about 100,000 hills of tobacco. There are nine Polled Hereford cattle, two young dairy heifers, four horses, 52 hogs, mostly Hampshires, corn, alfalfa and other hays, strawberries, apples, peaches, blackberries, asparagus ($200 worth sold this year) chickens, both broilers and capons, ducks, etc.

Crops Are Rotated

The crops are rotated. There is strip cropping on contours, pasture improvement, diversion terracing, the beginning of a multiflora rose fence, and a woodlot. Someday Giffen hopes to build a farm pond and stock it with fish.

In the three years Giffen has increased his corn yields from 25 to 90 bushels an acre, and other crops in proportion. All his feed is raised on his farm, and milled and mixed there.

Giffen sparks his experiences with stories. His activities in the soil conservation movement, he says, remind him of his days as a junior officer. In entering a harbor the vessel he was on crossed the path of the flagship of Capt. Robley Evans, the famous "Fighting Bob" of Spanish-American War days. The young officer spoke his mind, and Evans sent for him:

"In the Navy, young man," Evans shouted, "if you want to get anywhere you'll have to learn to keep your ears open and your mouth shut." To which Giffen adds this comment:

"After that, I'm now a publicity man!"

Family Stays by Sea

The Giffen family has stayed by the sea. Admiral and Mrs. Giffen's daughter Mary is the wife of Capt. Shirley S. Miller, USN, in Honolulu; his son is Commander Robert C. Giffen, jr., of the Class of 1938, stationed in London.

In the winter the Giffens spend the cold weather on an island they own in the Virgin Islands where they once were stationed. "But don't say anything about that," the admiral urges. "People will think I'm rich, and I'm not."

They have other livestock on the farm, too. Besides a Boston terrier, there are five rare Tibetan Thassa Apso dogs—a strange woolly breed. Two of these, pups, have just arrived from London. They have eight more at their Virgin Island home.

But to get back to soil conservation. Giffen yesterday remarked:

"If we had known as much about farming, about conservation of moisture, and about other farm practices back in 1903 as we know today, maybe I would have stayed on our Nebraska farm. I might have made a lot of money in the cattle business. I didn't know how in those days."

ENTHUSIASTIC PARTNER—Mrs. Elsie Hodgmen Giffen, the admiral's wife, was rebuilding the old Maryland farm near Annapolis while her husband was fighting his country's battles at Casablanca, Guam, Tinian and elsewhere.

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

With her is shown a Tibetan Thassa Apso dog—one of two the Giffens got a week ago in London. They have five of the rare breed here and eight more at their home in the Virgin Islands

BEATS TRADITION—Knee-high by the Fourth of July and then some. The corn on Admiral Giffen's model, modern farm reached the traditional height, for a good crop of "knee high by the Fourth of July" and more. In fact, it was shoulder-high as the seagoing farmer shows here. "Over there," he says, "is some really tall corn"

Retired Alexandria Rail Man Is Slain by Shotgun Blast

Bowling Green, Va., July 10 (AP) A retired Alexandria railroad man and father of an Alexandria policeman was slain by a shotgun blast near Guinea, Va., early today.

The slain man was identified as Grover Cleveland Thomas, 60, whose wife and family live at 404 N. Payne st., Alexandria. He was the father of Alexandria Police Pvt. Donald Thomas, 21.

Five men, all of Caroline County, had been arrested by tonight and charged with the killing.

Visiting His Sister

Thomas was spending some time with his sister, Mrs. Mary Stanley, on her farm on State Route 606 near Guinea, Caroline County Sheriff T. S. Henshaw said.

The shooting occurred about 2 a. m. Thomas died in a Fredericksburg hospital at 5:40 a. m.

Sheriff Henshaw said he and State Troopers C. I. Swan and V. L. Leach had rounded up seven men by 6 a. m. Only five, however, were jailed.

The sheriff tonight said the accused men had made statements attempting to place the blame on each other.

He listed them as Walter Reynolds, about 22; Daniel Reynolds, 21; John Johnson, 19; Edgar Buckner, around 30, and Clarence Waller, 19, all of Caroline County.

Henshaw gave this version of the shooting, as he pieced it together. The accused men had been drinking in a place on Route 1 near Acadia. There were seven of them in a 1936-model car. Two .12-gauge shotguns were produced.

Thomas was standing in a driveway of an unoccupied house near his sister's place. Henshaw said he understood the men got out of the car before firing at the Alexandrian.

No Motive Discovered

The shot was heard by Henry Fugate and his wife, who called Fredericksburg authorities. Sheriff Henshaw said, however, he could find no motive for the shooting.

After the shooting, the men in the group scattered, Henshaw said, some of them running and others leaving in the car. He said it appeared that Thomas had been shot from the back, at fairly close range. He said he had possession of the two shotguns.

The slain man retired in 1946 from his job as a car repairman with the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad. He had been with the railroad 28 years.

His wife, Mrs. Amber Thomas, and seven children survive. The children are: Pvt. Thomas, 21; James Thomas, 33; Anita Thomas, 16, all of the Payne st. address; Paul Thomas, 28, of 913 Prince st., Alexandria; Mrs. William Riddick, 34, of 800 S Washington st., Alexandria; Mrs. Raymond Maxwell, 26, of 518 E. Glendale ave., Alexandria; and Mrs. Harold Robey, 19, Harbor Terrace Apartments, N. Washington st., Alexandria.

Barber, 67, Held As Molester of Children Here

A 67-year-old Arlington barber was arrested in Washington yesterday on eight charges of molesting children here. He was held last night at police headquarters in lieu of $2000 bond on each charge or a total of $16,000.

Police identified him as Caleb Mack South, a widower, of 1118 S. Thomas st., Arlington. He was arrested in the 4800 block of MacArthur blvd. nw., where, according to Detective Sergt. George Robinson, most of the offenses with which he is charged took place. South denied the charges.

Sergeant Robinson said South approached children by asking them directions to Glen Echo amusement park and then enticed them into his auto with gifts of money or sweets.

Woman Charged In Fatal Shooting At Card Game

Mrs. Ola Mae Whitlock, 35, was in jail yesterday, charged with murder in the shooting early yesterday of Donnie Young, 44. Both lived at 1420 R st. nw., where, police said, the shooting occurred.

Police said they and others, including a man known only as "Wyman," were playing cards about 1:10 a. m. when Mrs. Whitlock asked "Wyman" to leave. He refused, police said, and after an argument, she went to another room and reappeared with a pistol.

She told officers she intended to shoot "Wyman" but missed and hit Young. In a struggle for the weapon, police said, another shot was fired but went wild. U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence continued Mrs. Whitlock's case to July 14.

Tobin Heads Federal Unit In Chest Drive

President Truman has approved appointment of Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin as chairman of the Government unit of the Community Chest Federation campaign.

Tobin

Announcement was made by the President in a letter sent to heads of executive departments and agencies urging support of the appeal which "unites all races, creeds and social groups in a cooperative effort to meet pressing human needs.

"Although the Nation has moved forward during the past decade in enacting legislation to provide services for persons in need, there are still many needs not covered by these acts," the President wrote. "Men, women and children must continue to look to private welfare agencies and institutions."

Mr. Truman asked Government officials to "extend their complete cooperation to the coming Red Feather campaign" and urged them and Federal employes "to give generously."

Two Beaten

Robbers Get $163 in Loot From 4 Here

Four persons reported to police they were robbed early yesterday.

Two of the victims required hospital treatment after beatings by their assailants.

Albert Peterson, 56, of 1406 15th st. nw, a street salesman for The Washington Post, said $75 in cash was taken from him by two men as he walked in the 1400 block of P st. nw about 5 a. m. He was on his way home.

Peterson was treated for multiple bruises at Emergency Hospital and released.

Peterson described one of the men as about 20 years old, 5 feet, 5 inches tall and weighing about 180 pounds. He was wearing a brown sweater and dark pants. The other man was slightly older, of the same height, but weighed about 150 pounds. Both were Negroes.

A slender Negro, dark-skinned and wearing a dark coat and blue trousers, held up Frank Lee, proprietor of Far East Cafe, 1241 7th st. nw., and took $77 from a cash register, Lee reported. The man brandished a blue-steel revolver, Lee said. The incident was shortly after 2:45 a. m.

The third man, David W. Frampton, 57, of 224 11th st. ne., told police he was "yoked" by two men near 6th and K sts. ne. at 1 a. m. He lost $8. He was treated at Casualty Hospital for face cuts and admitted. Frampton could not describe his attackers, other than they were white men.

William Dunn, 49, of 1236 11th st. nw., reported he was grabbed by a man as he walked in the 1100 block of 11th st. nw. about 2:40 a. m. He was dragged into an alley he said, and $3 taken from him.

Dunn said his assailant was a Negro of indeterminate age, height about 5 feet, 8 inches. He was wearing a dark coat and brown pants.

Police broadcast lookouts for the men.

Whisky Raid By Police Nets 14 in District

Police raiders early yesterday arrested 14 persons at 2520 12th pl. se., occupied, they said, by Paul O. Hansborough, 26, who was charged with selling untaxed whisky and permitting gaming.

Hansborough and Lillie Marie Johnson, 24, of 1701 New Jersey ave. nw., were released in bonds of $2500 and $300, respectively.

The woman was charged also with selling untaxed whisky.

Twelve others, described by police as customers, were charged with disorderly conduct. All elected to forfeit $5 each at the Eleventh Precinct station.

The premises had been under observation for some time, police said, and recently an undercover man bought whisky with marked money. They said the money was recovered.

Pvt. Wayland Fallin, 11th Precinct plainclothesman, led the raiding party. Others in the group were:

Sgt. F. W. Harris, Precinct Detectives T. P. Denton, and F. L. Rheinhart; Pvts. R. S. Pyles, R. L. Gardner, W. W. Pilkerton and C. F. Mahoney, all of 11th Precinct.

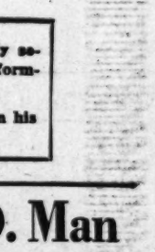
B. & O. Man Slain in Cab Of His Engine In Yard Here

Man Who Roomed At Victim's House Arrested by Police; Pair Seen Scuffling

A 50-year-old Washington locomotive engineer was shot to death at the controls of his engine early yesterday in the Eckington yards of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

The victim was Clyde L. King, of 212 Channing st. ne.

Shortly afterward, police arrested and charged with murder Fred Swanson Pritchett, 39, described as an old friend of the dead engineer.



King

Pritchett, a mechanic employed by the Capital Transit Co., who roomed at the home of King and King's wife, Grace, will appear at a coroner's inquest slated for 11:30 a. m., today.

Pritchett denies any knowledge of the crime.

Neighbors of the Kings, however, told of seeing the men scuffling in front of the King home about one and one-half hours before the slaying, which was at 3 a. m.

Homicide squad investigation showed that Mr. and Mrs. King, Pritchett, and the Kings' grandson, Edward, 8, had planned to attend a party in honor of Mrs. King's 47th birthday at the home of friends Saturday night.

However, King, who is employed as an extra engineer, was called to work unexpectedly, and the other three went to the party without him.

According to three witnesses—Miss Faye Simon, 19, who lives next door at 210 Channing st. ne.; Miss Mildred Keyser, 19, of Landover Hills, Md., and Richard Gaskell, 1918 Newton st. ne., who were visiting Miss Simon—Pritchett, Mrs. King and the boy drove up to the King's house at 1:30 a. m.

The witnesses said King arrived on foot at about the same time. They reported that an argument ensued, that King pulled Pritchett from the car and punched him in the face during the scuffle. King then walked off, the witnesses told police.

Later, leaving the house the three young people said they met Pritchett who, they told police, showed them a gun with the remark, "I'm going to take care of everything." The man then drove off, they said.

Plane Out of Fuel Safe in Hayfield

Pvt. Richard Bailey, 20, member of the Arlington Hall Military Police Battalion, escaped injury yesterday in the forced landing of a small plane in a hayfield near Falls Church, Va., after running out of fuel.

Twenty minutes before Private Bailey had taken off from Washington-Virginia airport near Baileys Crossroads. The plane's engine sputtered to a stop at an altitude of 1500 feet.

Private Bailey, who said he has been flying for the past four years, put the plane into a long glide, and came to rest safely about 1000 yards from Seven Corners.

Bethesda Man Named

John P. Moore, of Bethesda, Md., member of the Washington law firm of Elmore, Moss & Moore, has been appointed District of Columbia representative to the Committee on Procedural Reform Studies of the Junior Bar Conference of the American Bar Association. Purpose of the committee is to make a comparative study of legal procedures in the 48 States and make recommendations for changes to bring about more efficient functioning of the courts.

Trespassing Charged

Patrick P. Bridgett, 28, of 3220 G st. se., is to appear in District Court today to answer a charge of trespassing, following his arrest Saturday on Dupont golf course in Southeast Washington.

He was arrested by Park Policemen David Kushner and Lawrence Brunner. According to police, as he was being led off the fairway, he bolted, but was caught by the officers after a 100-yard chase. He posted $25 collateral for appearance in court.

Police Hunt Stolen Cab

Montgomery County police yesterday were looking for a Premier taxicab stolen near Wheaton, Md., late Saturday night from William Hubbard, 52, of the 1200 block of Neal st. ne.

Hubbard picked up a passenger, described as 30 to 35 years, 6 feet tall, blond hair, very curly, wearing a sport shirt and tan or brown trousers, at 14th and Park rd. nw.

At Wheaton, the passenger threatened to shoot him and took from $6 to $8 in cash and the taxicab, Hubbard told police. The cab had not been recovered last night, police said.

Scheduled Today

Play Areas Accord Aim Of Meeting

The Interior Department and the District Recreation Board hope today to settle their differences over control of Federally-owned play areas in Washington.

A meeting is scheduled for 10 a. m. in Interior Secretary J. A. Krug's office with Undersecetary Oscar Chapman, the District Commissioners and three Recreation Board officials—Chairman Harry S. Wender, James E. Schwab, who heads the by-laws committee, and Milo F. Christiansen, superintendent. Also present will be National Capital Parks superintendent Irving C. Root, a Recreation Board member, and his assistant, Edward Kelly.

The Recreation Board last week offered to alter its by-laws, repealing a section which calls for segregated play areas, if Interior would turn over its facilities to the local agency.

Under such an agreement, those facilities now segregated would remain so, those now open to all races would remain so—with the exception of the six swimming pools at some of which there has been a series of racial clashes.

The Recreation Board has promised, however, to write into its by-laws a statement of policy adopted last month. This was a promise that the board will make "every possible and realistic effort toward the removal of racial segregation in public recreation . . ."

The board has insisted it would make such changes but only on a step-by-step basis, not all at once. The new by-law would permit the board to switch a playground, swimming pool or other activity from segregated to nonsegregated use by a majority vote on four days' notice of the proposed vote.

The Interior Department earlier agreed to the general procedure offered by the Recreation Board but has had some doubts about the wording of the offer. Interior officials were to have a formal reply ready for today's meeting, including some proposed rewordings of the agreement.

Under the agreement, Interior would turn over all its local operations in the recreation field to the District agency.

Some organizations which had backed Interior in its long argument with the local board over segregation have protested the proposed settlement. One reason is that it would mean the six Interior-controlled swimming pools would revert to a segregated status—four for whites and two for Negroes. Two or three of the pools have recently been used by both races but the Anacostia pool was order closed by Krug after a series of racial clashes.

If today's meeting produces a final agreement between the Federal and District government agencies, the Recretion Board at its regular meeting Tuesday will formally approve the bargain. It then will face the problem of how to get more money to run what would be a vastly expanded set of facilities. Because of the financial problem, as well as some legal ones

Death Ends Early-Morning Ride...

THREE CAME OUT ALIVE—One man was killed and three youths escaped serious injury when their car missed a bridge at Muncaster's Mill in Montgomery County early yesterday and dropped 10 feet into Rock Creek. stagger up from the controls, spin halfway around and collapse on the platform in the rear of the cab.

Two yard employes told police they saw a man answering Pritchett's description and wearing white overalls in the yards shortly before the shooting. A pair of white overalls with several holes in it was found in Prichett's room, police said. They theorized the pistol may have been fired while concealed in the garb.

District Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said there were nine wounds, entrance and exit, in the body. Three bullets were recovered during an autopsy.

Police quoted Prichett as saying King had reprimanded Mrs. King for drinking too much but said he denied that he and King fought. Police said Prichett had a cut lip.

Police said Prichett told them he was released from a Virginia penitentiary in 1946 after serving 12 years of a 20-year sentence for a shooting.

Records showed a Fred Prichett was arrested in Charlottesville, Va., in 1934 for shooting to death a CWA worker in a fit of rage when the latter did not have a nickel change for Pritchett, who wanted to play a slot machine.

Edward was the central figure in a child custody fight in October, 1947.

His mother, Mrs. Edith Dye, daughter of Mrs. King, had brought suit to recover custody of the child she had left with the Kings while she was in the Wacs.

Mr. and Mrs. King fought the action in District Court. Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts, in ruling in favor of the Kings, said: "I find the boy is well cared for and happy where he is."

Johnson Urges More Elective Officials in Va.

Lynchburg, Va., July 10 (AP).—A call for election, instead of appointment, of many of Virginia's State officials was sounded here yesterday by Walter Johnson, Republican candidate for Governor of the State.

He said that the present system, under which only the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and attorney general are elected and other officials appointed is "keeping government away from the people."

Johnson promised that if he is elected, he will work for changes in State laws to bring about election of more officials answerable directly to the voters.

"For too long," Johnson said, "Virginia as a one-party State has been government by appointees. By this scheme, the people are denied participation to the extent necessary for good government. Some people say it is placing government in the hands of the best people. Certainly it is keeping government away from the people by denying them the right to participate."

Johnson attacked claims by Democratic candidates that the State is free of debt.

"We are also told," he said, "that our school structure has been so neglected that we now need to spend 300 millions to catch up with our needs. That does not look to me like we are free of debt. We can be said to be free of debt only if we have acquired all needed things as we have gone along, instead of letting necessary expenditures pile up on us."

Johnson also assailed all the Democratic candidates, charging that they are "trying to outbid each other in terms of things they would do—but always with higher taxes and greater curtailment of self-government."

Miller to Open Drive In Alexandria Tuesday

Francis Pickens Miller, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Virginia, will open his northern Virginia campaign Tuesday in Alexandria, it was announced yesterday.

Saturday, in a speech at Harrisonburg, Senator Byrd, leader of the hitherto dominant Democratic organization in the State, vigorously assailed Miller as the organization's prime enemy in the campaign and indorsed John S. Battle, one of Miller's opponents.

Miller will arrive in Alexandria at 10 a. m. Tuesday, visit the Potomac Yards in the morning, lunch with campaign workers, tour a number of plants in the afternoon, and at 8 p. m. will address a rally at the George Washington High School. The State primary election will be on August 2.

Miller Denies Byrd Charge He's CIO Man

Richmond, Va., July 10 (AP).—Francis Pickens Miller denied today that he is "the CIO candidate for Governor," and charged that Senator Harry F. Byrd's address yesterday indorsing the candidacy of John S. Battle "was a public confession" that Byrd still governs Virginia.

"Senator Byrd's Harrisonburg speech makes the major issue of the campaign crystal clear," Miller, one of the four candidates for the Democratic nomination, said in a statement.

"That issue is whether Senator Byrd is to continue to run Virginia through Governors whom he appoints. We will fight that issue through August 2."

Miller charged that Byrd "has resorted to the worn-out trick of conjuring up ghosts to divert the people of Virginia from the real issue of the campaign."

But, he added, "his CIO ghosts may scare him, but they no longer scare anyone else.

"The CIO issue is a false issue and Senator Byrd, if he knows as much about the present campaign as he professes, knows that it is false.

"I am not now, nor have I ever been, the candidate of the CIO or any other group, within or without labor. I have never received one cent from any labor group, within or without the State, or from anyone representing a labor group. Nor will I accept any such contributions."

Byrd, in indorsing Battle in a surprise appearance before a Battle-for-Governor rally at Harrisonburg, identified Miller as "the CIO-backed candidate" for the governorship, and said the labor union was preparing to "take over the State."

Eugene R. Watts

Funeral services for Eugene R. Watts, 74, retired Naval Gun Factory toolmaker, will be conducted at 11 a. m. today by Naval Lodge No. 4, F.A.A.M. The services will be at the Robert A. Pumphrey Chapel, 7557 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda.

Born in Baltimore, Mr. Watts received his education in public schools there and later at Columbia University in Washington, now a part of George Washington University. He began work at the Naval Gun Factory in 1900 and retired in 1938. Since that, he has traveled extensively.

He died Friday of a heart ailment after being in ill health since April.

Mr. Watts resided with a daughter, Mrs. Jennings A. Snider, 4848 Chevy Chase blvd., Chevy Chase, Md. Besides her he is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. Frank C. Buth, Green Bay, Wis., and Mrs. Charles H. Hunt, sr. of Baltimore, and a son, Robert S. Watts, 415 Lincoln ave., Takoma Park, Md. Burial will be at Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Martha E. Thomas

Mrs. Martha E. Thomas, 83, the daughter of a pioneer Tennessee family, died yesterday in Waverly Sanitarium, Rockville, Md.

A descendant of some of the early settlers of east Tennessee, Mrs. Thomas was born in Maryville, Tenn., and attended Carson-Newman College in Jefferson City, Tenn.

Before moving to Washington in 1939, Mrs. Thomas spent several years in Jacksonville, Fla. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church and the Mary Blount Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star in Maryville. On her maternal side she belonged to the First Families of Virginia.

Mrs. Thomas leaves two daughters, Helene R. Thomas, 2000 16th st. nw., and Mrs. W. G. Best, Birmingham, Ala., and a son, Ernest W. Thomas, New York and Washington.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon in the McCammon-Ammons funeral home at Maryville. Burial will be in Magnolia Cemetery there.

Remove Chief Of Fisheries, Paper Urges

Newport News, Va., July 10 (Spl.).—Immediate removal from office of C. M. Lankford, jr., Virginia State Fisheries Commissioner, was demanded editorially today by the Newport News Daily Press.

The paper charged in an editorial that the killing last Tuesday of Earl L. Nelson, a Crisfield, Md., crab fisherman, by a newly deputized Virginia fisheries officer, "originated in loose handling of Fisheries Commission responsibilities."

"The commissioner himself is accountable," the paper said. "The incident is enough to make a strong presumption of inefficiency, irresponsibility, and incapacity against him.

"The tragic and wholly unjustified killing as a consequence of actions of a green and immature 'deputy' contains so many factors that reflect upon the administration of the Commission of Fisheries by the present Commissioner (Lankford) that he should be removed at once pending an investigation of the conduct of his office and of all matters having to do with the functioning of the Commission."

The Newport News Times Herald also said editorially that "Commissioner Lankford . . . will have to bear the onus of some evidently loose administration."

"The facts," that paper said, "presumably will be established by investigation. The situation demands more than an investigation. It demands remedial action through agreements between Virginia and Maryland on a new and better system of control of upper Chesapeake Bay and Potomac River waters."

Meantime, David Acree, the 26-year-old deputy who shot Nelson when the latter allegedly went illegally into Virginia waters near the borderline of the two States, was held at Accomac, Va., on a murder warrant issued in that State.

The two States will join in a survey Tuesday to determine which State Nelson was in at the time of the shooting. Meanwhile, a Maryland murder warrant for Acree was held in abeyance.

Meantime, no further action was taken against 20-year-old George Colonna, jr., pilot of the Virginia Fisheries Commission seaplane which landed alongside Nelson's boat. Maryland has issued a warrant charging him with being an accessory. It has not been served because he is in Virginia.

Lankford said that Acree, deputized by Colonna only four hours before the shooting, never was on the commission payroll. He answered questioners by asserting that Acree still is a deputy and that Colonna, though only 20 years old, had a legal right to deputize Acree.

Joseph U. Dellinger

Joseph U. Dellinger, 74, who died at his home, 6410 33d st. nw., Thursday of a heart attack, was buried in Fairview Cemetery in Williamsport, Md., yesterday.

Funeral services for Edwin P. Chase, 69, 1934 Pulitzer prize winner for editorial writing, will be held at 9 a.m. today at the Hines Funeral Home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Atlantic, Iowa. He died Saturday.

A newspaper man since 1903, when he began setting type in his father's printing office, Mr. Chase has been living since he retired in 1940 at 3900 Connecticut ave.

He won the Pulitzer Prize when he was editor and publisher of the Atlantic, Ia., News Telegraph. His winning editorial was entitled "Where Is Our Money?" and answered in one short sentence—"We spent it."

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jane Colton Chase.

Tragedy Besets DP Family In Virginia

Tragedy has piled on tragedy for Mrs. Ilise Prinkalns and her family.

But the most numbing shock of all came just as the little group, displaced persons from Latvia, arrived at Centerville, Va., to begin a new life in America.

Three days after their arrival on the big dairy and orchard farm of Allen Forsberg, the husband and father of the family, Otto Prinkalns, died of a heart attack. That was last Wednesday.

Yesterday, Forsberg, with the aid of other Latvians and also Federal immigration officials, worked to cushion the worst of the blow. He said they will get a Latvian Lutheran minister who speaks the Prinkalns' native tongue to come to Centerville and conduct funeral services some time Tuesday.

And then?

"We want her and those children here," Forsberg said. "We'll make a fight to keep them if necessary. They are fine people and they can make a splendid place for themselves in the United States and in this area."

The children are Guntis, a strapping 14-year-old boy; a daughter, Maija, 12, and another son, Janis, 4.

Fear and disappointment have been with them now for years. The Prinklns' came here with four other Latvian families, all of whom met in a DP camp at Nuernberg. They managed to stay together even to arrangements to work on the Forsberg farm. They'll be together yet, except for Otto.

Mrs. Estella Brunner

Funeral services for Mrs. Estella Brunner, who died in her sleep Saturday of a heart ailment, will be held today at 3 p. m. at Hysong's funeral home, 13th and N sts. nw.

Mrs. Brunner's body was found by Miss Florene Mulroy with whom she lived at 3101 Monroe st. ne.

Mrs. Brunner was the widow of Frank J. Brunner, once editor of the Army and Navy Journal and of the Red Cross Courier. Brunner died in 1934.

Mrs. Brunner, who was a native of Stonington, Conn., will be buried in that town. She is survived by two sisters.

James Barnes Funeral Rites Set Tuesday

Funeral services for James R. Barnes, 74, Washington representative for Todd Shipyards Corp. of New York for more than 30 years, will be held at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday at Gawler's Funeral Home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will be at Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Barnes

Mr. Barnes, who had been in ill health for several years, died at his home, 4900 Hillbrook lane nw., of a cerebral hemorrhage on Friday.

Son of the late Rev. Edmund Barnes, a Methodist circuit rider, Mr. Barnes was born in Bowling Green, Ky., and later lived in Illinois. He attended college in Illinois and served as a corporal with the Fifth Cavalry during the Spanish-American War.

Mr. Barnes moved to Seattle in 1906 and came to Washington about 1915. He represented Todd Shipyards here in contract negotiations during both World Wars. He retired 18 months ago. His office was in the Investment Building, 15th and K sts. nw. He was a member of both the Masons and the Shrine.

Mr. Barnes is survived by his wife, Mrs. Minnie B. Barnes, and a daughter, Miss Dorothy Barnes of the Hillbrook lane address.

Honorary pallbearers will include Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, Representatives Jesse Wolcott (R., Mich.) and Jack Z. Anderson (R., Calif); Homer L. Ferguson, chairman of the board of the Newport News Shipbuilding Co.; John Reilly, president of the Todd Shipbuilding Corp.; Judge Marvin Jones, Chief Justice, United States Court of Claims; former Congressman Dow Harter; James M. Barnes, Washington attorney; Harry A. Grant, Washington attorney; Capt. Allan Reed (USN, ret.); Admiral Emory S. Land, Dr. George W. Calver, Capitol physician; U. L. Noland, Newport News businessman; Frederick M. Kissinger, cashier, office of the House Sergeant at Arms; John Pugh and John Scanlon.

Georgi Dimitrov

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 10 (AP).—Fifty cannon fired farewell salutes and a choir of 3000 sang "The Internationale" at the funeral today of Communist Premier Georgi Dimitrov.

Communist Party representatives of many lands joined a vast throng at the new, white mausoleum to which the body was carried by members of the Bulgarian Politburo.

Facing his casket, representatives of Bulgarian youth and women's organizations and trade union officials took an oath to carry on his "devotion" to Soviet Premier Stalin, and to "socialism and internationalism."

Orators praised Dimitrov, who died in a Russian sanatorium July 2.

George M. Houston

Mexico City, July 10 (AP).—George M. Houston, 66, former president of the Baldwin Locomotive works, was killed last night in an auto accident.

Gotham Thinks of Fall; We Plan Sunset Suppers, Summer Theater Trips

WHETHER you make your own clothes, or buy them off the ready-to-wear rack, you'll be interested in reports from New York this week concerning the new fall and winter fashions.

There will be plenty of style tips to whet your enthusiasm for fall costumes. If you are clever at cutting patterns, here is your chance to keep in pace with the style-setters by incorporating some of their best ideas into your own home-made wardrobe.

You'll learn, for instance the latest decisions on the length of a skirt, the cut of a sleeve, the size of a pocket, or the turn of a collar. You'll read about them in fashion editor Peggy Preston's news stories from New York describing the collections of America's top-flight designers.

You may not be able to buy a dress by a Hattie Carnegie, Castillo or Maurice Rentner. But it is these couturiers who set the trends that show up later in clothes that come within the average budget. A $300 gown can be copied and handed to you in a near, inexpensive little package within a few months after the original is shown—thanks to the ingenuity of American manufacturers.

So look closely for the next five days and see yourself as you'll be dressing next fall—for shopping, for bridge, for a Thanksgiving football game, or a Christmas party at home.

Like the Theater?

IF YOU LIKE the theater, you have a choice of four plays this week.

G. B. Shaw's "Arms and the Man" opens tonight at Catholic University for a one-week run.

Cross Roads at Baileys Cross Roads in Virginia is offering "A Young Man's Fancy" for four nights starting Wednesday this week and next. A. B. & W. buses leave 12th and Pennsylvania ave. at 20 minutes and 50 minutes after the hour. The 7:50 bus should get you there by curtain time.

The Meridian Hill Theater opens with Estelle Winwood in "The Importance of Being Earnest" tonight at 8:40. The beautiful outdoor theater in a park setting can be reached on the S2 bus which leaves from behind the old Postoffice Building at 11th and Pennsylvania ave. every four or five minutes. Or you can take the 14th street car and walk over two blocks on Belmont or Chapin sts.

The Olney Theater, which isn't really very difficult to get to, opens its week tomorrow night with Edward Everett Horton in "Present Laughter." To get there by bus, go to the Georgia and Alaska terminal via the S2 bus or the No. 70 street car which goes up 7th st. and then up Georgia ave. Change there to buses for the theater.

The buses leave the terminal at 1:45 p. m. on matinee days (Saturdays and Sundays) and at 7:25 p. m. and 7:45 p. m. for the evening performances. It takes about 40 minutes to get from downtown to the terminal via Capital Transit.

If you are driving to Olney, Md. take Route 108 from either Route 29 or 97.

Tickets for Olney may be purchased at Jordan's at 13th and G sts. nw. (Republic 1313) and tickets for the Meridian Park Theater can be purchased at the National Pipe Shop, 1317 E st. nw. (Sterling 0720) or at the theater itself. Reservations for the Cross Roads Theater can be made by calling Glebe 8683. Tickets for Catholic University productions can be reserved by calling Michigan 6000, Ext. 358.

Hearty Meal-in-a-Dish

IS GETTING dinner getting you down these summer evenings?

One night this week, try our Sunset Supper menu in the accompanying box. It's built around one hearty meal-in-a-dish and you can do most of the cooking the night before while you're washing the dishes.

At the last minute, add a fresh salad, some really good bread and an ice cream dessert. Voila! You have a wonderful meal on the table with a minimum of effort. It's ideal for the gal who must pound a typewriter all day, then rush home to a hot apartment to turn out an evening meal.

For Skating Fans

THE American Roller Skating Championships which will be conducted at Riverside Stadium today through Saturday, might make an amusing expedition for you and the small fry. Some days the events start as early as 9 a. m., and lasts well into the evening. Admission for the entire day is only 80 cents a head and there are refreshment stands handy if you decide to make a day of it. Some of the events are for children and might prove real fun for the youngsters to watch.

The stadium is at 300 26th st. nw.

Future 'Miss D. C.' Take Note

IF YOU have your eye on being "Miss Washington" this year, get your entry blank to WWDC by midnight tonight. There's $5000 worth of prizes for the gal who is chosen prettiest, most talented and poised of the Washington misses between 18 and 28 years of age. You must be single and must be a high schol graduate or a senior to qualify.

Slimmer Dorothy at Watergate

IF YOU attend the Wednesday-evening Watergate Concert this week, you will see a new, slimmer Dorothy Maynor. The soprano, who is less than 5 feet tall, has taken off 72 pounds in five months of dieting and now weighs in at a pleasingly plump 129. (You, too, can do it, if you follow Ida Jean Kain's 18-day diet, which will begin in The Washington Post next Monday, July 18.)

Besides the distinguished Miss Maynor, the Watergate concerts this week include a night of ballet Friday evening with Igor Youkevich and Mia Slavenska starring with the National Symphony, and Carroll Glenn and Eugene List, violin and piano husband-and-wife team next Sunday.

Three More Days for Day

YOU have just three days left to see one of America's most popular young comedians who is a singer as well. The laryngitis that's been keeping Singer Dennis Day kind of quiet on the stage of the Capitol is almost gone now. Last week he was hardly able to talk back to his 7-month-old son, Patrick, on the long-distance telephone. Patrick's vocabularly is chiefly "urgle, gurgle," but fond father Day is delighted to pay transcontinental rates to hear it.

This is the first time Day has been separated from his youngster and he misses him. Misses getting up for the 2 o'clock feedings, too, but not in just the same way.

Radio-movie-recording-star Day will be at the Capitol through Wednesday.

Hamburger Casserole
Lettuce and Tomato Salad
Rye Bread
Fudge Sundae

HAMBURGER CASSEROLE

1 Pound Hamburger Meat
2 Chopped Onions
Dash Red Pepper
¼ Teaspoon Chili Powder
½ Teaspoon Salt
1 Egg
1 Small Can Vegetable Soup
Mashed Potatoes

PROCEDURE: The night before you want to serve the hamburger casserole, put a skillet on the stove while you're tidying up the kitchen. Put the hamburger meat and chopped onions into the skillet and cook until it's nice and brown. Add a dash of red pepper, the chili powder, and salt. Remove from the fire and cool. Add the egg and mix well, then the vegetable soup. (If you have any leftover vegetables on hand you may use them.) Pour in a casserole and put in the refrigerator for future reference.

The next night when you get home, take out your casserole and pop it into a 375-degree oven. Bake for 45 minutes. When it's almost done, take it out and frost over the top with mashed potatoes. You can use leftover mashed potatoes or prepare them quickly with that powdered potato product that you mix with hot water and milk. Brown the potato-topped casserole and garnish with a dusting of paprika or a sprig of parsley.

Mary Haworth's Mail

If Maturity of Character Is a Self-Sufficient State of Being, Then Why Do We Hear That Only Mature Individuals Should Get Married, Man Asks

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Will you please answer the following in your column? As I understand, one should be mature and self-sufficient before contemplating marriage.

But if one were completely mature and self-sufficient, he wouldn't need a mate, it seems to me. He would be a perfect philosopher—a Socrates or Plato.

If a man really loves a woman, he feels that life would not be complete without her; he needs her. And if he waited until he could do without her—that is, until he had become mature, or self-sufficient, wouldn't love have flown? What do you say? F. R.

Man Doesn't Know Whereof He Speaks

DEAR F. R.: It seems to me that you are playing with cliches the substance of which, as originally meant, you don't understand—due as much to your unripe experience at living, as to your failure to consult the dictionary, or other sage source of exposition, before attempting to make philosophic use of these borrowed terms.

The term "maturity," as applied to human character or personality, has reference to optimum health of social attitude in adults—an attitude of responsible, helpful, truth-seeking devotion to the general good. And "self-sufficiency" has an opposite meaning, to wit: it has to do with the hypothetical aim of achieving personal satisfaction without external aid or cooperation.

According to the psychologists Strecker and Appel, who have collaborated in a definition of maturity, it is a quality of personality composed of a number of elements. In sum, it is "morale in the individual."

Self-Sufficiency Begs Off Maturity

THEY NOTE that maturity includes reliability, persistence in the face of trials, the capacity to give more than is asked or required in a specific situation; the ability to size things up and make one's own decisions; also the capacity to cooperate, to work with others in a group or under authority; and above all the qualities of adaptability and reasonable compromise.

The mature person behaves in accord with the truism that "we are all members one of another," and undertakes to secure the good life for himself by contributing his utmost to the general good; whereas the would-be "self-sufficient" man is antisocial in attitude, in the sense that he seeks refuge in a vacuum, to avoid the discomforts of give-and-take with humankind.

The man who aims at "self-sufficiency" is dedicated to a lost cause. That way madness lies; for nobody can live rationally, for long, to himself alone. Even the religious who renounce the world, to seek fuller attunement to the will of God while on earth, gather together in "community" with kindred souls—as did Jesus in drawing his Apostles around him.

He Confuses Love With Dependency

BUT PERHAPS in using the term "self-sufficiency" you really had "self-reliance" in mind—which refers to innate confidence in one's own strength or powers, and is an attribute of maturity. In any case, it seems apparent that you hold "love" to be a state of parasitical dependency upon another's interest,—and that I say is a wrong notion.

The hallmark of maturity is "abundance" of attitude; thus the mature man loves that he may bestow. One man has said, "Love is the desire to give fullness of life." And another defines love as "that state in which the satisfaction and security of another person is as important to oneself as one's own happiness." As for Socrates and Plato—it's my curbstone opinion that they were peculiarly morbid in respect to love.

Jas. Farley, jr., Miss Dillon Are Engaged

Of interest to Washington is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Patricia Louise Dillon, to James A. Farley, jr., son of former Postmaster General and Mrs. James A. Farley of New York.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Dillon of New York. She was educated at the Convent of the Sacred Heart in New York City and made her debut in the 1947-48 season. She has been active in welfare and charitable work.

Mr. Farley attended the Canterbury School in New Milford, Conn., and was graduated from Georgetown Preparatory School. He is now in the building material business in New York.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Tucker—Coquillard

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Tucker of Chevy Chase, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Joanne Tucker, to John Pierre Coquillard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Coquillard of South Bend, Ind. The wedding will take place in October.

Miss Tucker was graduated from Immaculate Seminary and from Trinity College class of 1948. Mr. Coquillard served as an Ensign in the Navy during the war. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1948 and is now attending Harvard School of Business Administration. He is descended from a family which pioneered in the settlement of South Bend.

Mr. Tucker is a Washington newspaper columnist.

Murray—Jepson

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Murray of Hyattsville, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Flocella M., to F. Bartely Jepson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jepson of Arlington, Va.

The bride-elect was graduated from the American University School of Nursing in 1947 and received her bachelor's degree from American University last May. She is employed by the United States Public Health Service.

Mr. Jepson is a pre-medical student at American University where he is president of Alpha Phi Omega fraternity.

Murphy—O'Connor

The engagement of Miss Shirlee Ann Murphy to John E. O'Connor is announced by her mother, Mrs. G. Olive Murphy of Bethesda, Md.

The bride-elect is a student at the Catholic University School of Nursing Education. Her fiance, son of William E. O'Connor of Washington, is a graduate at Georgetown University. The wedding is planned for the fall.

Martorelli—Froio

Mrs. Anna Martorelli announces the engagement of her daughter, Louise Anna Martorelli, to Amedeo Joseph Froio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Froio. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Griffin—Demple

Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Griffin of Washington and Holyoke, Mass., announce the engagement of their daughter, Katherine, to Joseph A. Demple, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar A. Demple of Sheridan, Wyo.

Miss Griffin attended Dunbarton College of Holy Cross. Mr. Demple, who served in the Philippines during the war, was graduated in June from Georgetown University.

The wedding will take place in October.

Gill—Fox

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Howard of Washington announce the engagement of their daughter, Alfredine N. Gill, to Michael Condit Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fox of Claremont, Arlington, Va.

Miss Gill, who is with the State Department, and Mr. Fox, who is a senior student of civil engineering at the University of Virginia, will be married next spring.

Peterson—Earp

Mr. and Mrs. Lind J. Peterson of Denver, Col., formerly of Minneapolis, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy M. Peterson of Washington to Robert Edward Earp, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Earp of Laurel, Md. The wedding will take place in Minneapolis on August 10.

Cafritz Party a Prelude To Anniversary Today

MR. AND MRS. Morris Cafritz will celebrate their wedding anniversary quietly today, after their big party Saturday night when more than a hundred of their friends came for supper and dancing.

Steaks were broiled in the charcoal grill; guests sat down at flower-decked, candlelit tables to eat them. First there were mint juleps served on the terrace, and last, dancing on the terrace and in the glass-floored ballroom downstairs.

Gwen Cafritz changed her mind at the last minute when her famous diamond necklace arrived, and instead of a yellow taffeta frock, wore a white chiffon gown brocaded in purple and silver design.

"The moon has a special polish on it tonight," said Secretary of the Interior Julius Krug, as the pale yellow disk sailed high overhead. Justice and Mrs. Robert Jackson were there and Mrs. John W. Snyder, without her husband, the Secretary of the Treasury who is visiting European Capitals.

Vice President Barkley enjoyed the party, and joined in the singing to the accompaniment of a strolling guitarist.

Senator Robert Taft came, so did Senator and Mrs. Clinton Anderson, Senator and Mrs. Estes Kefauver, Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, Senator and Mrs. Burnet Maybank and Gen. and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley.

Undersecretary of Commerce Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney was prevailed upon to play the piano, and others in the group were Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Brannan, Gen. and Mrs. Hoyt Vandenberg, the Clark Clifords, Senator and Mrs. George Malone, Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Edward H. Foley, and the Spanish Ambassador-at-large and Senora de Lequerica with their niece, Senorita Sisita Lequerica.

Newspaper Women Honored at Party

White Chimneys, Capt. and Mrs. Smith Hampstone's house in Bethesda, was the scene of a cocktail party yesterday honoring members of the American Newspaper Women's Club.

Mrs. Luther Sheldon shared hostess honors with Mrs. Hempstone, her sister. Miss Grace McGerr, president of the club, Miss Katharine Brooks and Mrs. Margaret Hart Canby assisted in the receiving line.

This was Mrs. Hempstone's last party at White Chimney's as she and the captain have bought a smaller house.

Mrs. Vogel Has Visitor From N. Y.

Mrs. Martin Vogel has as her guest Mrs. Emma Mills who arrived yesterday from New York.

Mrs. Mills has sponsored a series of literary luncheons for almost a quarter of a century in New York, with weekly guest speakers drawn from art and literary circles. It began with a small group of Mrs. Mills' friends who were anxious to keep abreast of the times. Mrs. Mills will be here until Wednesday when she leaves for Southampton, Long Island.

Miss Thomas to Wed Charles Crampton

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Henry Thomas of Winnetka, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Joan, to Charles Albert Crampton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clifford Crampton of Washington.

Miss Thomas, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Crampton, was introduced to Mr. and Mrs. Crampton's friends at a garden party yesterday at their home in Wesley Heights.

The bride-elect was graduated in June from Marjorie Webster Junior College. Mr. Crampton is a graduate of Staunton Military Academy and attended Virginia Military Institute. After three years as a first lieutenant in the Army he was graduated from Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y.

The wedding will take place in September.

Wedding Date Set

The marriage of Miss Jeanne Marie Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Black of Merchantville, N. J., and David Montgomery Brawner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar N. Brawner, Chevy Chase, Md., will take place before the immediate families Saturday, August 6. The ceremony will be held at 11 a. m. at the rectory of St. Peter's Church in Merchantville.

A reception will follow at the Barclay, in Philadelphia.

About Planning Small Wedding

I plan to be married around the third of September. My desire is to have a small church wedding—one attendant, best man, and my father to give the bride away. My problem is this: Would it be in good taste to have a long, ankle-length dress? What flowers should I carry, etc.? Can you give me a brief outline of what is expected or in good taste for a small wedding? B. D.

For a semi-formal wedding, with the attendants you describe, an ankle-length wedding gown (no train) and a finger-tip veil or veilless headdress (such as a halo of some kind) would be most appropriate. If you wish to be even less formal, you could wear a long, dinner-type dress in a color and a matching hat. As to flowers, I'd suggest that you consult a good florist in your town. They are usually well-qualified to give you excellent advice about appropriate and available flowers.

If you wear either of the gowns described above, your attendant should also have a formal-length gown. Long gloves or mitts are optional. Accessories can be matching or contrasting. Take a sample of the cloth of the gown to the florist if possible when you order your attendant's bouquet.

The bridegroom, his attendant, and your father would be correctly attired in tuxedoes, worn with black tie, if it's an evening wedding. If it is an afternoon wedding, they could wear oxford jackets, striped trousers, matching vest or light gray double-breasted vest, stiff collar, white shirt, four-in-hand or bow tie, and a boutonniere. Gloves are optional. If it's still hot in your town at the time of the wedding—and it's likely to be around September 3—all-white suits would be appropriate for the men in the bridal party in either the afternoon or evening. Or they could wear light trousers with dark jackets, or vice-versa?

To A. L. S. and "A Daily Reader of Your Column": We regret that we do not answer either garden or beauty questions in this column.

In a recent "Ask Anne" column, A. C. L. asked for information concerning Korea and I'm just the person to tell her about it. I returned to this country last November after a year in Korea and enjoyed every minute of it.

Korea has four seasons and the climate is just about like the New England States, though I doubt it gets as cold in Korea. However, when the wind blows down from Siberia, it's cold.

pairs of slacks as the main means of transportation is jeeps. Many girls wear slacks even to work when it gets cold. Several evening dresses will come in handy as every night is Saturday night in Korea. Lots of silk hose are needed as they don't last long crawling in and out of jeeps.

Dresses that are washable are more practical, too, as her maid will do them for her. Don't forget an iron, ironing board cover, a small electric hot plate, electric percolator and a little dime store silverware. They tell you no cooking will be allowed in apartments but everyone cooks. She can pick up dishes on the Korean market.

The rainy season starts in July and August so take umbrella and rubber boots. A parka will come in handy, too, when the snow begins to fall. Come wintertime, think nothing of seeing an American girl all dressed up in an evening gown with a parka, stadium boots, or combat boots going to a dance carrying her dancing slippers.

Whoever said that Americans aren't adaptable? Personally, I felt it no strain at all to adjust to a life where I had constant maid service, paid $4 a month for rent, had free bus service, and, as said before, every night was Saturday night.

Seoul, Korea, is a place where every man is a Good Time Charlie and a two-legged wolf. He thinks absolutely nothing of taking you to dinner, riding in a taxi (jeep variety) and buying you all the drinks you want for 25c each. Social life there is a little hard on the nerves, but easy on the ego. It is a cross between a small town and Hollywood. Two dates and you are rumored in love; four dates and you are rumored engaged; eight dates and it is hinted you are on your way to the Consul; 16 dates and you had better get married. But the situation is usually solved by the appearance of another man—or another girl.

P. M. L.

Letters from several other readers who kindly volunteered information on Korea are being forwarded to A. C. L., along with P. M. L.'s letter in its entirety.

Inquiries and contributions to Ask Anne column must be in written form. We regret that time does not permit handling them by telephone. Address questions to Anne, Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Don't Let Baby 'Cry It Out'; It May Hurt Him Permanently

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

NO MATTER how often the newer books on child care explain the futility and the mistake of letting a baby "cry it out," mothers continually refer to it as a method of discipline and one with some seeming magic in it.

In truth, it makes for, instead of ending difficulties. The baby has only one means of communication with the persons about him. When he cries it is not for exercise, it is because, for the moment, he is uncomfortable, he is hungry for food or for the touch of a loving hand or the need to cuddle next to someone warm and strong.

A parent's answers to these needs is the basis of the child's much-talked-of sense of security. When he is young and new in the world, he does not recognize that he has parents and a roof over his head, he knows what the world is like only by what happens to him.

May Be Filled With Fear

If he cries and no one answers, no one fulfills his demands, and he is alone and neglected, that recognition fills him with fear. He develops a sense of frustration—you would, too—and a belief that he must cry longer and fight harder to get some attention. No baby should have to carry such an inappropriate burden.

The needs of a baby are so simple and easily satisfied. They become difficult only for mothers who get the deluded idea that crying will teach him not to be unreasonable in his demands, keep him from being spoiled, teach him NOT to cry.

The opposite is nearer the truth. When the baby discovers that his demands are met, his needs satisfied, he has no particular frustration. He doesn't feel helpless. He feels secure.

He knows, by his experience, that when he is hungry, cold, uncomfortable, lonesome, someone will always be near to relieve these conditions.

Worry About Whiners

The fretful, crying child, the older child who is a chronic whiner—these are children who have no such assurance. They feel they must keep their eyes glued to the parents and their hands attached to her, or she will leave them to suffer alone. There is nothing in their experience which has given them any faith in a better deal. It all depends upon them.

There is another aspect to this prolonged crying which is being emphasized today and that is the oxygen hunger, with possible detriment to the brain, which can result when a child is allowed to scream himself into exhaustion.

If mothers pooh-pooh the psychological aspects of frustration and insecurity, maybe they will be respectful of the probable mental damage to a child who is allowed to cry too long.

Alexandria's Past On Stage Tonight

A cast of 500 persons, a specially constructed amphitheater, and a mass of costumes, props and electrical equipment are ready for the first presentation tonight of the climactic pageant of Alexandria's bicentennial celebration.

The spectacle, titled "Alexandria —Thy Sons," will depict in 16 scenes the colorful and historic past of the community as well as an allegorical masque predicting the future.

Past heroes of Alexandria and the Nation, George Washington, George Mason, Robert E. Lee and the Baptist Preacher Jeremiah A. Moore will be depicted in outstanding events of their careers which are closely tied to Alexandria's history as well as that of the United States.

The amphitheater, on Lee st., will accommodate 7500 persons and approximately 50,000 are expected to see the pageant on the seven successive nights of its presentation, beginning tonight at 8:30 p. m. Tickets, costing from $1.20 to $3.60, are on sale in Alexandria at 803 Cameron st., and in Washington at 1108 G st. nw.

Special Bus Schedule Set for Playgoers

The Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Transit Co. will extend four of its lines to King George's Meadow Amphitheater for the convenience of persons attending the bicentennial historical drama," "Alexandria, Thy Sons," it was announced yesterday.

All Potomac Yard, Arlington Ridge Road and Braddock Heights buses leaving Washington between 7 and 7:45 p. m. on show nights will proceed as far as Fairfax and Gibbon sts. The Alexandria-Fairlington bus leaving Fairlington at 7:33 p. m. also will go to Fairfax and Gibbon.

In addition to these extensions, the Russell Road bus will follow its regular route to the spectacle site. Airport buses, following their regular routes, will go within walking distance of the amphitheater.

Following the performance the Russell Road bus will leave Fairfax and Gibbon at 10:27 and 10:57; the Arlington Ridge Road will depart at 10:34 and 11:04; the Braddock Heights bus will leave at 10:42; Potomac Yards at 10:49 and Fairlington-Alexandria at 11 p. m.

Postlude

Capital Gets First Hearing Of Concerto

By Paul Hume

Washington had its first hearing of Maurice Ravel's G Major Piano Concerto last night.

Zadel Skolovsky played the work with the National Symphony Orchestra under Howard Mitchell in the fourth concert of the current Watergate series. Our summer concerts seldom bring us important novelties in music. It is generally thought safer for the box office to stick to the standard and popular repertoire.

Yet last night's concerto is a natural for any concert of lighter appeal. It is strictly in the Parisian-American jazz style. Written after George Gershwin's American in Paris, it could easily stand safely on an all-Gershwin program.

Yet it is typically and wonderfully French. More than that, it could be the composition of no other composer than Ravel. The piano is the second movement with the orchestra providing a quiet background in Gallic of this century beyond doubt. It is a shame that the orchestra support at this point was almost inaudible over the loudspeaker system last evening.

Skolovsky, a newcomer in the unfamiliar concerto, played its knobby passages easily and with flair. Quiet moments were easily sung and he thoroughly understands the music. He added three encores in response to the audience's insistence. They included two Liszt transcriptions, one of Chopin's Polish songs, and one of Paganini's violin studies. His final encore was by Godowsky's Alt Wien.

The orchestra had an uneven evening. Their tone and technique were better most of the time than in previous concerts. But brief rehearsals do not allow much time for polishing and attacks in Weber's Oberon overture showed rough at the edges, as did the cello's lack of unison in the Tristan Prelude.

Still the total effect of these pieces was good and Mitchell made the Wagner increasingly beautiful. Rachmaninoff's Vocalise sounded appropriately lush but might have been more sustained throughout.

It would be hard to find a better closing fillip than Jacques Ibert's Divertissement. Here Emerson Meyers gave as fine service at the piano as he did this spring in heading the successful drive to raise the orchestra's sustaining fund for next season.

The music was played with great splash and fine style to wind up a rousing evening. Wednesday night: Dorothy Maynor!

Plans Studied to Enlarge First Division Monument

Plans for enlarging the monument to men of the First Division to include those who served in the unit in World War II are under way here, it was learned yesterday.

Veterans of the division from both wars have considered the proposal and have asked Cass Gilbert, jr., New York architect, to draw plans for substantial additions to the base.

Father Drew Plans

Gilbert's father, the late Cass Gilbert, internationally famous architect, drew the original plans for the monument, which has a tall center shaft surmounted by a figure. The memorial is at 17th st. and State pl. nw., behind the Old State Department Building.

Members of the Fine Arts Commission, which must pass on erection or alteration of monuments in Washington, last night said Gilbert has appeared before the commission twice to discuss the plans.

Flight of Stairs Planned

The expanded base will include a monumental flight of stairs leading to the shaft. Names of the First Division's dead of World War II will be inscribed on the addition, according to present plans. The list of dead from World War I already is etched on the memorial. A new cornerstone probably will be laid.

Details of plans for financing the improvement were not made known in detail here yesterday, but it was said that a First Division organization in New York City is accepting contributions.

Lodge to Seek Two-Party Aid On Vote Bill

By the United Press

Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) said yesterday he will ask the Senate Democratic leadership to promote his plan for opening up the traditionally Democratic South to the Republican Party.

He said he will appear this week before the Senate Democratic Policy Committee, which decides the Senate schedule, to urge action on his constitutional amendment for revising presidential elections.

The Lodge plan would split up State electoral votes on the basis of the popular vote. Under the present Electoral College system, a State's entire electoral vote is cast for the candidate polling the most votes and the runnerup gets nothing.

Says It Would Help South

Lodge said his plan would make the Republican votes in the South really count for something and would open the way to a real two-party system in Dixie.

"Southern Democrats can back it because it offers a real benefit to their part of the country," he said. "It would put the South back into a better position in national political affairs."

Proposes Other Changes

The plan is one of three Lodge is promoting to change the present system of presidential elections and service. The others are:

(1) Financing presidential campaigns from the Federal Treasury instead of through party contributions to prevent possible sale of jobs or favors; (2) Spelling out clearly a system of determining when a President, through illness or otherwise, becomes unable to perform the duties of his office.

'The Forbidden Street' Brings Poignant Drama to Translux

Lest "Brittania Mews" seem an incomprehensible and therefore weak title for an American moviegoing audience, Twentieth-Century Fox has changed the title of that novel by Margery Sharp to a more enticing, even suggestive one, "The Forbidden Street." It's pleasant to report that the change of title is about the only poor attribute for the new film at the Translux.

Margery Sharp's novel was a very popular one when it was published several years ago. This picture version of it will be, too. It has all the highly romantic incredibility of the book; it has the benefit of some fine performances by the stars, Maureen O'Hara and Dana Andrews, and a large supporting cast of English actors; it has fine photography most of the time, and intelligent direction.

"The Forbidden Street" is the story of Adelaide Culver (O'Hara) who lives in a house which overlooks the slum-alley, Brittania Mews, in the heart of London. It tells of her peculiar attraction for the place which is forbidden to her by her middle-class, respectable parents. Against their wishes she marries a wastrel painter (Andrews). With him she lives a life of poverty and misery until one day he dies in an accident which is interpreted as murder by a crone of a neighbor known as the Sow (Dame Sybil Thorndike).

Blackmailed by the Sow, Adelaide gives up all hope of ever getting away from the Mews until one day she meets Gilbert Lauderdale (Andrews, again). With him she finds courage to defy the Sow, and eventual happiness through a rejuvenation of Gilbert into a respectable owner of the most famous puppet theater in London.

In its bare bones, this plot looks like a thin skeleton but on it has been hung plenty of muscle and fat to fill it up into generous portions for film entertainment. It should be especially appealing to women, who had better bring a handkerchief along when they see the picture. It often leans to the pathetic when the going gets rough for the heroine.

There is a happy mixture of humor to alleviate the more heavy dramatic, poignant moments. Much of it owes its balance to the very fine acting of the supporting cast, chief among whom is the formidably hideous Sow, magnificently played by Dame Sybil.

The stars, Andrews and O'Hara, rise up to the competence of their supporting cast. In the presence of good actors, they seem to sense that more is demanded of them and they rally to the challenge. Andrews is interesting for his attempt to portray two entirely different personalities who have physical resemblance.

Jean Negulesco, who directed, has ably fitted all the elements of production into a whole which is enjoyable to perceive.

Don't let the title mislead you and you'll like to venture in to "The Forbidden Street."

Bishop Asks Tougher Stand Against Reds

Chichester, England, July 10 (AP).—The Anglican Bishop of Chichester called on the World Council of Churches today to take a tougher stand against communism.

The Bishop, Dr. George Kennedy Bell, said the council must fearlessly point out "flagrant violations of Christian principles."

He spoke at a conference here of the central committee of the World Council of Churches. The committee, governing body of the council of 150 Protestant church groups in 44 countries, opened a six-day meeting last night.

Dr. Bell urged the committee to take these actions:

1. Step up the work of the council's study department which, conference sources said, maintains contacts with Christian groups in several Communist-dominated countries of eastern Europe.

2. Issue a stronger condemnation of communism. The Amsterdam assembly rapped "the ideologies of both communism and laissez faire capitalism."

Conference sources indicated the bishop spoke for a sizable bloc within the central committee opposing a so-called moderate group seeking to avoid an open breach with the state by the eastern European churches.

Dr. Franklin C. Fry of New Rochelle, N. Y., president of the United Lutheran Church of America, urged closer union of world churches.

Full scale debate is expected later in the week on the issue of church unity. Sources said the churchmen are expected once again to tackle the problem of including the Greek Orothodox Church and the 6,500,000-strong Southern Baptist Convention of the United States in the council's membership.

Sixty of the council's 90 members are attending. Today visiting clergymen preached in 20 churches throughout West Sussex. Dr. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, D. C., preached at Selsey.

Site for Aged Negroes' Home Being Cleared

Clearing of a 10-acre tract for the proposed Friendly Home for Aged Negroes just off Route 240 on Goshen rd. near Gaithersburg is under way under the sponsorship of the Frazier Christian Family Circle, Inc.

The sponsoring organization consists of members of the Brooke Grove Methodist Church, under leadership of Basil Frazier, a farmer, and member of the church. A fund-raising campaign has been under way for three years.

The group recently made a $500 down payment on the property, and is preparing to provide another $500 installment on the $2000 cost of the land.

A cornerstone-laying ceremony will take place July 23.

Fellow Lodger Killed After Row At Lacy's Corner

Charles Odell Garner, 29, who lived at Lacy's Corner, near Bailey's Crossroads, Va., was shot and instantly killed yesterday after what Fairfax County Detective William Durrer said was an argument with a man who lived in the same home.

Durrer placed a murder charge against Harvey White, 29. He will be arraigned today before a trial justice at Fairfax.

The officer said White told him the two had argued Saturday night and about an hour before the shooting, had had a fight. He quoted White as saying he obtained a .16-gauge shotgun and fired in self-defense when Garner approached with a club.

Pravda Assails U.S. Recognition Of Latvian Envoy

Moscow, July 10 (AP).—A Soviet writer today said United States Secretary of State Acheson is dabbling in spiritualism.

Satirist David Zaslavsky wrote that Acheson was recalling a "ghost" from another world by recognizing Jules Feldmans as charge d'affaires representing Latvia in Washington. He called the action "anti-Soviet blackmail."

(Latvia was absorbed by Russia during the war. The United States never has formally recognized the annexation. Last week Acheson officially received Feldmans as Latvian charge d'affairs to succeed the late Latvian minister, Alfred Bilmanis.)

Zaslavsky, writing in Pravda, said Acheson was "recalling from another world the ghost of antidemocratic, bourgeois Latvia overthrown by the people."

Mother, 2 Children Found Shot to Death

Bluefield, W. Va., July 10 (AP). A mother and her two young daughters were shot to death late last night in what authorities termed a double murder and suicide.

Virginia State Trooper A. E. Andes identified the dead as Mrs. Cynthia Matthews Paxton, 38, and her two children, Charlene, 10, and Shirley, 8, of Bluefield.

Andes said Mrs. Paxton apparently shot the girls through the head in the bedroom of their home with a .38-caliber pistol, then fired a bullet through her temple.

Laura Weese Wins Award

The Association for Education in World Government announced yesterday the selection of Laura Weese, a student at Woodrow Wilson High School, as the recipient of a scholarship to the Mount Holyoke College Institute on the United Nations at South Hadley, Mass.

Mental Patient Kills Tormentor At Perry Point

Perryville, Md., July 10 (AP). A mental ward inmate at nearby Perry Point Veterans Hospital became enraged by the taunts of a fellow patient today and bludgeoned him to death.

Chaplain Walter Bruggeman identified the dead man as Fred Guthrie, 45-year-old World War I veteran from Bowie, Md.

HOW CAN you know what lies behind an ad after you read it? Can you get along with the man who wrote it and would you be happy and successful while working with his company under his direction?
You'll never know unless you investigate it. You are looking for a new job and we are looking for a good man—several of them. Is there anything wrong with the following ad? Young man or older, IF YOUR MIND AND BODY ARE STILL ACTIVE, one of America's largest corporations will employ you and train you to operate under a contract of unusual proportion. If you have good intentions and good reputation, if you intend to eventually have an income ranging from $6,000 to $12,000 per year, you will recognize this as an unusual business opportunity with the road wide open and alluring. Necessary training period will be surprisingly short and entirely without cost to you.

The Lyons Den By Leonard Lyons

AL JOLSON wanted to make a bet on the Yankee-Red Sox ball game last week and telephoned his bookmaker. The bookie offered him odds of $900 to $800, and Jolson felt the odds weren't high enough. "I should get at least 10 to 8," Jolson suggested. "That's what the odds should be" . . . "Al, making the odds is my business, and I know my business. You stick to your business, and I'll stick to mine. Your business is singing—so sing." . . . "You like the way I sing?" asked Jolson . . . "Sure. Tell you what I'll do," said the bookie. "Sing me a chorus of 'Sonny Boy' and I'll give you 10 to 8" . . . Jolson sang "Sonny Boy," and the bookie approved the bet, $1000 to $800. Jolson lost the bet.

BARBARA HUTTON probably will receive the French Legion of Honor for a gift she made to the Palace of Versailles. The gift was the rug which was in Marie Antoinette's bedroom at the time of the French Revolution . . . Members of the Oxford-Cambridge track team, who lost to Princeton and Cornell, but beat Harvard and Yale, were given an allowance of $3 each by the British Government. The $3 was for incidentals beyond their necessary expenses. King Peter of Yugoslavia and his Queen will not be back in New York this year. They've rented a house in St. Cloud, on the outskirts of Paris.

ONE of Sam Harris' friends told of the time the late producer bought a five-story house in Manhattan. His living room was on the second floor and his party room was on the fourth floor. One night a guest he was entertaining on the fourth floor suddenly collapsed against a lamp which toppled over and almost fractured his skull. Harris tried to revive the bloody, unconscious man—then ran down to the second floor, where the telephone was, and called for an ambulance . . . Then, over-excited, he fainted. The intern arrived and went upstairs with his ambulance driver. They found Harris on the second floor, assumed he was the patient and took him to the hospital, unaware—until Harris told them later—of the patient on the fourth floor.

THE skinny, 6-foot-7 Robert E. Sherwood accidentally tripped on the stairs at the Players and tumbled down. "He came down," said an observer, "like a Venetian blind." . . . In preparation for the twenty-fifth anniversary of the

New Yorker magazine, some of the staff tried to learn what kind of gift Editor Harold Ross would like. Ross heard of it and suggested a yacht. And then he specified that he'd like only the kind of yacht he could dispose of immediately . . . Ed Small is auditioning hypnotists to send on the road with his "Black Magic" movie, in which Orson Welles plays a hypnotist. Applicants have to hypnotize Small before they can be considered for a job.

OSCAR LEVANT, whose performance enthralled a record crowd at the Gershwin Memorial Concert in Lewisohn Stadium Thursday night, made a concert tour on which, at a college where he was to give a recital, he learned that it would take place in the gymnasium, the only hall available. As the sponsors led Levant into the small gym, they apologized and said: "Someday, when we get a little more money . . ." Levant told them: "Then you'll probably build a bigger gymnasium" . . . Levant's severest movie critic, incidentally, is Bosley Crowther of the Times. "I know he's honest, and that's what I don't like about him," said Levant. "Because when he says he doesn't like me, he really means it."

PAUL GALLICO is writing a Children's Book . . . Jimmy Stewart, who went to Arizona for his new movie, "Arrow," was invited to become a blood brother of the Hopi tribe. He declined when he learned the induction rite meant walking across a bed of hot coals . . . Governor Bowles of Connecticut has appointed Lillian Moses, the N. Y. lawyer who lives in Connecticut, as the only woman member of the board of trustees of the University of Connecticut . . . Sigmund Romberg, the composer who began here by playing a piano in a 2d ave. cafe, will conduct the NBC Symphony July 17, fly to Chicago to receive, together with President Truman, a Shriners award; then he'll fly to Philadelphia to conduct at Robin Hood Dell, and then conduct at Lewisohn Stadium.

PAULETTE GODDARD entertained some visitors on the set of "Anna Lucasta," and they mentioned to her the legend that she is one of the wealthiest actresses in Hollywood. One suggested that perhaps this was because of her astuteness in business investments. "I have no business investments," said Miss Goddard. "Business deals are beyond me. They frighten me" . . . "But don't you have a fortune in jewels?" she was asked . . . "Certainly," she said. "But for diamonds a girl doesn't have to sign any papers. She just says 'Thank you.'"

ERICH MARIA REMARQUE is back at his Swiss summer home in Ascona, preparing his next novel . . . Charles Washburn, press agent for Billy Rose, is being permitted by his employer, for the first time, to handle outside theatrical accounts. Washburn is the veteran press agent whose clients included George M. Cohan and "Abie's Irish Rose" . . . Mrs. Gabriel Pascal, the bride of the producer of G. B. Shaw's films, arrived from Europe yesterday—her first visit to this country. They'll tour here and then rest at Mayo Clinic . . . Trygve Lie returns to the U. N. August 16. . . One of New York's shrewdest politicians said last night: "If I were a betting man, as of today I'd bet O'Dwyer will run."

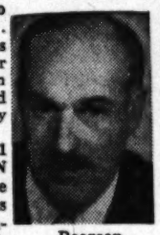
England Driven to Barter Trade

By Drew Pearson

Here are some things to remember about the British monetary maneuverings which amiable Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder is trying to straighten out. The story goes back to war days, but can be summarized chapter by chapter.



Pearson

CHAPTER 1 — BRETTON WOODS: At the Bretton Woods Monetary Conference in 1944, Lord Beaverbrook and Winston Churchill argued that Britain could not go back to normal free-trade relations after the war, that Britain must live by its wits, would have to put across the same cut-throat barter agreements such as negotiated by Hitler (and as now signed with Argentina).

Roosevelt and Morgenthau urged that there was not much use defeating Hitler if the Allies were to adopt his methods afterward, and the British finally came around to the idea of letting trade take its normal channels—provided they got a loan from the United States of America.

CHAPTER 2—BRITISH LOAN: In 1946, Britain got a postwar $3,750,000,000 loan from the United States of America. This was officially considered a loan, and statements made by this column that it was actually a grant were denied. However, it is now conceded that the "loan" is pretty much forgotten, will never be repaid.

One condition of the loan was that Britain would abandon her "sterling-dollar pool." This was an arrangement, necessary during the war, by which British colonies and dominions sent their dollars to London, and were then permitted to spend only such dollars as London dictated. In other words, all dollar purchases in the British Empire were rationed by London. Australia, for instance, could not buy from the United States of America unless London so decreed.

CHAPTER 3—THE MARSHALL PLAN: After abolishing the sterling-dollar pool for a short time as per agreement, the British went back to it again in 1947. This was shortly before the Marshall Plan and at a time when the British once again were appealing for financial help. If they got help, the British promised, they would again abolish the sterling-dollar pool.

Accordingly the Marshall Plan was worked out, and under it Britain received the largest grant of all countries. Adding up the Marshall Plan, the loan, and other aid, the United States has now poured an average of a billion dollars a year into Britain since the end of the war.

CHAPTER 4—THE CURRENT CRISIS: Despite the Marshall Plan and the British loan, plus other interim relief, the British are still just as badly off. This also goes for many other western European countries.

As a result, Sir Stafford Cripps now threatens to do what Britain promised not to do under the loan agreement—once again restore the sterling-dollar pool. In fact, he has already abolished further purchases from the U.S.A.

What all this boils down to is that the Marshall Plan, at the height of its operation, is not really working, despite the fact that the plan has been administered with great speed and a reasonable degree of efficiency.

FACTS IN THE CASE—In Congress, they blame the British crisis on the labor government and socialism. This ignores the fact that other western European countries are likewise badly off, also that Britain has made more heroic economies than most.

It also ignores the fundamental trouble with England as with western Europe generally, namely, that it is eating more than it is producing; that it has too high a standard of living for its wealth; and that it expects us to pension it off.

This is a crude way of putting it, but it might be cheaper in the long run for us to take over England, as a son takes an aged parent under his own roof.

The British once were affluent because they were milking Asiatic colonies. Millions of people in those colonies lived just above the starvation level, while the British Empire wore ermine.

Another basic fact ignored in the western European situation is that you can't keep on increasing labor pay unless labor produces, and labor costs are rising in England and France with no commensurate rise in production. So we make up the difference by pumping Marshall Plan money into Europe every year.

RESULT—Today American and Canadian manufactured goods can outsell British goods almost anyplace. Our labor produces more; our methods of manufacture are more modern.

SNYDER'S REMEDY—Amiable John Snyder would remedy all this by devaluing the pound. This is only another way of reducing wages and profits. When you can't compete with another country's goods, you have to cut costs by cutting both wages and profits.

Politically, cutting wages is difficult. So devaluing the pound accomplishes the same thing less painfully without letting British labor know it. In the end, of course, British labor has to foot part of the bill, because the pound buys less and labor's income is reduced.

This is why Sir Stafford Cripps is so opposed to devaluing the pound.

Bill Green Protests

AFL President Bill Green is on the warpath about revenue losses to the Government's unemployment trust fund. This is the kitty for unemployment compensation, and Green is worried over payroll tax reductions and credit rebates to employers by State employment services.

In a letter to Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing, Green has urged a Nation-wide checkup on these State agencies to determine why employers who are allowed reductions for maintaining steady employment are not now giving steady employment.

"Between 1939 and 1948 the net reduction in revenue to the unemployment trust fund totaled $4,709,000,000," the labor leader pointed out in his letter. "This amount is equal to 82.6 per cent of all benefits paid to unemployed workers from the beginning of the program to the end of 1948."

Number 23 in a Series... Hecht Co. Personalities in the News

LAWRENCE J. MANDELL, Manager of Buying Controls for The Hecht Co., is a native New Yorker and a graduate of New York University, School of Commerce. He claims he learned to THINK businesswise during the five years he spent as IBM Tabulating Supervisor for a large New Jersey manufacturing concern. Larry was in the 32nd Machine Records Unit of the First Army and served in the European Theater of Operations. He is married and has adopted Washington, D. C., lock, stock and barrel. To prove it, he can give you the latest batting average of every member of the Washington Senators Baseball Team.

The Customer's Vote Counts...

SAYS LAWRENCE MANDELL, THE HECHT CO.'S MANAGER OF BUYING CONTROLS

Each time a customer makes a purchase at The Hecht Co. it is just like casting a vote. No politics here . . . but rather a simple method of determining the people's choice. Yes, The Hecht Co. has to know what the public wants so that those things can be made available for you. And it's all done with our Unit Control Department. Here a system is followed which permits us to record a customer's vote of preference for a certain type of wearing apparel . . . furniture . . . or any of the hundreds of thousands of items we sell. Surely, you've noticed a salesperson tear off a portion of the price tag on a suit or dress you've selected. That stub is your ballot. It gives us such information as size, color, manufacturer, style and price. In an average year approximately 5,000,000 stubs from ready-to-wear garments are tabulated and analyzed . . . as well as hundreds of thousands of unit control cards from the other departments at The Hecht Co.

Each day our buyers check the unit control files. Re-orders of fast moving merchandise are promptly made from these records. Stocks and inventories are balanced. The system also enables us to keep a wide selection of the things you want . . . and acts as a buying guide for the future. The Hecht Co. uses five different types of unit controls. These vary from a small perforated stub on a ready-to-wear price ticket to the larger, more detailed booklets used on furniture and home appliances. These variations are due to the vast differences in the merchandise we sell and also the necessity of adapting the control methods for certain types of seasonal goods. Mr. Mandell believes that our Unit Control Department can be compared to a giant mirror which he and his staff of 94 associates keep well polished at all times to reflect clearly the good taste of the Washington buying public.

Yes, an army of people storing, tabulating, recording and analyzing your buying preferences from the votes you cast each time you make a purchase . . . help make The Hecht Co. a great place to work . . . a great place to shop.
